SPEED—ON PALMER CORD TYRES.

SOME NOTABLE RECORDS OF RECENT DATES.

PALMER CORD TYRES.

Excessive speeding imposes an intense strain on tyres—experts recognise that SPEED is one of the greatest tests of strength. The following are some recent remarkable performances with Palmer Cord Tyres at Brooklands:—

NOV. 24th, 1912.—M. VICTOR HEMERY.
6 speed records and 11 distance records in one day.
FEB. 15th, 1913.—Mr. PERCY LAMBERT.
103¼ miles in one hour with a 25-h.p. car.
APRIL, 1913.—Mr. JULES GOUX.
106 miles 847 yards in one hour with a 80-h.p. car.

These motorists choose Palmer Cords because they can rely on them. For the same reason SO SHOULD YOU. Catalogues free.

THE BIG PIANO SALE AT PIANOLA HALL
CONTINUES THIS WEEK.
SURPASSING ALL ITS PREDECESSORS.
Have you a limited amount to invest in a piano? Do you want to make that amount go as far as possible—to make every pound of it count in securing genuine piano value? Would you like to see on the piano you buy for your home the name of some maker of world-wide repute? THEN DO NOT MISS THE OPPORTUNITY THAT THIS SALE REPRESENTS.
They are not "discarded" instruments, they are excellent pianos that have seen hardly any use, and here's the reason: In Sydney there are thousands of good pianos owned by persons who are unable to play them. These people are bringing their pianos to Pianola Hall in exchange for the Pianola Piano, the STEINWAY, STECK, WEBER, or STROUD. Pianola Pianos cost from 120 guineas up. Those who can afford to pay these prices are certain to already own good pianos. This in itself is a fair indication of the character of the instruments we are taking in exchange.
No matter what piano you select or what price you pay, the instrument can be returned to us at its full purchase price within three months from date of purchase in part payment on a new STECK Piano or Pianola Piano.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

IT HAS BEEN A BUSY TIME.

Yes, it would have done your heart good to have been at our "Seldom-used" Piano Sale yesterday. The place was filled with pianos and people. The air was vibrant with music—Pianos were being tried and compared. It was a day of dreams come true.

And so will it be to-day, because—used uprights and grands all of standard makes, all taken by us in exchange—not one purchased for the sale—not one that is not worthy—each put in first-class condition—are priced lower than we have ever known for instruments of such merit.

They may be acquired on terms to suit—within reason—and confidentially, too.

MACHINERY.

THE PULLEY OF PULLEYS,
BY THE PULLEY PEOPLE.

In Pulleys, as in Tools of Trade and Scientific Instruments, certain firms excel in particular kinds.

Certain firms get hold of the trade in certain goods, and try how others will, there's a "something" which keeps them out of it.

There are, however, users of certain goods who are prejudiced, and stick to a certain make all their lives. Reeves excel in Split Wood Pulleys, so that the service and satisfaction this make gives is just wonderful.

They are quickly adjusted to any shaft, and to put one or more in place does not necessitate unshafting the other pulleys, which would mean delay and loss. The segmental rims make them superior to all temperatures, and give them the complete grip of the belt. Being lighter than steel, they use less power in running.

Come to the Pulley People—the Agents for Reeves' Wood Pulleys—and thus get them at the Agents' prices. We are the Sole Agents.

In fact, your friends will think you are wearing a tailored-to-measure suit. And so you will be, only it will have been tailored in the quiet season, and tried on models which assure you a perfect fit in every respect. In English and Scotch Tweeds. Come in and see them. Wynne (Vic.), three nominations each.

NOTES.

Messrs. Thompson Bros., of the Woodlawn, Wingarra, Oakleigh, and Widden studs, are strengthening their stallion contingent, which already comprises Grafton (imp.), Cooltrim (imp.), Royal Artillery, and Charlemagne II. (imp.), by the purchase, in England, of the Sundridge horse Sunshine, who has been secured through the British Blood Stock Agency. Bred in 1907, Sunshine is by Sundridge (son of Amphion and Sainfoin's sister, Sierra), while his dam, Sweet Notes, is by St. Florian (son of St. Simon) from Wild Notes, by Wild Oats (sire of imported Gozo), from Harmony, by the Derby winner Caractacus from Concordia, by Newminster. Sundridge is the sire of Sunstar (winner of the Two Thousand Guineas and Derby, 1911), Jest (winner of the One Thousand Guineas and Oaks, 1913), White Star, Sun Yat, Sunspot, Golden Sun, Sunripe, Suncloud, Radiant, and many other winners; while Sweet Notes is the dam of Sweet Thrush, Savernake, and other winners. During his turf career Sunshine won three races as a two-year-old, worth £1067; and the following season he secured two, worth £604. The horse was to have been shipped for Sydney on Monday last, and should, therefore, arrive in ample time for the coming season. During the last five seasons the progeny of Sundridge has secured £67,215 in stakes alone, and during the current season that sum has been increased to nearly £80,000.

The success of Prince Palatine in the Ascot Gold Cup had more than the average element of good luck, for, according to the cable message, Tracery was going easily in front when the fanatic, Hewitt, brought him down, and the son of Persimmon came on and won from Stedfast and Aleppo. Had Tracery secured the prize few would begrudge his owner, Mr. August Belmont, the slice of good fortune. Mr. Belmont is one of America's leading sportsmen, and for years past has occupied the position of chairman of the American Jockey Club. He has been a consistent supporter of the turf in England, and last season Tracery credited him with his first English classic—the St. Leger Stakes at Doncaster. Prince Palatine, who secured the Gold Cup, also includes in his victories the St. Leger Stakes, the Jockey Club Stakes, Doncaster Cup, and Eclipse Stakes, 1912, and has during his first two seasons' racing captured £28,109 in stakes alone, while if the Gold Cup be anything like its immediate predecessor in value (£3470) his aggregate winnings up to date will be in the neighbourhood of £31,000.

Craganour's success in the Newmarket Stakes on the 21st ult., was of the one-horse variety, for he practically made all his own running, and scored cleverly by a length and a half from the Sundridge colt, Sun Yat, who beat Louvois by a couple of lengths for second place, the mile and a quarter having been cast behind in the fast time of 2m 5 2-5s. Craganour started an even-money favourite, while 13 to 8 could be had about Louvois, and Flippant was the only other marketable in a field of seven.

The American-bred horse Tracery, whose chance of securing the Gold Cup at Ascot was discounted by a "crank," won the Burwell Plate, w.f.a., 1¾m, at Newmarket on the 20th ult. from Jackdaw and Lord Derby's horse, Stedfast. Though there were eight competitors, nothing was thought of in the betting market but Stedfast and Tracery, the latter of whom was piloted by Frank Wootton, and had a slight call in the market. Halfway across the flat Tracery silenced all opposition, and scored easily at the end, the distance being covered in 2m 32s.

The general entries for the V.R.C. Grand National Steeplechase meeting show a deficit of 75 as compared with last year's fixture, the numbers being 442, as against 517 for 1912. Among Sydney's contribution are Barley Water, who is engaged in the Goopari Welter, Iramoo Welter, and Lawn Handicap; Penza, in the Iramoo Welter, Winter Handicap, Braybrook Handicap, and July Handicap; John M'Cormack, in the Myross Handicap; and Fiddlestring and Dyor, in the Keilor Hurdle Race and Doutta Galla Hurdle Race.

Nightwatch is not entered for the New Zealand Cup, which means that his owner intends to have him reserved specially for the Derby. The son of Treadmill and Glenviolet is also engaged in the A.J.C. Derby. Though he has had innumerable good three-year-olds Sir Geo. Clifford has only won the N.Z. Derby twice. His first success was not gained until Husbandman won in 1908, and three years later, Masterpiece scored for him.

Advices from New Zealand record the death of The Workman, who received injuries that necessitated his destruction while running in a paddock at Masterton. The Workman was a son of Robinson Crusoe and The Maid, by King of the Ring from Maid of All Work, by King Alfred. In his racing days, he credited his owner, Major F. N. George, with a number of races, and at the stud he got a few fair performers.

The renowned Carbine was represented by a winner at Newmarket on the 22nd ult., when Mr. J. Barrow's b c Equilibrium won the Three Years Old Handicap, 1¼m, in a field of 15. His starting price was 10 to 1, and the trip occupied 2m 31 2-5s.

Some interesting particulars of the early history of that good cross-country horse, Quickshot, by Snapshot from Miss Talker, are furnished by the "S. A. Register." He was bought from Mr. Jack Oakes, who introduced Irvington to Adelaide, and he bred him. The gelding was sold with six others in a truckload that Mr. Oakes was taking to Adelaide for sale. Mr. W. P. Reed, of Hawker, paid £19 a head for the lot, and Quickshot practically cost him nothing, as the others more than paid for him. Quickshot was taken to Strathalbyn and broken in, and also taught to jump, and was first in the section fours at Strathalbyn before he was sent to Hawker to race. Latest advices from Adelaide state that Quickshot, who was a candidate for the V.R.C. Grand National Steeplechase, broke down while taking part in the steeplechase at Morpethville on Monday last.

The ex-Sydney lad W. Huxley had three winning mounts at the Lingfield May meeting—on Mr. H. Nicholl's Best Boy in the Sterbergh Two-year-old Plate, and the same owner's Miss B.B. in the Wray Two-year-old Selling Plate; and he also won the Imperial Handicap on Mr. G. Faber's High Rock, by Rock Sand.

POLO.

GENERAL NOTES.

Polo is flourishing in the Riverina districts just now. The Narrandera club is particularly active, and is preparing to return Narromine club's visit. The team to go westward will be identical with that which journeyed to Harden, and includes:—Mr. A. W. Austin (captain, back), Mr. A. W. Laxton (1), Mr. S. S. Robertson (2), and Mr. H. E. Bullivant (3). Narrandera will also send a B team to the Wagga tournament for junior players, which takes place on July 17 and 19. The following have been chosen:—Mr. A. H. Bullivant (captain), Mr. George Culley, Mr. M. R. M'Cracken, and Mr. J. C. Sides.

It is pleasing to note that Mr. George Culley, who about four months ago met with an accident in the field, is again representing his club.

Some enjoyable games are played in the Wagga district. Last week a Pullitop station team went to The Springs and engaged the Big Springs representatives. The visitors were too good, and won by 5 goals to 1. The sides were:—Pullitop: Mr. S. Jackson (captain), Mr. C. M'Micking, Mr. C. Palmer, and Mr. H. Palmer. Big Springs: Mr. G. Wilson (captain), Mr. E. W. Wilson, Mr. E. H. Wilson, and Mr. K. Cox.

On Saturday The Springs territory was again invaded, the challengers being a team from The Rock, who won very easily by 11 goals to 1, and had the better of the game throughout. Mr. Keith M'Donald, the Harden player, umpired the match. The teams were:—Big Springs: Mr. G. Wilson (captain), Mr. E. W. Wilson, Mr. E. H. Wilson, and Mr. R. Murray. The Rock: Mr. J. Cox (captain), Mr. J. Montague, Mr. A. Montague, and Mr. G. West.

Probably the following district teams will enter for the Wagga B carnival:—Yerong Creek, Pullitop, The Rock, Big Springs, and Henty.

News is to hand from Narromine that the polo men practise diligently on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and that they will continue to do so until the Dudley Cup carnival is over. The practice games are watched with great interest by a large number of spectators.

Muswellbrook club has decided to carry out the Lady Denman Cup contests on July 21 and the following days. Unfortunately the fixture had to be postponed owing to the poor entry received, and it is to be hoped that a better response will be made on this occasion, so that contests worthy of the trophy may be recorded.

The tournament which was set down for July 25 at Coonamble has been abandoned.

Sydney clubmen have had very few opportunities for practice of late owing to rain and sodden grounds. The big carnival is now almost upon us, and every chance should be availed of for solid work.

COURSING.

THE WATERLOO CUP.

Blue Lookout, one of the fastest dogs in the recent Rooty Hill Waterloo Cup, was sold to a Victorian courser for £25. This was a low price for a dog that ran an undecided with a winner, and gave him an unpleasantly close call in the run-off.

One of the unlucky greyhounds in the Cup was Mr. D'Arcy's Dad, the favourite at the finish, who got hung in the slips and lost lengths in his semi-final run against Beaconlight. An offer of £150 is said to have been refused for Dad.

The final course for the Cup, in which Grand Star ran rings round Beaconlight, occupied 43 seconds. The dogs had a fairly long slip, and were on the top of the hill, when Puss escaped.

The settling on the Cup attracted a big attendance at Bateman's Hotel. The popularity of Grand Star's win was shown by the applause that greeted Mr. Clarendon when he received his £240 cheque.

Mr. Asche desired to match his dog Over Always against Grand Star. The latter's owner, who bred both dogs, was not inclined to the match, but if the two met in a public stake he would support Grand Star.

SUCCESSFUL BREEDING.

Crystal Star, the dam of the Waterloo Cup winner, Grand Star, was presented to Mr. T. Clarendon by Mr. H. V. Foy. This bitch and her litter of seven puppies (10 weeks old) were placed under offer to Messrs. Keighery and Bateman for £20. As, however, the latter had illness in their kennels, they contented themselves with two of the whelps, which were afterwards known to fame as King's Budget and Kurnell Belle.

The litter referred to above proved to be one of the best Australia has seen. Grand Star's win and his future engagements have made him a £200 dog. This is not a fancy price, but one that could be realised in the open market. King's Budget, with two good wins to his credit, would, had he kept well, have started a certain first favourite for the Waterloo Cup. His value, when fit and well, may also be assessed at £200 (though that sum would not buy him). For Kurnell Belle (Waterloo Plate winner) £120 could be obtained. Another of this litter Over Always (formerly The Gondolier) was sold to his present owner for £60. Double that sum would not tempt Mr. Asche to part with him. The remaining three of this litter are Fanny Brown (who ran well in the last Cup) and Early Star and Bright Star (untried). These three may be valued at £100.

These estimates of value come to £740. To this may be added about £500 won in stakes by five out of the seven of the Grand Slam—Crystal Star litter, making a total of over £1200. Crystal Star and her puppies would therefore have shown considerable profit on the £20 originally quoted for the lot.

Amongst other notable Australian litters may be mentioned that by Hedley ex Sonnet, which comprised Goldsmith, a classic sire and Waterloo Cup winner; Tennyson, a good performer, and sire of Planet, Mocking Bird, Minstrel Boy, and Sweet Auburn, dam of Duke M'Pherson. The famous "F" litter came from Tam-o'-Shanter and Kathleen, and included Faugh-a-Ballagh, winner of Moonee Valley £1000 stake, Fontenoy, Flageolet, and Folly, all celebrities in their day.

The mating of Parnell and Kilmorna resulted in a litter in which were Kilmainham (who earned £3000 in stud fees, and won the Waterloo and Moonee Valley cups), Dandenong Ranger (M.V. Cup and Waterloo Plate), Fanny Parnell, and the Grafter (Gippsland champions). Such cracks as Bulwark (three Waterloo Cups), Bold Princess, etc., were the progeny of Goldsmith and Bloomer. The brother and sister, Beaconlight and Busybody, are by Carbine Booth ex Black Cherry.

GOLF.

INTERCLUB MATCHES.

COMPETITIONS IN THREE GRADES.

BRILLIANT ROUND BY STURROCK.

For the first time this season matches were played on Saturday in each of the three grades of the interclub competitions. In the A grade, for once in a way, the visiting players held the upper hand, Bonnie Doon scoring a good win at Concord, Killara beating Hunter's Hill, and Dobroyde having an easy win at Parramatta. It must be a record in a way for all of the visiting teams in the A grade to win, as generally lack of local knowledge on their part results in a victory for the home team. The performances of Bonnie Doon and Killara were both meritorious, and in many quarters unexpected, while Dobroyde fulfilled expectations by defeating Parramatta.

CONCORD v BONNIE DOON.

R. B. Godbolt (C) and H. W. M'Lelland (B.D.) led their respective sides, and had a fine struggle, which resulted in a win for Godbolt on the eighteenth green. The first two holes were halved in fives, and Godbolt scored his first success at the third, where he was down in 4 to 5. The short fourth was halved in poor fours, and the next two holes divided in fives. The seventh went to Godbolt in three, and he also won the eighth with a good four, M'Lelland being one more at each hole. At the ninth both men were on the green in three, and M'Lelland holed a long putt for a four, this being his first win.

Godbolt was thus 2 up at the turn, and became 3 up by winning the tenth, where M'Lelland took six. The latter now took a hand, and, with good threes at the next two holes, and a fine four at the thirteenth, drew level. Godbolt won the fourteenth, but M'Lelland, with a perfect two at the next hole, again made the match all square. The sixteenth was halved in fives, and Godbolt again became one up by means of a 7ft putt for a three at the seventeenth, and the eighteenth being halved in sixes, Godbolt won as stated. Both men played good golf considering the wet state of the course, and the heavy rain. M'Lelland approached particularly well, and Godbolt's long game was his strongest point.

T. E. Howard made his first appearance in these matches, playing for Bonnie Doon. He had a slight advantage over W. B. Fairfax going out, and was two up at the turn. He also won the tenth and twelfth in five and four respectively, the eleventh being halved, while Fairfax won the thirteenth with a good four. The fourteenth looked like Fairfax's, but Howard ran down a good putt and secured a half, and even play over the next two holes gave Howard a victory by 3 and 2.

J. M. Arnott (C) found P. S. Jones rather off his game, and took full advantage of the fact, inflicting a decisive beating by 6 and 4. Playing a very solid game, Arnott was three up at the turn, and after halving the tenth and eleventh, won the next three holes in 3, 5, and 5, and secured the match. Arnott was very safe from the tees, and putted very well. P. R. Russell (B.D.) whose putting was at times of a sensational order, was three up on A. Orr at the ninth hole, and eventually won 5 up and 4. Orr not showing his best form. C. M. Garrard (C.) did not play well, and went down easily to P. Ellis, the young Bonnie Doon player, who won by 6 and 4, but F. D. Layton (C.) made amends by beating J. H. Brown by 5 and 3. Layton was 2 up at the turn, and increased his lead by good driving, approaching, and putting coming home.

L. W. Mogg (B.D.) had a good match with A. E. Mills in the early stages, and the pair were all square at the seventh, but from that point Mogg, who was driving a long, but, at times, erratic ball, forged ahead, and won by 6 and 4. R. Aitken (B.D.) had rather an easy win against C. Hope, by 6 and 4, and A. L. Mullens (C.) beat J. Rowley (B.D.) by 5 and 4.

HUNTER'S HILL v KILLARA.

R. Colquhoun, who led the Killara team, scored a notable win against C. L. Mackenzie (H.H.). The latter has long held the reputation of being well-nigh invincible on his own course, and a win against him is seldom achieved by a visiting player. Colquhoun was playing very well, and quickly adapted his game to the conditions of the course. His short game was particularly good, and his putting left little to be desired. He had six threes on his card, which showed he was round in 68 for 17 holes, with one shot out of bounds. He was 1 up on Mackenzie at the turn, but the latter won the tenth and made it all square, but missed an easy putt at the next hole, and Colquhoun again assumed the lead, which he increased by winning the sixteenth by running down a long putt for 3. He was then 2 up with 2 to play, and finished the match by winning the seventeenth hole.

W. A. Windeyer (H.H.) v W. Andrew (K.) had a very good match, with nothing between them until the finish. They were all square at the turn, each having taken, approximately, 38 to this point. Coming home Andrew gained a slight advantage, and was 1 up with 2 to play, but Windeyer came at him and won a fine contest on the last green.

W. P. Maschwitz (K.) started very well against H. R. Lysaght (H.H.), and was 4 up at the sixth hole, but the latter, by a determined effort, reduced the lead to two holes at the turn, and going on made the match all square at the fifteenth, a good recovery. Maschwitz, however, came again, and by winning two of the last three holes scored a good win.

R. T. Armstrong (K.) played solid golf against R. L. Ranken, and won a good match by 3 and 2, but the best game of the day was that between W. Atkins (K.) and J. Kell (H.H.). The former, playing strongly, was 3 up at the turn, but Kell's local knowledge stood him in good stead, and he gradually wore his opponent down until at the last green the position was all square, and they had to play on. The nineteenth hole was well halved in threes, but at the twentieth Atkins topped his drive, which cost him the hole and the match.

Another close match was that between W. C. Denniston (H.H.) and C. E. Graham (K.), where the position was all square and one to play. At the last hole Graham got under a fence with his second, and, after striking it twice, gave up the hole. L. Upward (K.) led C. H. Pearson (H.H.) most of the way, but the latter regained the advantage over the last few holes, and won two up. H. G. Hyde (K.) was three up on J. A. May early in the game, and turned, one up. They were all square at the sixteenth, and Hyde just won on the last green, while L. Howard (K.) was three down to G. Phillips with four to play, but with a great effort won the last four holes of the match. Killara played three men from the B team, viz., Hyde, Upward, and Howard, who each made a creditable first appearance, and materially assisted the side. The team was weakened by the absence of E. J. Springthorpe, J. E. Matthews, and W. W. Lyon.

PARRAMATTA v DOBROYDE.

The Dobroyde team had it all its own way at Parramatta, where the locals, with two men away, could only win one match. W. C. Sturrock led off for Dobrodye against R. Bowman, and by means of practically faultless golf won hole after hole. Bowman halved the third hole, but Sturrock won every hole until the finish. With the exception of missed putts at the third and seventh Sturrock played practically faultless golf, his card reading:—

Out: 3, 3, 4, 4, 3, 3, 5, 4, 4—33
In: 5, 3, 5, 4, 4, 4, 3, 4, 4—36
—69

This is a wonderfully good round, especially when regard is had to the state of the weather and sloppy nature of the ground. It works out as 7 up on the bogey of the course, and is 5 strokes better than F. Popplewell's record of 74, and 7 better than Dr. Brown's amateur record of 76. G. B. Thomas (D) was 1 up on J. Wilson (P) at the turn and won the tenth by putting in off his opponent's ball, while at the next hole, after badly topping a shot, he ran down a long putt and won again. He eventually won by 4 and 2. K. Harrison (D) was out in 39, and was then 2 up on W. H. Cowper, and won by 5 and 4, while C. C. Nelson (D) beat Mac. Cowper easily by 8 and 7. W. E. Bain (D) and A. Gough (P) had a close match, in which Bain was 2 up at the turn, but Gough made it all square at the 12th, and the position remained unaltered at the 14th, after which Bain won the next 3 holes and the match.

E. Lee won the only match for Parramatta, by beating C. G. Davidson, one up, a good win, as the latter was 4 up at the turn. Lee, however, came home very well, and gradually overhauled him, and won on the last green. D. S. Edwards (D) and H. B. Cowper (P) were close together all the way, the former eventually winning by 2 and 1. Parramatta lost two matches by forfeit, which is regrettable.

"B" AND "C" GRADE MATCHES.

The winning clubs in the "B" grade were Killara, Bonnie Doon, and Cammeray. Killara only lost one match against Drummoyne, which was weakened by the absence of H. S. McLelland, while three men of the Killara team had been promoted to the "A" team. Bonnie Doon did not have much difficulty in beating Concord, a task they accomplished by 6 to 3, but Dobroyde and Cammeray had a close match, the visiting Cammeray players scoring a very good win by 5 to 4.

In the "C" grade, Dobroyde beat Drummoyne by 6 to 1, and Manly won against Cammeray by 5 to 4.

BASEBALL.

WET WEATHER INTERFERES WITH GAMES.

It is surprising that baseballers were put off their game on Saturday. The rain fell steadily during the morning, but considering the state of the grounds on the previous Saturday after a week's rain, that was no reason for the players to decide that there should be no play, and this practically without seeing the grounds. The state of the ground at Waverley, where a good game took place, seems to prove that the other enclosures could have been little if any worse. Yet, even at Waverley, one of the A division teams failed to put in an appearance. At Leichhardt the ground was good enough for the players in the early game, but apparently it was too wet for the district division match. Players should remember that the question of ground fees is a serious one to the association, and they should not lightly abandon their obligations in this respect. The four Waverley teams were at the respective grounds for which the matches in which they were concerned were set down, but only one team could find an opponent. It was stated that Waverley II. visited Chatswood, and found the local men absent. However, the latter team states that such was not the case, and that the real reason for not playing was owing to the condition of the ground. Four full teams were present at Petersham Junior ground, but could not play in the absence of the official umpire. Only one district division game was played—Waverley v Petersham; and one in the A division—St. George v Leichhardt.

The Petersham-Waverley match at Waverley, proved a good one, although the various plays ranged from moderate to first-class. The local nine were the better lot in field work on the day, which, without doubt, won them the game. At the same time it would appear that superior batting was the chief contributing factor to their success. As a matter of fact, the number of base hits was the same—9 for each side. Petersham were retired for 0 in their first innings by good double play, started by Eric McElhone at short-stop picking up well and keeping Oram back at second, retiring Andrews at first by an excellent throw, giving Vaughan time to cut off Oram, who had attempted to steal third base. Waverley scored five in their first time at bat. H. Dean started the pitching (in the absence of Wenholz), but could not find the plate; he gave several bases on balls. A safe hit by Vaughan allowed two runners home, and a bad miss by Oram, when he ought to have retired, Thomas at first base, allowed the runner to reach second. A safe hit by Caswell brought two more home; and a "passed ball" enabled Caswell to cross the plate without effort; Petersham's infield became disorganised in this innings, but they did not lose their grip of the game altogether. They scored three runs in their third time at bat, after having two men out. End, Oram, and Andrews reached the home plate, assisted by a fine line hit by Andrews over first base, and really good base-running on the part of all three. An opportunity of scoring more runs in this innings was marred by the bad base-running of Brady, who was forced out at second base on a safe hit by Dean to centre-field, having previously missed an easy steal to that base. Waverley scored 3 in their fourth by good batting—safe hits by Jones to centre, Vaughan to right-field, and a two-bagger by Thomas to left-field. Their only other score was in the eighth innings, when Comber reached home by good base-running after being allowed to reach first base on an error by Doonowa at third.

Petersham made a determined effort to even up matters in their last innings—three runs. Brady hit safely to centre-field, and reached third base on Stacey's error. Dean, Turner, Donowa, and McShane also made safe hits, which tallied Brady and Dean. A feature of this innings was the base-running of McShane, who stole second and third, and got home on a "passed ball."

The fielding of the winners may be classed good all round—very few errors—with McElhone at shortstop (a heady player), and Caswell at second base showing up well. The latter had a lot of work to do, and made no mistakes. Golby caught well, and, after the first innings or so threw extremely well to second base, where a number of "cut offs" were effected. For the losers, End (second base) and Andrews (shortstop) were the best of the infielders; Brady at left-field made a very fine catch in foul territory after a gallant attempt. McShane at rightfield also secured a very lofty hit. The best batters for Waverley were Jones and Vaughan; and for Petersham, Dean, Turner, and McShane.

DISTRICT DIVISION.

The matches set down for Saturday completed the first round in the District Division. The leaders—Lane Cove—were unbeaten, but had one tie. The closest to them are Mosman-North Sydney, who were only defeated once—in the opening game against Petersham. The competition table shows that two teams have played seven matches, four teams six matches, and two teams five matches. It is therefore a matter for congratulation that the method of scoring competition points is on the percentage system, as this method gives a better idea of the relative value of the wins, and does not necessitate all the teams playing an equal number of games to arrive at an equitable calculation.

A charge for admission will be made to Petersham Park on July 5, when the Burwood-Mosman-North Sydney game will be put on there as an early match, instead of being played at Rydalmere. This, with the Petersham-Leichhardt contest, should ensure a large attendance.

SCHOOLS' BASEBALL.

The committee of the P.S.A.A.A. controlling the competition have decided that all matches in both grades shall be played on the "small" diamond. They contend that the ordinary-sized diamond is too large, and therefore too much of a strain of the boys' throwing capabilities. While conceding that this is the case, it would be wise for the committee to reconsider this matter, as it is the opinion of the majority of baseballers that the other extreme has been reached in playing on what is known as the "small" diamond. The latter was undoubtedly suitable to the capacities of the boys when it was first used, but at present a diamond larger than this, but not so large as the ordinary size, would probably meet requirements.

BOWLING.

A BLANK WEEK.

Two or three days of bright sunshine in the middle of the week gave promise that the John Young Shield event would be safely negotiated on Saturday, but a perfect Friday was followed by a resumption of the usual wet conditons, and it now seems that postponement for a couple of weeks at least will be necessary. Next Saturday is booked up for the visit of the metropolitan bowlers to Newcastle under the auspices of Acting President Bell, and as the numerical strength of the party has been increased to eight rinks at the request of the Northern authorities, and will comprise a very strong and representative contingent from all the Sydney clubs, the prosecution of the John Young fixture will be equally impracticable in both centres, as the Northern Association's resources must necessarily be taxed to their fullest extent in order to provide adequate opposition. In the meantime many clubs are anxious to utilise early Saturday opportunities for the settlement of domestic competitions.

Advantage was taken of the brief interlude of fine weather to play the final heat of the City club's President's trophy. Mr. Charles H. Baraby had given a handsome prize for competition among the powerful army of players arranged under the Cook Park banner, and possession of it rested between H. Moses and F. E. Munro. Away back in the dim perspective of the "9 behind" mark, it appeared that the Ashfield crack had been carefully looked after, but the ultimate result proved that anything is possible to a player of real class such as Moses. It was a triumph of skill in the first place, of course, but without the attributes of unflagging perseverance and determination, such positions as regards scores that Moses faced at certain stages of the semi-final and final could not have been surmounted. The handicap was 12 in a game of 40 up, and the backmarker was the more fancied of the two, but so well did Munro play in the early stages of the long game that at the close of the twenty-second end he had scored 18 actual points to Moses' 15. With the handicap, therefore, Munro was 21 to 6, and the game 31 up—rather a sombre prospect for the giver of points. But Moses' alertness and concentration never faltered, and the turning-point came with an adjournment for tea.

Michael Conlon, in those interesting incidents from memory's generous store which we published recently, recalls an instance of a competitor who was playing perfectly in an important match declining to leave the green. The bowler who is not doing well is never averse to a cessation of hostilities for a few minutes—and on the cricket field the batsman who is well set may frequently be observed to decline the risk of change of sight by entering the dull precincts of the pavilion at recess. Whatever the cause, a wonderful change came over this game, for Moses held possession of the mat for 10 successive ends, and added 17 points to nil. The remainder of the game belonged to him, a result which was due to more varied command of shot as well as to sounder judgment. For Munro displayed a marked preference for the fore hand when the better chance obviously lay on the other on several occasions. Like the expert golfer with a well-assorted bag of clubs, Moses had the correct instrument to hand for every emergency, and used it with deadly precision. "Back" or "fore," "drive," "yard-on," or "dead draw," they came alike to this master of the green, and none more generously ceded to him the credit of his skill than F. E. Munro, who did his gallant best, and accepted defeat like a sportsman.

A PARRAMATTA EVENING.

The number of bowlers who enjoy the game is legion, and a very few work very hard in its interests. In that select and unselfish minority none holds a higher place than Mr. R. Goldrick, who has just retired from the secretaryship of the Parramatta Club and as their delegate to the association. In the reforms of the past two or three years particularly he has played a leading part, and members of the association committee have had ample opportunity of observing his depth of thought and unostentatious but convincing method of setting forth his arguments. The scheme of district play, with its consequent linking together of the whole of the State's forces, and the improved arrangements with regard to the various State competitions, owe their introduction primarily to his advocacy, and the bulk of the published support of these matters has fallen from his anonymous pen. His influence in the club circle, therefore, may well be gauged by outsiders, but only Parramatta folk know exactly what splendid work he has done in their behalf. This knowledge was at the back of the sincere and spontaneous demonstration on Saturday evening, when members of the old club bade him a regretful farewell, and presented him with appropriate marks of their appreciation. Never were expressions more general and unanimous, and never more richly deserved. But if Mr. Goldrick has to resign his work on the pennant committee, and in the councils of the game, then the State itself, as well as Parramatta, will be a heavy loser.

It was an evening of signal moment at the headquarters of the old club, and seldom, perhaps, in its long history, which dates from 1881, has more enthusiasm been displayed. For, though the honours of the rink championship, carried thither by the skill of Flook, Megarvey, Quigley, and Morey, are a month or more old, the club took advantage of the occasion to give them a right royal cheer, and in return the famous four gave the club a memento of their accomplishment. With quip and jest and excellent music, a memorable night was spent. Dr. Brown presided, and carried the proceedings through with dash and swing; while the local poet marked the victory in appropriate verse. If ever the weather allows the John Young Shield to be played this season, certain critics opine that it will find a temporary abode in the homely tenement of the old town's bowling green.

NOTES.

The Petersham Club sustained a loss last week by the death of an old stalwart, Mr. John Briton, who for many years stood in the van of the club's progress, both on and off the field of play. As a bowler he was one of the most capable, had a good range of shot, and was an astute captain. He was held in general esteem by the members, and his cheery presence will be missed greatly by visitors to the Petersham headquarters.

Mr. J. Bailey will return to New Zealand next Wednesday by the Victoria, and the Warringah Club will be the poorer for the departure of an excellent bowler and good fellow.

The vice-presidents' trophies at Parramatta were won by Dr. Whiting, J. Paul, H. Davis, and J. Wall, who duly received them at Saturday's function. The winner of the first prize has been bowling but a short time, and has displayed remarkable proficiency.

Following on the tour of the New South Wales team in the United Kingdom last season comes a visit from Canada. The team left home on June 6 in the Victorian, and comprises at least a dozen of the strongest players in Ontario. The itinerary is not nearly so comprehensive as that of the team from Australia, but the visit is arousing great interest in the old land, and the Canadians are expected to make a big effort to atone for the reverses of their two previous tours.

The call of the northern shore has proved very alluring of late years, and the Waverley Club is losing two more of its prominent players in Messrs. Weinberg and Jacobs, who have gone to join Messrs. Macleod, Evans, Morrison and Rummell on the other side of the harbour. It will be learned with regret that Mr. C. Morrison has recently been seriously ill.

The annual report of the Waverley Club is to hand, and forms the record of a bright and successful year, both on and off the green. Its members' roll now reaches 177, and the profits of the past 12 months are £353 5s 11d. During the year 68 games were played with other clubs, and 43 wins resulted to 25 losses, and 4261 points were scored for, as against 3866, thus showing a surplus of 395. The report deals comprehensively with all the various events of the season, which have been published in our columns from time to time. The close of the year will be marked next Saturday, when 12 rinks will be engaged on the green under the leadership of the president and secretary. It is worthy of mention that the ex-Lord Mayor, Mr. G. T. Clarke, who does not participate so frequently as of yore, will be engaged. He has the distinction of being the only honorary life member of the club.

Two erstwhile clubmates, Messrs. M. Moran and J. Hardy, had the misfortune to meet with serious accidents, but are now on the road to recovery. The former lost a joint from one of the fingers of his left hand, and Mr. Hardy sustained an injury to his leg which laid him aside for nearly four weeks.

CRICKET.

PROPOSED UMPIRES' ASSOCIATION.

The formation of an Umpires' Association in Sydney is an idea that appears to meet with the cordial approval of cricketing enthusiasts generally. It was the subject of a motion at the last meeting of the New South Wales Cricket Association, and although there would appear to have been some difference of opinion as to whether the proposed Umpires' Association should be a separate body or one attached to the association, it was ultimately decided that it should stand by itself, and, further, that steps should be immediately taken to bring about its formation. Thus, not only has the association given its sanction, but it has also taken the initiative in giving it a start.

The general feeling is that such a body should be in the interests of the game, especially if it be well managed. It is intended that, by regular meetings, it should be the means of imparting instruction on the rules and of elucidating difficult or knotty points in their interpretation, and in that way raising the standard of umpiring. In the making of a good umpire, two essentials at least are amenable to cultivation, viz., a knowledge of the rules of the game, and experience in their interpretation. The latter, of course, must always remain a matter of experience, but, even so, the shortest route to perfection will be along the path of knowledge. A man may know the rules thoroughly, and have the solution of every knotty point at his finger-tips, but for all that he may be a bad umpire. On the other hand, he cannot make a good umpire unless he be thoroughly conversant with the rules. Self-evident as this latter statement must seem, and notwithstanding the commonsense simplicity of the rules of cricket, it is quite certain that many of the mistakes that are all too frequently made in our grade cricket are due to a lack of familiarity with the rules. You cannot teach an umpire impartiality or common sense, or untiring vigilance, or even promptitude in giving his decisions, but you can make him thoroughly conversant with the rules, and this is one of the expected benefits of the Umpires' Association. Hesitancy is one of the worst failings in an umpire. The man who knows the rules thoroughly, and, moreover, knows that he knows them, is bound to exercise more confidence and more promptitude in his interpretations.

One of the most fruitful sources of error is the l.b.w. rule. The rule itself is very simple, for it is only when the ball pitches in a line between the wickets—i.e., between two parallel lines drawn from the outer edges of one set of stumps to the outer edges of the other set—that the batsman can legitimately be given out, and then only when the ball, if it had not been obstructed, would, in the opinion of the umpire, have hit the wicket. A good deal, of course, is left to the judgment of the umpire in the second part of this rule, but nothing short of ignorance of the laws of direction can explain the cheerful way in which many batsmen are given out l.b.w. to bowlers bowling round the wicket. Half-an-hour's study of the angles involved in this procedure should convince the majority of umpires of the well-nigh impossibility of such a decision being just to the batsmen.

Last season the writer witnessed a splendid illustration of dubiety on the part of a first-grade umpire as to whether certain balls were wides or not. The batting side was anxious to score quickly; a tall man and a short man were batting. The bowling side was equally anxious to keep down the scoring, and one bowler in particular made it his endeavour to just keep within the wide limit. As a matter of fact, it was only when bowling to the tall man that his deliveries came within the wide limit; the tall man could just reach them, whereas, the short man was unable to do so, and, consequently, to the latter practically every ball was legitimately a wide, although of precisely the same length and direction as those bowled to the tall man. Needless to add, they all went unchallenged.

It is no uncommon thing to see a bowler dragging his foot on to the line which marks the bowling crease without being penalised in any way for so doing. On the other hand, umpires are usually very strict when the batsman gets his foot on the line marking the popping-crease. He is promptly given out "stumped" if he does not keep some part of his foot behind the line. Umpires might with advantage be a little more strict with bowlers in this connection.

These, and many other such points, are the kind of things to be threshed out amongst themselves by the umpires at their periodical meetings, and there is every reason to expect that a more uniform and adequate interpretation of the rules will result from their discussions. Of course, we have a few capable umpires, but it is the general expectation that this movement will add greatly to their numbers, as experience in other branches of sport, especially football, has readily proved. The appointment of umpires, which, of course, should remain with the association, should be made an easier and more congenial task than in the past. Possibly, a grading of umpires may result just as obtains in the "old country"—though that grading is done by the county captains in committee—but in any case the formation of this association should greatly benefit not only the umpires and the association, but also the players and the game in general.

LACROSSE.

THE INTERSTATE MATCH.

The New South Wales team to play at Brisbane on Saturday has undergone several alterations, and the following players will leave to-night:—D. W. Cross, A. Dean, C. Thomas, J. Turnbull, A. Thomas, Greenberg, R. Langker, A. Young, H. Mallett, R. Rowe, C. Shepherd, Allen, Noble, H. College, and P. A. Singleton. The team has done some training together, and the attack division should hold their own, but the inclusion of another experienced defence man would have been welcomed. D. W. Cross was elected captain, and C. Thomas vice-captain. Cross has successfully led the Petersham team, and is an astute leader as well as a skilful player. Interstate contests with Queensland were played so far back as 1885, but in the nineties the fixtures were suspended. However, in 1905 a resumption of the games took place, and they are now regarded as annual contests.

The Queensland team, like our own, will include many players new to interstate lacrosse. Besides the match on Saturday, New South Wales will engage the next XII. on Monday. It was originally intended to arrange a match at Toowoomba, but as no reply has been received from that quarter, it is probable that the match will not take place. The school team to accompany the State team to Brisbane, which is under the management of Mr. Gallagher, is as follows:—A. Ackland, R. Hill, H. Fuller, A. E. Yeates, S. Edwards, W. Walker, C. M'Millan, A. Porter, E. Hilis, W. Jones, V. Heine, W. Churchill, H. Smith, L. Moore, J. Simpson, W. Knisbel, V. Barnett, R. Barnett. The boys will play the early match to the interstate fixtures on Saturday and Monday.

The Brisbane schoolboys visited Sydney last year, and they were successful in both engagements. Their stickwork was splendid, and they showed a really good knowledge of the game.

On Monday a practice match between the New South Wales representatives and a scratch team was played at the Domain. The State team won rather easily, still the match was a useful outing. Langker, Dean, and Mallett, together with Singleton and Young, put in some fine work, and they form a combination of players capable of accepting opportunities and skilful in goal-shooting. Cross played a good game at centre, and fed his attack well, and Shepherd did a lot of good things, and has proved that he is a speedy, reliable player. Jack Turnbull played splendidly, passing well, and combining neatly with the homes. Taken altogether, slight faults were noticeable, but they will be rectified.

MOTORING.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF AUSTRALIA.

The Roads and Tours Committee of the club met on Monday evening for the purpose of allotting speeds and observers in connection with the speed-judging contest for members to be held on Saturday afternoon. About a dozen entries were received.

This competition calls for a particular display of speed-judging on the part of the competitor when driving over a measured distance at a certain speed, neither of which are made known to him until immediately prior to the start. Speedometers and clocks must, of course, be properly obscured or disconnected. A seat must be reserved in such car for the observer, and competitors may leave the club rooms, where they will be supplied with particulars of the route and the average speed at which it is to be covered, at any time between 2 and 3 o'clock. The winner, who will be the competitor who drives his car over the course at a pace nearest to that allotted to him, will receive a gold medal, and certificates will be issued to those drivers who fill the second and third places in the event.

Mr. Fred. Walsh has given notice of his intention to resubmit, at the monthly meeting of members to be held at the club rooms tomorrow evening, in a new form his motion with regard to the admission of lady members to the club which was withdrawn by consent at the last meeting. The motion is:—"That the following be bylaw 15A of the club: 'That ladies being relatives of members of the club or being owners of pleasure cars, may be enrolled by the Elections Committee on the nomination of two members as lady members subject to the payment of an annual subscription of a guinea in advance and shall be regarded at pleasure of the General Committee as entitled to the privileges of membership other than those attached to the club house and the government and management of the club.'"

Mr. W. C. H. Lippmann will also move,—"That the rules of the club be amended by the addition of the following clause to sub-section D of section 1 of article 3:—'Other persons also may be appointed by the general committee as honorary members of the club for a period of not more than one month on the nomination of a full member of the club.'"

Before his recent departure for Europe Mr. E. E. Wagstaff, vice-president of the Automobile Club of Victoria, and a member also of the Automobile Club of Australia, wrote to the executive of each club making certain suggestions with regard to the conditions governing the contests for his trophy, to be competed for in connection with the series of reliability contests, conducted jointly by the two clubs, between Sydney and Melbourne, and vice-versa, alternately. However, he is not binding the clubs in any way as far as the trophy is concerned, and a recent communication from the Victorian body states that a meeting of the sports committee of that club is to be called next month to discuss the matter; and, no doubt, consideration will shortly be given it by the roads and tours committee of the New South Wales body, and definite conditions to govern these all-important contests decided upon.

MOTOR CYCLING.

CLUB NOTES.

MOTOR CYCLE CLUB.

The club members experienced keen disappointment on Saturday, when it was announced that the winter tour, which was to have been held under "secret" conditions, would have to be postponed until such time as the southern roads presented a more favourable surface. The entries closed with a list of 29 names, and in addition 25 names were handed in as spectators, including Messrs. A. E. Morton, J. Witham, A. Brockenshire, S. Smidmore, W. Tormey, and R. N. Beale. The prizes in all amount to £10 10s, and the competitions committee will meet next week to decide when, and in what manner the event may be held.

The next event to be held is the opening contest for the Zenith Cup. These competitions, comprising an economy contest, a speed-judging contest, and a reliability trial, will be held in connection with the trophy, and as these events will take place under the auspices of the Auto-cycle Association, entries will be received from all riders who are affiliated to this body.

Suitable clubrooms, situated in the Hardware-chambers, Pitt-street, have been secured, and now the members will have every convenience at their disposal, including a garage at the side of the building. A social hall, reading, writing, card, and billiard rooms—the latter with three tables—are being fitted up, and lockers also are being provided for the members. The official opening will, in all probability, take place on July 8.

A committee meeting will be held in the new club rooms on Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Nominations for a committee-man and delegate to the Auto-cycle Association are invited. The club hon. secretary, Mr. J. A. Fair, has still a number of tickets available for the second annual ball, to be held next month, although the demand up to the present has been far beyond expectations.

CANBERRA CLUB.

The first open hill-climb of the club, which was to have been held under the auspices of the Auto-cycle Association, on Artillery Hill, National Park, on Saturday, was again postponed, owing to the unrideable condition of the roads. Weather permitting, the event will take place on Saturday, and the club hon. secretary, Mr. A. Levi, wishes to notify competitors that, unless they are on the mark at 3 o'clock, they will forfeit their right to take part in the event.

KOOKABURRA CLUB.

Although the holiday tour over the Blue Mountains was postponed owing to the bad weather, three club members, Drs. Shepherd, Sands, and Mr. Owen, undertook the journey. Joining Mr. Arthur Biden, the representative of the club in the second trial for the N.S.C. trophy, at Mount Victoria, the party journeyed to Bathurst, via Jenolan Caves and Oberon. After numerous falls and discomforts, they reached Sydney on Monday evening smothered in mud. Between Oberon and Bathurst, a road which is deemed impassable by Bathurst motorists at the present time, an open water course over two feet deep was encountered, and through this the riders had to charge, arriving at the other side soaked to the skin.

The experiences of Mr. Biden in Saturday's trial were even more strenuous. Starting last out of a section of eight riders in the twin cylinder class, he was placed second to Mr. O. H. Cherry in the sum total of three riders who completed the course out of the whole field, which included a number of side-car and single cylinder machines. All the competitors lost points, and, on his journey, Mr. Biden noticed many places where the riders had dismounted unceremoniously.

On Saturday the club will hold a hill-climbing championship for machines with an engine capacity not exceeding 500 c.c. The competitors will stay overnight at Windsor, and, on Sunday, a round trip, via Kurrajong Mountain, will be made.

CYCLING.

N.S.W. CYCLISTS' UNION.

Half-a-dozen additional entries have been received for the Continental Goulburn-Ashfield race. This Olympic trial, promoted by the Redfern Club, under the auspices of the union, will be held on Saturday, September 6. So far there have been no withdrawals. At the next council meeting of the union, to be held at the Sports Club on Wednesday evening, July 9, the committee, to supervise the collection of funds and other matters in connection with the despatch of two riders to represent Australia in the games to be held in Berlin in 1916, will be selected.

The draw for the first round of the Dunlop Interclub Premiership competition will take place at the Sports Club this evening, and any member of the union who wishes to attend may do so.

The Newcastle Amateur Club intend holding an open Speedwell 50 miles road race from Singleton to Newcastle, under the auspices of the union, on or about August 18. This event is open to those metropolitan and country riders who are affiliated with the controlling body.

The condition of the roads during the week-end precluded any possibility of the entrants in the big events doing any hard work, and the riders were again confined to the limits of the asphalt tracks.

FOOTBALL.

THE RUGBY UNION GAME.

THE MAORI MATCHES.

Saturday's game between the Maoris and a Metropolitan fifteen at the University Oval gave ample evidence of the improved standard of play existing in Sydney. That a team selected from Metropolitan players which did not include members of the State team, and also members of two of the leading teams—University and North Sydney—was able to extend the visitors, bears out this statement.

The Maoris are representative of interprovincial football in the Dominion, the majority of the team having played for their respective provinces. Therefore, it is distinctly gratifying to know that our second string put up such an even game. The Australian side which will tour New Zealand at the end of the season should be a strong one, and although the tour will be a strenuous one, from the travelling and playing viewpoint, the combination should win the majority of its matches.

The forwards of the Metropolitan team were even more vigorous than those of the representative side, and one or two of Saturday's pack should be in the first team. There was very little wanting in the play of Hill and Duffy, and both men would be an acquisition to a touring side. The former put in a tremendous amount of hard, strenuous work, and Duffy showed headiness and brilliancy above the ordinary. O'Donnell would also be a better "hooker" than Tremain. However, all three may yet win a place.

In the loose dribbling rushes the home side had much the better of matters, and, aided by the unwillingness of the Maori backs to go down on the ball, made several serious inroads on the line. The local players were more sure-footed than the visitors, whose feet slipped from under them when they endeavoured to increase their pace. The Maoris handled the ball excellently in those passing rushes which were attempted, and Grace showed himself a fine player, both in attack and defence. The treacherous ground handicapped them considerably, but their backs gave promise of being something out of the ordinary, if only a fine day and ground could be secured for a game.

As a whole, the Metropolitan backs were not good. Nicholson tried hard, but was much too small, and several times was just bundled out of the way. McIlmurray and Cruise showed poor defence, but Bolden, Buist, Westropp, and McDowell shaped very well all round. Buist had a very fine opponent in Ryland, and performed with credit against him. The Maori wing put in several runs which, on a fine day, would probably have brought points for his side. Wood and Montgomery also shaped well; the half-back, making his first appearance, proved most useful to his side.

Among the forwards Hia Hia and Martin were always to the fore, and Jacobs and French were also good. One could not help noticing the fine physique of several of the younger members of the Maori team.

In their return match against New South Wales on Monday, the Maoris showed to much better advantage than in any of their previous games. The excellence of the showing of the Welsh back, both in attack and defence, with a greasy and heavy ball, was quite the best exhibition that one has seen for many years. The two wing three-quarters particularly displayed that dash and opportunism which put the finishing touches to the try-getting movements by the inside backs. Both men will be hard to displace, and with such powerful sprinters as Wogan, Dwyer, Tasker, and with Wood or Walker inside, the rearguard is better than any that has represented the State in recent years.

The forwards also showed dash and brilliancy in the loose, which for three-parts of the game beat the Maoris badly. During the other period the Maoris were in the ascendency, due to some excellent play by French and Woods, ably backed by the rest of the team. Ryland and Woods were star backs, the former's running being very powerful and fleet. The game bristled with exciting incidents, and was characteristic of the Maoris' ambition to play bright, open football. Despite the bad weather and ground conditions, the play in all the matches has been of a high standard, and the native New Zealanders will always be welcome to this city while they play that class of football.

University were much the better team in their game with North Sydney at the University Oval on Saturday. The absence of Gilsson and Jacobs from the Shoremen's three-quarter line seriously handicapped the side, as both centres were weak. In the first half the sides were equal, not so much by reason of the superior play of North Sydney as by the bad tactics adopted by University. The Collegians attempted many passing rushes, which, with wet and heavy ball and the players standing still when receiving the pass, could only lead to one result—disaster. The Red and Blacks dribbled out of danger and into 'Varsity territory time after time.

In the second spell better wet-weather football was played. Backs and forwards kicked the ball instead of picking it up, and Harden's try was a gem, his pace and determination beating the other side badly. Four tries were added in quick succession by University in taking advantage of a weak spot in the Shoremen backs, which was always apparent. Several good chances in the first half were wasted by wrong tactics, and it was just as well for North Sydney that it was so, or else the margin would have been much greater.

In the Metropolitan union's competition the contest for a position in the first four is most interesting. Eastern Suburbs and Newtown seem almost certain to win a place, with North Sydney, University, South Sydney, and Glebe struggling for the other two positions. University's defeat of North Sydney last Saturday makes the premier's position stronger, and although commencing to strike form late, Glebe team may yet have an important bearing on the decision of the premiership. On Saturday the meeting of Eastern Suburbs and South Sydney is being looked forward to. Glebe and North Sydney should also provide an interesting game.

THE RUGBY LEAGUE GAME.

THE NEW ZEALANDERS' TOUR.

A VICTORY AND A DEFEAT.

After visiting Newcastle and Queensland where a defeat and several successes were met with, the New Zealanders returned to Sydney on Friday to play two matches against New South Wales on Saturday and Monday. The home team had won the two previous games, but in the last two honours were easy, each side gaining a victory.

That the New Zealanders thoroughly deserved their victory on Saturday in their third match against New South Wales few will deny. Every player appeared determined to do his utmost to achieve success, and as a consequence New South Wales were beaten by a good all-round team. The visitors played their traditional game: the forwards were ever on the ball, and the half-backs and centres made it their object to frustrate combination on the part of their opponents. At half-back Bradley and Manning worked together with rare combination and skill, and played the parts of spoilers to perfection, yet at every opportunity they passed with excellent judgment, and the three-quarters generally owed their opportunities to the all-round brilliance of Manning.

In football it is an oft-quoted paradox that the best defence is attack, and New Zealand never demonstrated this better than by their tactics on Saturday, which brought about the downfall of the Welshmen by a margin of six points—a result which confounded the enthusiastic adherents of the wearers of the light blue. The game was a good one, though the mistakes of the home backs were numerous, and appearances pointed to the fact that they were holding their opponents too cheaply. The great efforts which marked the work of the Blue six in their previous matches were absent. The advent of P. Williams in the front row of the Black vanguard made a wonderful difference to the side, and to his presence as "hooker" must be attributed a large measure of their success. The ex-Auckland and Wigan champion displayed remarkably good condition, especially in view of the fact that he only arrived from England during the week, and was called into service at the last moment.

Although New South Wales put up a strenuous contest, there was an unbalanced tone about the whole of their back play. There was not the usual finish and sprightliness in their movements, whilst several of the more prominent men displayed a lethargy which was apparent throughout the game. In the first half particularly the finish of the Blue backs left much to be desired. Early in the game Broomham did not display any of his customary resource. On several occasions flank-to-flank movements by the three-quarters placed him in possession with a ruck of opponents crowding him towards touch. But that well-judged little cross-kick which has served him so well in the past was never thought of, and thus golden opportunities were missed. Deane was also right off his game, and Messenger was little better, so that at times the work of the New South Wales centres was slovenly. Fortunately for the home side, the natural defensive abilities of two or three forwards came to the rescue, and kept the New Zealanders' score within reasonable bounds. But the power of the home team lay with Howard Hallett at full-back. Play, with the Blacks persistently aggressive, all went to the South Sydney champion, and never once did he falter. He shaped grandly, his play being featured by remarkably accurate fielding and superb line-kicking.

It is probable that the Welshmen had never previously experienced such sure tackling as that displayed by the New Zealanders on Saturday. There were occasions when the Blue passing machinery was put into operation, and then the spectators were on the tip-toe of expectancy; but, except on rare occasions, the man in possession was not allowed to travel very far.

Bradley, as scrum half for the visitors, made his Sydney debut in that position, and came through with flying colours. He made the brilliant Manning an ideal partner. The five-eighth had a happy day. His opponents did not know what to do with him, and he was a continual source of trouble—a will-o'-the-wisp. Halloway and his colleagues are master hands in defence, but they failed to keep the Hawkes Bay champion's manoeuvring in check. As an initiator of attacking movements he stands alone, and his all-round skill and resource are equal to that shown by William or Vivian Farnsworth at their best.

The New South Wales forwards were equal on general play to their opponents, but in the matter of gaining possession were clearly outclassed. However, had they been less persistent in the open, notably Courtney and Sullivan, the adverse score would undoubtedly have been larger.

At half-back Halloway and Norman played determinedly to the finish in face of tremendous odds. Norman's cuts through in the early part of the game were delightful, but his own success on these occasions seemed to affect him, as badly-judged passes marked several of his clever breaks.

The All Black forwards scrummaged with great success, and in the loose Hayward and King were real champions. To a man they supported their backs when occasion arose.

The visitors' three-quarters all did well, with Kelly the star performer. He gave a brilliant display, his handling of the ball and backing up of Manning being very clever. He is a powerful kick, and in defence his tackling was typical of the man. Du Vall, at full-back, was unreliable on opening up, but he gradually got into his stride, and played a very sound game subsequently.

By their brilliant victory over New Zealand on Monday New South Wales amply revenged the reverse which they experienced on Saturday, and their all-round superiority was fittingly reflected in the final score of 34 points to 10. The reversal in the form of New South Wales as compared with that displayed in Saturday's game was most marked. However, such happenings are not altogether uncommon in Rugby football, and quite lately the Blacks succumbed to the Northern Districts team at Newcastle. On that occasion the countrymen played all over their formidable opponents, and administered a crushing defeat. The victorious thirteen, or rather the best of them, with added strength from the Western Districts, met a metropolitan side on Monday, and were soundly defeated by 18 points to nil. On that form it could be reasonably argued that the City Thirteen could defeat the State "reps."

The New Zealanders have shown themselves to be a combination possessed of possibilities, owing to the individual brilliancy of two or three of their members; but as a well-balanced, high-class side they are inferior to the home representatives. Though they fully reproduced the dash and traditional pluck of previous Dominion touring teams, they failed to produce that clever combination which marks the play of a great side.

The visitors played four matches against New South Wales, the results being 17 to 15, 31 to 12, 24 to 10 against them, and 17 to 11 in favour of them. The aggregate scored by New South Wales was 93 against their opponents' 54. A review of these figures will show that as an attacking force the Welshmen were far superior to their opponents. As a defensive side the Blacks performed gallantly, and throughout the tour showed thorough soundness in this phase of the games. Even in the closing stages of Monday's game, when an overwhelming defeat confronted them, they gamely responded, and met charge after charge of the meteoric Blues in a characteristic "do or die" fashion.

The Welshmen were in their happiest mood, and delighted the 35,000 spectators with football of the highest order; they punctuated their play by brilliant individualism (by Cann, Frawley, Broomham, and Deane), and superb combination by both backs and forwards. Deane played the game of his life, and his sensational run from his own 25 after cleverly intercepting a careless pass by an opponent was a thrilling effort, and the way he beat the full-back in the final dash for the line was reminiscent of the resource which marked his form during the Welshmen's tour of the Dominion last season. Frawley was another who electrified the crowd by his brilliant individualism. The speedy Eastern Suburbs three-quarter made one exceptionally fine dash, running from about half way and scoring after outdistancing several expectant tacklers.

The Blue forwards rose to the occasion, and played grandly. They were an ideal pack, quick on the heel, speedy in backing up in attacking movements, and they dribbled finely when play became loose. They were vastly superior to their opponents in all-round play, though King held his own with them.

At half-back the victors were admirably served by Halloway and Norman, the former particularly playing a resourceful game. His cleverness in working the blind side and combining with Frawley was most conspicuous, and on those occasions he worked the Blues into the scoring zone. Norman was good, though not brilliant, but the heavy going greatly militated against the fast footwork which generally features the Annandale five-eighth's work. The Blues' three-quarters on the attack gave the most sparkling display of the season, and, despite the ball being heavy and greasy, handled with unfailing accuracy. Messenger, at centre, harmonised well with his colleagues, and was great in defence, but individually he was not so ubiquitous as of old. Hallett, at full-back, cleared and fielded with is usual cleverness, but his tackling, though good, was far from being as effective as that shown by him on Saturday. The centres found it necessary to support him on several occasions.

The star performers in the visitors' backs were Kelly, Ifwerson, and Manning in attack, with Bradley performing ably in defence.

The early match on Saturday produced individual football of a very high order, and demonstrated that the countrymen are not slow to learn their lessons. Their smart all-round work revealed that the tutoring of the city men is bearing good results. Interest was taken in the meeting of the Northerners and Westerners on account of the splendid form shown by the former against New Zealand recently. The men from Newcastle hardly reproduced the same dash that marked their play against the All Blacks, nevertheless they gave a very fine display, and showed that the side possesses some good individual talent. The diminutive half-back, Bell, played brilliantly, and opened up the game from every conceivable position. Beeton, at stand-off half, and Scully brothers, Coleman, and Dwyer, on the third line, also performed well. Bradberry and Grahame shone out among the forwards. For the Westerners, Curran, the lusty forward, was always prominent, and was easily the best man on the field.

The Metropolis were altogether too clever for their less-experienced opponents in the early match on Monday. The fine combination of Johnson, Cubitt (who was particularly brilliant and resourceful), and Thompson, with the help of an alert pack, was responsible for 18 points being registered in the city men's favour in the opening spell. After the interval the Combined Country worked together more harmoniously, and the forwards obtaining possession gave the clever Coyne, Beaton, and the Scullys an opportunity of testing the Metropolitan defence. However, they were not rewarded with a score, but their aggressiveness kept their opponents from augmenting their half-time advantage. It was a good, hard game, with the cleverer side the victors.

FIXTURES.

SATURDAY, JUNE 28.
FIRST GRADE.

Newtown v Annandale, Wentworth Park; Glebe v Eastern Suburbs, Agricultural Ground; Western Suburbs v Balmain, Birchgrove Oval; South Sydney v North Sydney, Sports Ground.

THE AUSTRALIAN GAME.

NEWTOWN STILL WINNING.

The wet weather again made its unwelcome appearance on Saturday up till midday, and the grounds were very sloppy. The state of the Australian Football Ground resulted in the South Sydney-Balmain match being postponed to a future date. Sydney, who were favoured with the bye, were in a state of placid contentment, but the remaining four clubs were anything but certain as to whether play would be proceeded with. Strong teams, however, turned up in each instance, and as practically no rain fell during the afternoon, players suffered no inconvenience beyond the difficulty experienced in handling a greasy and sodden ball. The weather conditons this season have been the worst experienced since the inauguration of the League, in 1903.

At Hampden Oval a fair-sized gathering witnessed a good tussle in the concluding stages between Paddington and East Sydney. Paddington secured a good grip of the game during the first two quarters of play, and to this fact their victory may be attributed. The Easterners played in their best form during the pen-ultimate and final quarters of play, and had made up much leeway by half-time. While the Easterners were strong in attack, especially in the final term, Paddington merit praise for their defensive work during that period, and they eventually won by a margin of 19 points. Gough, Parr, Mahony, Leplastrier, Watts, McCann, and Gorman were to the fore for the winners, and D. McConville, McInerney, Stewart, Williams, and Welch were East Sydney's best players.

The meeting of North Sydney and Newtown at Moore Park was probably not regarded as of great importance by followers of the game in general. As a contest, however, it far exceeded expectations. Every point was hard won, and up to within the last few minutes of play the result was doubtful. It was one of those games that leave nothing but pleasant recollections alike to spectators and players, beyond, of course, the losers' tinge of regret. The sustained dash and pace of Newtown, their quickness in disposing of the ball, and their admirable ruck play were important factors in securing victory. North Sydney were less in unison than their opponents, and towards the close of the game their efforts became relaxed and disjointed. But in individual effort they were exceedingly good. The high-marking of Filgate, combined with his dashing and skilful play in defence, the tenacity of Beatson and Spencer, and the fine play of Goldsmith, Kitt, Robertson, and Shannon throughout the strenuous game were bright features. All the sparkle of individuality did not, however, belong to North Sydney. Hortin's display was among the best he has ever shown in Sydney. Davis was invaluable, his fine ruck play being of great service. Swindells showed out grandly, especially at critical moments, and Blackburn and Ellis played like veterans. Munro, Meadows, A. Provan, O'Gorman, and Quested were also prominent on a side that, as a whole, played admirably.

That the game has many adherents outside Sydney and Broken Hill in the mother State was amply evidenced at the League's meeting on Friday evening, when applications for affiliation were received from the following country associations:—Lockhart (four clubs), Culcairn (four clubs), Barellan (five clubs), and the South-western District (five clubs). Affiliation was granted in each case. Associations also exist in Wagga Wagga, Ganmain, and the south-eastern districts. A request for a metropolitan team to visit Young this season was also received.

The Ariah Park Club has notified the League that they will journey to Sydney and play Sydney Club in an early game to the South Australian-New South Wales second grade fixture on July 12, and Paddington on July 19.

According to letters received by the League from the Melbourne University and Carlton clubs, a visit from each is highly probable this season. Carlton have not visited Sydney since 1906, and Melbourne University have yet to join the ranks of visiting interstate club teams to Sydney under the auspices of the present League. Fitzroy and South Melbourne are also said to be contemplating a trip to Sydney at the close of the present season.

Mr. W. Strickland has accepted the position of hon. coach to the League and second Grade Association umpires. Mr. Strickland, who had been unable to participate in football matters since his arrival in Sydney some few months back, is now evincing interest, and his experience in coaching both to umpires and players should be of great benefit, seeing that he was such a prominent figure in Victorian football circles during the past 20 years or more.

The manager of the Balmain team which visited Duntroon on the 14th instant and played a team from the Royal Military College, presented a glowing report at the League's meeting as to the football prowess and hospitality of the collegians' team. To score 114 points to Balmain's 25 is indeed a fine performance, and goes far to bear out the visitors' contention that the Federal capital contains the best team in New South Wales. Efforts are being made to secure a visit to Sydney from the collegians; and as a Rugby team from Duntroon visited Sydney on the King's Birthday there should be no reason why the players of the Australian code should not be extended the same privilege.

At the League meeting on Friday evening it was decided that the field, boundary and goal umpires officiating at each match be instructed to report all cases of unfair or rough play that may come under their notice. The League is to commended for its efforts to nip a harmful practice in the bud.

THE ASSOCIATION GAME.

THE QUEENSLANDERS' TOUR.

NEW SOUTH WALES DEFEATED.

The Queensland representatives opened their tour at Newcastle on Saturday, when they met the representatives of the Newcastle district in the schools' and senior grades. Though the Novocastrians prevailed, it is only fair to state that the visitors hold the advantage in both games, but unfortunately their "luck" was of a negative quantity. The closeness of the final scores in each engagement is indicative of the slight gain finishing effect produced for the Northerners, a quality which for the nonce was absent from Queensland's display.

It is perhaps peculiar to record a winning side as consisting of what may be termed several deficiencies, for, apart from the excellent goal game of Elliott and some solid defence and initiative by F. and D. Williams and J. Thomson, the Newcastle side did not appear very overpowering. Of the forwards, Acres shone as an opportunist. Williams ably helped him, and had there been no Acres the chances of a Novocastrian victory would have been fairly remote. Clarke and Watson were passable, but Thorpe and Thompson were hardly up to the requisite standard.

The strength of the visitors lies in their halves, the whole line being thoroughly effective, Peebles especially playing well. The backs are solid, sure-footed performers, and have a good knowledge of combination. A fine third string is available in Bosworth, who is managing the school boy combination. The forwards are big, fast men, and included several of the noted Ipswich performers who materially helped in the only defeat of New South Wales in Queensland last season. On the team's showing at Broadmeadow, the attribute the forwards lack is skill to finish a move goalwards, but too much stress must not be laid on that opinion, as in many cases Wade was a delinquent insofar as hanging on was concerned, and Elliott surely can testify to the aim of the remaining four.

Quite the best interstate game yet played in the metropolis was the outcome of the meeting of Queensland and New South Wales at Epping on Monday. The visitors held sway up to within 20 minutes of time, and although New South Wales gained a temporary ascendency, and Masters put on two goals during that period, a timely recovery rendered it possible for Queensland to stave off all attacks and finish deserved victors in the first interstate game they have won in Sydney since 1890.

Five goals were scored during the match, the final scores being Queensland 3, N.S.W. 2; and, oddly enough, those figures were recorded in the two interstate matches played at Brisbane in 1898, one victory going to Queensland and the other to New South Wales. Three of Monday's five goals were scored in the first half by Queensland, and two in the second half by New South Wales. Possibly the best goal was a magnificent "pick-up" by Wade from a corner by Verrall, Geering having no chance, though Masters' first goal for New South Wales was, perhaps, equally as brilliant. The best shots came from Grogan and A. Jones, but the wizard of the goal from the north (Aldred) was equal to clearing them.

So far as actual play and combination are concerned, the honours go to the victors. The strength of the side lay in the halves—Peebles, Taylor, and Gibb—while the attack combined with facility, and were assisted by a good pivot in Wade. The last line of defence was sound, and Cerberus uncanny. The local team suffered by comparison during the first section, the backs being very feeble, but Moore rallied his men splendidly in the second half, and attack set off by counter-attack kept the large attendance interested all the time and in a constant roar of approval. The outstanding figures in the match were Aldred, Masters, Wade, and Herron. Those players seemed to be always in the picture, and by their sustained efforts firmly established themselves as favourites. Aldred was a revelation, and his exhibition will live long in the recollections of those who witnessed the game. His conversion of dangerous shots into channels for attacking moves by his side, his agility for such a big man, and his versatility in his art were subjects for favourable comment. Geering did not attain such a standard, but in a great measure justified his selection.

The victorious backs in the first half dwarfed the local men, but in the second honours were easy, though Hughes' usual brilliancy was not so marked as in his club games. Moore was as effective as any half on the field, but his line of assistance was hard-pressed by the Queensland forward combination. Some fine work was displayed by the inside trio—Masters, Jones, and Herron—of the State team, but the wingers—Blake and Grogan—were well looked after by the visiting halves, although a wiser policy would have been to make greater use of Grogan than was the case in the second half. Wade, Verrall, and Burns were the "destroying angels" in the victors' vanguard, and efficient service came from Ross and Potts. The game was free from roughness, played in a splendid spirit, and Referee W. Lincoln excelled himself.

The Queensland schoolboy combination displayed a surprisingly expert knowledge of the code, and, despite their somewhat diminutive stature, will take no end of beating. The Newcastle boys played a very even game, and, although they were the visitors' superiors in weight and height, they have to thank misadventure for their victory. The selection of the State school team for Monday caused all-round criticism in regard to the method adopted towards all other school districts save Balmain, but nevertheless they won.

The First League games on Saturday last provided a sheaf of surprises, the most prominent being Annandale's meritorious win over Sydney. Apparently the victors have a penchant for finding clay feet on soccer's idols, as they were the first to humble Balmain, but a team consisting of the known and possible entities such as Annandale possess must always be regarded as a possibility of the major degree. Hillyard seems to have found fame as a back, and apparently Carroll's wiles, backed by good forward combination, beat down the hitherto insuperable Kirkpatrick—Hughes' barrier. Herron and Gallagher kept their wings plied, and, although each scored a goal, the defence of Thorpe and Hilliard, supported by efficient goal-keeping by Love, resulted in Sydney being kept at bay till full time sounded.

Northern Suburbs have to thank Layten for their victory at Wentworth Oval, but a word is also due to Jones for his splendid combination with Layton, and to Stranger and Turnbull for solid defensive work. Storey played grandly in goal for the Glebe, but, though Teasel shaped well he was unfortunate.

Newtown were expected to win over Balmain, but not by the margin recorded, although the closeness of the scores in the first round spelled equality between the teams, with the probability for the excellent game which did ensue when the return engagement was kept. The match was an exciting one, and the success of Allen Ferguson as a half was pleasing. Newtown are fast becoming experts at the short passing game, and, with the five forwards available will upset the calculations of many ere the competition closes. Balmain's influence in improving the standard of play during the past three seasons is bearing good fruit, and if the schemes of its management re conquered by their opponents' superior skill, those responsible for the placing of Balmain in the forefront during the past three years have ample reward in the knowledge that, to a great extent, their efforts have assisted to put soccer on its present footing.

MISS DURET,

Who, with Mr. J. S. Marks, won the amateur champion mixed foursomes of N. S. Wales. Miss Duret was also runner-up in the ladies' amateur championship.

Canterbury and Granville had a very even encounter at Campsie. The chief features were the excellent goal-keeping of Geering and the persistency of Edge, who excelled himself in notching four goals for Canterbury.

Balmain, Y.M.C.A., and Newtown each secured wins in the first reserve league, and Burns' Club were successful against Sydney. Scottish Rifles demonstrated their superiority over their grade-mates by soundly trouncing the only other unbeaten side in their competition—Balmain—at Moore Park.

ANGLING.

THE GOLDEN PERCH.

The golden perch or yellowbelly (Plectroplites ambiguus) is to the inhabitants of the western country in New South Wales what the bass (percolates fluviatilis) is to the residents on our coastal streams, having a very wide geographical distribution—it is found throughout the whole of the Murray River system (also over practically the whole of Western Queensland), where it provides a valuable item for the menu. It seems to have a preference for the normally quiet waters of lagoons and billabongs, where it grows to a size of fully 12lb. Whenever a fresh occurs in the rivers and creeks, the yellowbelly avails himself of the opportunity to travel upward, and seeking the quieter waters penetrates miles from the main streams into tanks and dams, etc., wherever deep, still, water is to be found.

In such streams as the Bokhara, Narran, etc., every drought (and, unfortunately, droughty conditions there are of frequent recurrence) causes the water to dry up in the smaller pools, and thousands of golden perch die year after year, sometimes from lack of oxygen in the stagnant water, or through its pollution by stock, yet the following season, provided a good fresh comes down to fill all the holes and run the creeks through, they will be re-stocked as plentifully as ever.

As a sporting fish, the golden perch must take second place to the eastern fresh water variety, but not as regards flavour—the former kind, probably owing to the great amount of natural food in the billabongs, etc., are nearly always fat and delicious eating, although in some rivers they have a decidedly muddy taste. The bait generally used by bush anglers for golden perch is a white wood grub, a locust, grasshopper, or frog, but failing these a piece of fresh meat will usually tempt them. During the last few years, when fishing for bass and cod with artificial baits has become a favourite sport with anglers, the same method has been applied to the yellowbelly with very encouraging results, and using tackle such as is usually employed in bass fishing, viz., a fly-rod with gut cast, and a light spinner, they fight fairly well.

An angler, not long returned from a trip through the north-west of this State, spent about a week on the Warrego, near Enngonia, where he had splendid sport among the Murray cod and golden perch. He used an 11 foot fly rod, and at first, following the example of the local anglers, fished with grubs and fresh-water shrimps, catching a few nice fish, but found so much of his time taken up looking for bait that he decided to try Bass spinners. The result surpassed his expectations. At the first cast the halcyon fell close to a submerged log, and he allowed it to sink a couple of feet; as soon as he tightened the line and set the spinner in motion a large cod seized it, and after some little manoeuvring, owing to the snaggy surroundings, was brought within reach of the gaff. No scales were available to weigh the fish, but his weight was estimated at about 8 or 9lb. Moving a little way up-stream the spinner was dropped close to an overhanging bush, where the water was fairly deep; hardly had it touched the water than a yellowbelly took it, and fought well for about 10 minutes. He was somewhere about 6lb. After lunch a spoon-flash, about half-inch, was tried, and proved just as acceptable to the fish as the halcyon. It was noticed that while the majority of the cod caught during the trip came from the vicinity of logs and snags, the perch were taken in shady spots, where the banks overhung, or where leaning bushes almost touched the water. This seems to suggest a similarity in the habits of the bass and golden perch, both as regards their favourite haunts and mode of feeding.

Friday will be the 37th anniversary of the first race for the world's sculling championship, which was rowed on the Thames on June 27, 1876. Edward Trickett won easily from the late Joseph H. Sadler, the stakes being £200 aside. Trickett is a strong and healthy man of 62 years of age, and for a number of years has been a Customs officer. Monday next will be the 36th anniversary of the championship being competed for in Australia, when, on the Parramatta, Trickett defeated Michael Rush on June 30, 1877. It was a great day on the river, and old enthusiasts are of the opinion that more persons looked on at that contest than even the first Hanlan-Beach race. There were no trams nor large ferry boats in those days, and going to and from a boat race was the work of several hours.

ROWING.

THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

UNIFORMITY OF RULES REQUIRED.

Before the Australasian rowing bodies decide whether an effort should be made to be represented at the Olympic Games to be held in Berlin in 1916, they and those supporting them will have to be assured that the contests will be conducted on lines acceptable to all the competing nations. It cannot be said that this was so at the last games, which were held in Sweden. However, it is only by correcting errors as they present themselves that we will eventually succeed in securing what is most desirable for this particular branch of the Australian representation. We pointed out in these columns some weeks ago that what was most urgently needed was not only uniformity regarding the amateur definition, but a set of rules specially applicable to international contests. A move in that direction would certainly be a desirable one, and no doubt before long an effort will be made to secure the desired reform.

Although it could hardly be said that there were any deliberately unfair practices in the conduct of the races at Stockholm, yet there appeared much to be desired in the way of reform. For instance, Australia was never consulted as regards the choice of positions on the course, which admittedly had a side which gave an advantage to the crew which used it. In addition Australia was not represented at the drawing of the heats. To many these would seem small matters, but to the competitors they are big factors in the winning or losing of the world's championship.

MISS PURDIE,

Winner of the Ladies' Country Golf Championship.

A fair example as to how the races were conducted was seen in the final of the eights. The official programme set out that No. 1 crew had the side which would prove of great advantage to them, and that No. 2 occupied the other side. No. 1 crew went to the starting line, and found No. 2 crew already in that position. On No. 1 crew drawing the attention of the officials to the fact they were ordered to take the other side. Although an explanation was asked for none was forthcoming.

Yet another instance: In his heat of the Sculls, Cecil M'Villy steered a bad course, and was in danger of colliding with a pontoon which projected into the river, on which were a number of Australians, who, to save him from smashing his boat, and perhaps injuring himself, warned him off. This the officials objected to, and ordered the police to clear the pontoon. The officials said that competitors must not be interfered with. Again: On the following day—in the final of the eighths between Leander and Australia—a prominent English coach was allowed to moor a boat on the course and coach the Leander crew with a megaphone for more than half the course. The same official who cleared the pontoon on the previous day was appealed to, but he replied that there was no rule to prevent a crew receiving assistance during a race.

Methods such as these did not inspire the Australians with much confidence, for rowing in Australia is conducted on different lines. Such procedure would not be tolerated in an ordinary scratch race, let alone a championship event, in any State in the Commonwealth. In Australia every competing crew is invited to the drawing of the heats and positions, and their direct representatives actually perform the task. At Henley-on-Thames the competitors are invited to witness a public drawing of the positions and heats, which is usually done in the Town Hall. This event creates great interest, and is witnessed by three or four hundred people, the majority of whom are competitors. All the names are placed in the Grand Challenge Cup, the chairman of the Henley committee picks them out, hands them to one of the stewards, and the result is announced amid considerable excitement.

Germany, where the sixth Olympiad will be held, is evidently awake to the fact that there should be some set rules governing the contests, and with that object in view held a conference in Berlin in March last, to which they invited all the nations interested. The propositions they put forth were not only intended to be for the next Olympic contests, but for all time. This goes to show that the German people are anxious to avoid such methods as are not acceptable to all.

PREPARING FOR HENLEY.

The English regatta season opened this year with the Marlow Club's fixture, on Saturday, when Cecil M'Villy won the single sculls. This regatta is an innovation, for the honour used to rest with the historic Henley Royal Regatta in the first week of July. The latest files give a promising outlook for the coming rowing season, which is full of interesting possibilities for the oarsman.

The Thames might be said to be the home of rowing, and to an Englishman, and especially the Londoner, it has a particular fascination. The summer months attract many thousands to the river sides to see and be seen, for rowing, and especially punting, is done in almost luxurious style there. Of course, there are others who go to admire the beauties, for it is charmingly picturesque and daintily pretty in parts. An hour's run in the train from Paddington Station, London, will land one at perhaps what is one of the prettiest spots on the river—Marlow. It will be remembered that at this time last year the Australian crew was located at Cookham, Bourn End, quite close to the Marlow Rowing Club, which kindly placed its boathouse and boats at the disposal of our men, and assisted in many ways to make them comfortable. It was at this part of the Thames that the Australian crew did all its hard work, which resulted in its capturing the blue ribbon at the first attempt.

The river is an ideal stretch of water, calm and peaceful, with a running stream of about one knot, but is affected by the opening and closing of the locks and the rainfall.

Great preparations are being made for the greatest rowing event in the world on July 2, 3, 4, and 5 at Henley. Lion Meadows, from the entrance near the Leander Club, has been levelled to mitigate the deplorable condition that exists in rainy weather. The lower meadow and tow path have been filled up to the extent of three feet. Phillis Court Club side is also receiving attention, and already a start has been made on the large sectional grand stand that is to be built there, which will have a commanding view of the great regatta.

As regards the English crews likely to compete, no doubt a sifting process has been in progress amongst the clubs, with the idea of getting the very best material, and by this time the majority of the crews are in training. Both Thames and London will enter for the Grand, and the optimistic members of the former club have great hopes of being able to annex the much-treasured trophy. It is now known that Canadian and French crews have entered. Leander and New College are sure to send their best.

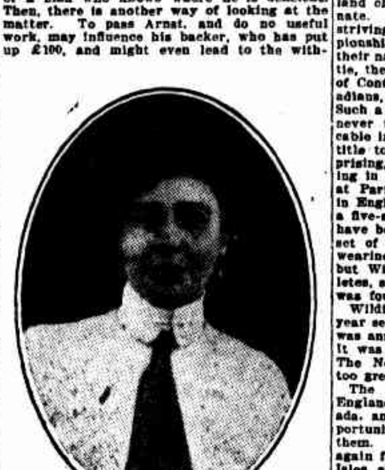
M'Villy, whose success on Saturday will be pleasing to Tasmanians, will represent Australia in the Sculls. Latest advice states that he has done little or no sculling since last year, but that he expected to get into training at least two months before the regatta, and he evidently did so. He is now training with Pearce at the Putney end of the river, and is improving. It is not known how long he will stay at his present quarters. It is a queston whether a continued stay there will do him much good. He is on particularly fast water, and if he is rowing with Pearce, he is rowing with the tide. In the race he will have to row on particularly heavy water, and against the stream—which is quite a different proposition. However, he should make a very good showing against the excellent talent he will have to meet in representatives from England, Canada, France, Germany, Russia, and Italy.

STYLES IN ROWING.

Harvard has once more defeated Yale in the annual race for American Universities, and in a measure the want of success is attributed to the fact that Yale was coached to row the English style. As far back as 1869 Harvard rowed Oxford a four-oared race on the Thames. The latter won with a very fine crew, but it was remarked that Harvard was better boated. About 18 or 20 years ago American and Canadian fours and eights began to take part in the races at Henley, but though some won heats, none secured first place in a final. The nearest was when an Argonaut four (Toronto) was beaten by only two feet. For several years Harvard, which has about four thousand men to select from, was unsuccessful, and Rudolp Lehmann, a very successful coach and oarsman, went over to instruct them in English methods. They obtained an English boat and oars, but they were defeated. Lehmann considered that the faults were want of forward reach, lack of length of swing, and poor leg-drive. Some few years ago James Wray, an Australian professional, was engaged to coach, and the crew obtained a win. It was his opinion that the worst fault was want of combination, and he paid much attention to this. Yale has had many coaches, and indeed all the universities have, Columbia having the services of the late Edward Hanlan for some years, but reward in the way of wins did not come his way. The rowing season in America is a very short one when compared with ours, and as a consequence rowing machines are much used over there during the off season, but even on the best of these the action and resistance do not do nearly so much good as a month's rowing on a course. Some years ago Harvard had, and may still have, a large tank in a basement, and in this was fixed up a long box, fitted with riggers, slides, etc. The men went through the actions of rowing, while the coaches, stationed on a platform, gave instructions. Perhaps it was the best that could have been done during the cold days, but, after all, it was a poor substitute for work in a boat. It was, and may still be, the aim to grip the water much as a sculler does, and to straighten the legs by a vigorous push from the stretcher; indeed, so much so that there was little if any drive left to support the body when nearing the finish. Fitting up the boat is of the greatest importance when attempting to develop a style, and without this the object in view cannot be obtained.

NOTES.

James Paddon has been advised to give Arnst more favourable terms than he at present insists on, and so secure a race on the Parramatta. This advice is tendered by one who is, perhaps, his best friend, and he may, therefore, reconsider the proposal. He really needs another course of preparation, so as to improve his rather crude methods, and some rowing on the Parramatta would do him much good. He cannot obtain it so well on the Richmond unless he has the assistance of a man who knows where he is deficient. Then, there is another way of looking at the matter. To pass Arnst, and do no useful work, may influence his backer, who has put up £100, and might even lead to the withdrawal of the deposit. It will be remembered that this money was staked to make a match with Pearce for £250 a side or more. Paddon should carefully consider what his future may be if he is to be bound hard and fast to the dictates of his local supporters. It may be they have no other object in view than to further the best interests of their newly-found sculler of great promise. It is just possible that one, if not two, of Paddon's best advisers will visit the Clarence and Richmond to see John Casey race against Watkins and Ford during the next few weeks.



MISS C. TREVOR JONES,

Honorary Secretary of the Ladies' Golf Union of N. S. Wales.

The Leichhardt Rowing Club carried out the last of its winter races recently, for the President's trophy, which has been won by W. Carroll, and with these events out of the way and the annual meeting to take place on Monday, July 28, at the Leichhardt Town Hall, members are looking forward to a successful open racing season. Matters are lively at the shed at the week-ends, and some of the maiden and junior crews are working up form for coming events. The senior eight is generally to be seen on the Parramatta River at the week-end.

BOXING.

Two aspirants for the featherweight championship of Australia—Jimmy Hill (N.S.W.) and Charlie Simpson (Vic.) will meet at the Stadium to-night. The Australasian title has been held for a long time by Joe Russell, who has proved unbeatable in the class. In featherweight boxing Australia holds high international rank, and Hill is largely responsible for its reputation by the decisive superiority he has shown over such men as Truffier (France) and Thomas (America). His opponent, Charlie Simpson, is the featherweight champion of Victoria. Simpson's last appearance in Sydney was in April, when he met Boyo Driscoll, and, rather than lose the opportunity of a big match, gave the Welshman the advantage of more than half-a-stone in weight. He was beaten, but not before he had made a great showing. He has finished his training at the Grand Hotel, Waverley, and his form is reported to be first rate. The winner of this match is certain to challenge Russell for the Australasian title. It is the most important mid-week contest which has been staged at the Stadium for many months.

The great match between Summers and Burns on Saturday night, which fulfilled every expectation of its quality through 20 rounds full of science and pluck, has naturally raised discussion on the subject of a return match. Summers, who is now the acknowledged welter champion of the British Empire as well as champion of England, has two victories to one in his rivalry with Burns, but the latter is keen for another opportunity, and the matter is already engaging the attention of Mr. R. L. Baker, and very possibly a return match will be arranged.

The matinee programme arranged for the Stadium display to-morrow afternoon includes a 10-round heavy-weight contest between Syd. Fitzsimmons (N.Z.), and Charlie Cox; with five three-round bouts, and displays by Cordell, Mansfield, and others. Ladies are invited as usual.

Boyo Driscoll, the Welsh featherweight, who had a long spell of sickness in hospital, was sufficiently recovered to be one of Summers' seconds on Saturday night.

The date for the return match between the heavyweights Bill Lang (Victoria) and Petty Officer Curran (England) has been set down as July 26. Curran has begun training, and will carry less avoirdupois than he did in their first contest.

On Saturday night at the Stadium the match will be between the two very lusty light-heavyweights, Harry Mansfield and Jack Cordell. They will box within a stipulated weight limit of 12st 2lb. These two men are very similar, being rugged boxers.

If the event next Saturday night is of minor importance, that of the following Saturday should be one of the most interesting ever presented in Sydney. It will take the form of a test between the hard-hitting Pat Bradley (U.S.A.), and the ex-champion middleweight of England, Jim Sullivan. This match is creating as much anticipatory discussion as the approaching contests between Mehegan and Holberg, and Mehegan and Wells.

Mehegan is still training in Melbourne for his match with Waldemar Holberg, the Danish champion, who has so many important and sensational victories to his credit. Before long, however, the Australian champion will be installed in Sydney to prepare for both his big matches. Holberg, who is in training at Figtree, where he has leased a cottage, looks a picture of health and strength. In physique he is a pocket edition of Tommy Burns, and he possesses wonderful hitting power for his size. Holberg is quite likely to settle down permanently in Australia.

The English lightweight, Matt Wells, who arrived in Sydney on Thursday, has fixed his training quarters at Sandringham. It will be five or six weeks before he is thoroughly ready, and the date of his match with Mehegan has been fixed for Saturday, August 2.

FIXTURES.

Stadium engagements.—To-night, 8.30, Jimmy Hill (N.S.W.) v Charlie Simpson (Vic.); to-morrow, 3 p.m., matinee: Syd. Fitzsimmons v Charlie Cox (10rds), etc.; Saturday, June 28: Harry Mansfield (Eng.) v Jack Cordell (U.S.A.); Saturday, July 5: Jim Sullivan (Eng.) v Pat. Curran (Eng.); Saturday, August 2: Hughie Mehegan (Vic.) v Matt Wells (Eng.).

LAWN TENNIS.

THE DAVIS CUP.

FIRST ROUND COMPLETED.

The victory of Canada over South Africa completed the matches to be played in the first round of the Davis Cup competition of 1913, leaving the United States of America to meet Germany, and Canada to oppose Belgium (which had the good fortune to draw the bye) in the second round, which has to be completed by July 11. After the second round is finished the competition will move quickly, for the final must be concluded by July 21, and the challenge tie has been fixed for July 25, 26, and 28. The date of the challenge tie is, of course, subject to the consent of the challenging nation.

Although Canada beat South Africa by three matches to one, the bearers of the maple leaf had little to spare from the Springboks, for Powell only beat Le Sueur in the fifth set by 7-5, and if the Gauntlett-Powell tie had been material to the issue the probabilities are that the former would have won it, judging by the results of the other singles matches, and would thus have assured success for his side. But the result is all that counts, and the effect of the win is that an American nation has dismissed a Southern Hemisphere contestant just as the United States did in the case of Australasia.

It is quite within the bounds of possibility that the final will be contested by the two American nations, but to know that we shall have to wait till the all England championships, which commenced on Monday, are completed. This meeting usually lasts about a fortnight, so that it should end about July 7. The British Isles' nominations for the challenge tie must be made by July 4, so that the greater part of the championships should be over by then, and the form shown in them would be of assistance to the champion nation's selectors, although their choice will, apparently, have to be made before the finals. Nevertheless, the home selectors will be in a better position than last year, when they were forced to make their choice for the match against France before the championships had commenced.

Those who will be able to see the All England championships this year will be fortunate. In addition to the British players striving their utmost, not only for the championships but for the honour of inclusion in their nation's team in the Davis Cup challenge tie, there will be the customary large number of Continental competitors, and also the Canadians, South Africans, and Australasians. Such a cosmopolitan assemblage has probably never taken place even at Wimbledon. The cable informs us that Wilding will defend his title to the championship, which is not surprising, seeing that he has been competing in the world's hard courts championship at Paris and at the northern championships in England, where he met defeat by Parke in a five-set match. What a contest that must have been! Frequently the play in the fifth set of a match of this kind suffers by the weariness of one or both of the contestants, but Wilding and Parke are two superb athletes, so that there is little doubt the contest was fought with strength to the last stroke.

Wilding's participation in tournaments this year seems to show that his retirement, which was announced last year, has been short-lived. It was only what was expected and desired. The New Zealander's love for the game is too great for him to give it up.

The presence of three Colonial teams in England at the same time—Australasia, Canada, and South Africa—affords a splendid opportunity for a triangular contest between them. It is a chance which may not occur again for some time, especially if the British Isles should not retain the Davis Cup, but with so many other attractions the meeting is not likely to be arranged. Open tournaments are favoured by players to a very large extent, and the members of the teams will probably be scattered throughout the United Kingdom at the various open meetings, preferring this course to a series of teams matches.

Local lawn tennis has been at a standstill for weeks owing to the exceptionally wet season. The interclub competitions of the New South Wales Association commenced on February 22, and according to the programme the preliminary round should have ended on May 3, yet June is nearly over, and some of the teams have two matches still to play. After these will come the semi-finals and finals which will necessitate another month, so that it is problematical whether the competition will terminate before the match against Queensland in Brisbane, which usually takes place early in August.

In the final match for the McPhillamy Cup Competition at Bathurst, the Golf Club defeated Experimental Farm three sets straight, and will now hold the cup for one year, besides receiving trophies for individual play. The personnel of the winning team is: H. Thomson, A. G. Thompson, and C. P. Smith. The competition was in progress for about two months, but the wet weather and other untoward circumstances had the effect of prolonging the matches. The cup, which is a beautiful trophy, was presented by Mr. Walter McPhillamy. Now that this competition has been completed, the winter interclub tournament will be proceeded with. Bathurst possesses half-a-dozen courts which are made of decomposed granite, which, when it settles down, becomes nearly as hard as cement. The golf court is a very fine one, its surface being smooth and true.

BILLIARDS.

GRAY'S MISSED OPPORTUNITY.

Next week's match between Aiken and Williams should be one of the most strenuous that has taken place in Australia in recent years. In a way it is reminiscent of the great match played between Weiss and Roberts about 13 years ago for £500 aside, from the fact that both games extended over two cities. Half of the Weiss-Roberts fixture was played in the old Masonic Hall, York-street, Sydney, and the balance at the Athenaeum Hall Melbourne. The Aiken-Williams contest will consist of two games of 16,000—one in Sydney, the other in Melbourne. The compiler of the greatest aggregate of points in the two games will be declared the winner, and receive the £200 at issue.

After his present game with Williams, George Gray will practically finish his Australian tour, and about a month later will return to England for a long stay. So far Gray has won all the long and lost all the short games in which he has taken part since his return to Australia.

Now that the public have had an opportunity of forming an opinion of Gray's billiards generally, it is admitted that he has improved in both the certainty of his losing hazard game and to a fair extent in all-round billiards. His top-end game could be improved, but there is no denying the fact that the tour with Stevenson through South Africa and India polished that phase of his billiards up considerably. He is still, however, a long way from being a finished billiardist.

It is a pity that those who control Gray's business affairs placed such an impossible proviso in the challenge issued to Lindrum, in which a sum of £3000, win or lose, was demanded for two weeks' play. Had reasonable conditions been asked there is little doubt that Lindrum would have played Gray, and, from the latter's Australian showing, defeated him.

There are many critics who claim that Gray, by reason of his accuracy in playing the middle red losers, could give any player in the world one-fourth start in a long game, but these worthy people appear to be blind to the fact that Lindrum is just as great a losing hazard striker—in Australia at least—as Gray. While the latter almost entirely devotes himself to the hazard game, the Australian champion has been induced to limit his strokes on that mode of scoring, by almost every great player he has met in recent years. Consequently, he has not had the opportunity of making the large breaks that stand to the credit of Gray. When Lindrum has indulged in red-ball play he has proved his skill by running up the Australian record of 1229.

In every other phase of billiards there is no comparison in their skill, Lindrum being immeasurably Gray's superior. The latter must have had some sufficient reason for not playing Lindrum a level game of 18,000 for £1000, as stipulated by the champion; otherwise the preposterous demand before mentioned would not have been made. Had Gray been able to defeat Lindrum he would have returned to England much richer both in pocket and reputation than he will a month hence, for, rightly or wrongly, the Australian public will be of opinion that he was afraid to risk his billiard reputation in a match with his brother Australian.

Owing to Aiken having to return to England earlier than he expected, Lindrum is without a game, unless he arranges a series of matches with the much-travelled Alec. Taylor. The latter, though not a great player, is a very good one, and if his dislocated shoulder mends as soon as expected he may be induced to cross cues with Australia's greatest player.

Suburban billiardists are taking great interest in the inter-institute championships, now in their seventh round. Last year Manly had the successful team, but the palm of supremacy this season appears to lie between Marrickville, Woollahra, and Glebe, all of whom have very even teams. Up to the end of last week's play the first-named institute was in the lead with 22 points, followed by Woollahra with 19, and Glebe with 17 points in the A division, which carries the championship shield. There are several fine players taking part in this competition, who, if they nominated for the State amateur championships, would make creditable showings. The crack A division players are, in the order of merit:—Messrs. Linden (Marrickville), Griffith (Botany), Grimshaw (Woollahra), Turner (Manly), Lambert (Glebe), Hughes (Ryde), Wanless (Rozelle), Thompson (Balmain), Hooke (Drummoyne), Underhill (Ashfield), and Webb (Leichhardt).

FIXTURES.

June 25 to 28.—George Gray v A. E. Williams, 16,000 up, at Alcock's Tournament Hall, Sydney.
June 25 and every evening.—Messrs. Heiron and Smith's New South Wales Markers' Tournament.

ATHLETICS.

PENRITH OPEN ROAD RACE.

AMERICAN VISIT.

A variation from the ordinary weekly fixtures was provided for long-distance runners on Saturday, when at Penrith an open five miles road race was promoted by Mr. N. Shanahan. About 50 members of the New South Wales A.A.A. made the journey. Owing to the unsettled weather the roads were in a very bad state, and against the runners establishing good time. Of the 38 entrants only eight failed to face the starter. The limit man, R. Stedman, (Redfern Harriers), started at 4.30 p.m., and the virtual scratch man, F. Flowers, of the same club, was despatched 4m 45s later. At the Emu Plains Public School (2½ miles), R. A. Anson (South Sydney Harriers), who was in receipt of 2m 55s, and his clubmate, T. Smith (1m 45s), were in front, closely followed by S. Foran (East Sydney). The leaders were not afterwards displaced. In the race over the last 200 yards the leading pair fought out an exciting struggle, but Anson proved the stronger, and won by 5 yards in 29m 20s. Smith's time was 58s faster than the winner's. H. Haydon (Botany), who started from the 50s mark, finished third, about 50 yards further back. The fastest time was secured by W. O'Reilly, of the same club, his actual running time being 27m 30s. This is Anson's first victory in open company, his only other performance of note being in the novice cross-country championship in 1912, when he was in the winning team. It is the intention of Mr. Shanahan to promote further races for amateur athletes, which will be fully appreciated by members of the New South Wales A.A.A. An effort is also being made to form a harrier club in Penrith, and as there are excellent facilities in the district for a venture of this description, the movement should meet with success.

The monthly council meting of the N.S.W.A.A.A., will be held this evening at the Sports Club. The most important business will be the discussion of the proposed visit of the team of American athletes. This project should meet with the general approval of the council, as there should not be a doubt that it would prove a success both from the financial and athletic points of view. It is to be hoped that the delegates will support the move made by the New Zealand A.A.A. to bring about the tour. Amongst the American team are sure to be some of the world's best athletes. Fred Kelly, whose 120 yards over 3ft 6in hurdles in 15s, almost equals Forrest Smithson's Olympic record for the 110 metres (120 10.710yds) will probably make the trip. Kelly was the winner of the 110 metres hurdles final at Stockholm, which he won by a yard in 15 1-5s. Edward Beeson, who was only one yard behind Kelly in his recent effort, afterwards won the 220 yards low hurdles in 25 1-5s, will very likely accompany the team. Beeson is also credited with clearing 6ft 5½in in the running high jump, and has often beaten 22ft for the running broad jump.

At the last Victorian A.A.A. council meeting the approaching visit of the American athletes was discussed, and the project met with general approval. It was thought, however, that the estimate of the initial expense was excessive, as Queensland and South Australia were unlikely to join. It was decided to let the matter stand over till more information had been received. A sub-committee, consisting of Messrs. Croll, Searle, and Parkinson was appointed to make all preliminary arrangements, and it has communicated with the New Zealand A.A.A. and all the other State bodies.

P. T. Redmond, of the South Sydney Harriers, has announced his intention of again returning to the track and preparing for the next Australasian championships, to be held in Melbourne in January next. The ex-100 and 220 yards State champion was the N.S.W. representative at the Australasian meeting in Wellington, N.Z., in December, 1911, on which occasion he finished second to R. Opie in the 100 and 220 yards championships. Redmond ran 75 yards in 7 2-5s, when he defeated Opie in an invitation race at Auckland Domain on January 6, 1912. These figures were established on the same ground as that on which A. F. Duffy made his world's amateur record of 7 2-5s, and the South Sydney man's time is only 1-5s outside the world's best for an amateur on a grass track. Redmond will be a useful competitor for his club in the next "Dunn Challenge Shield" contests. With such a quartet as E. R. Cox, J. F. Bradley, P. T. Redmond, and F. C. Madeley available, this State should possess an excellent chance of annexing some of the sprint events at the forthcoming Australasian meeting.

The Sydney Walkers' Club's open four mile walk will be decided on Saturday. The course is from Rockdale to Sandringham. About 30 entries have been received, which is highly satisfactory for a walking event. Amongst the nominations are some well-known performers in J. J. Harley, C. B. Cockett, R. L. Banhan, A. W. Pickard, and other prominent backmarkers. Pickard, who is on scratch, will concede starts to Cockett and Harley, the one and three miles champions, and, judging by his recent successes in club walks, he should be capable of giving the allowance. It is a long time since an open road walk was held in Sydney. At one time, however, these events were frequently conducted here. This brand of sport is one of the features of the winter season with athletes in England.

FIXTURES.

To-night: Council meeting of the N.S.W.A.A.A., Sports Club.
Saturday, June 28: Four miles open walk, at Rockdale; one mile club handicap, at Australian Football Ground.

HOCKEY.

PLAYING TO THE RULES.

The prospects of sending away a good team to Adelaide in August have considerably improved during the last week, as Shelley, Thompson, and Terrey will be able to make the trip if selected. A side that includes Redgrave, Terrey, and Massie in the forwards, and Shelley and Abel in the halves, has distinct possibilities of doing great things. As regards the backs the selectors might consider Cocks and Thompson. As both of these men play regularly for the same club, they are cognisant of each other's play and peculiarities. The places in the team that at present appear to be causing some anxiety are the left-half and the goal or centre-back. As regards the left-half, it is imperative that, with such a strong left-wing, a good left-half may be found so that the most may be made when the attack develops on that side of the field. As regards the goal-keeper, Mackenzie (Bohemians) plays regularly for his club in that position, and has distinct claims to be tried for the Interstate team.

As previously mentioned, there are one or two faults very common this season which must be eradicated before the Interstate team goes away; otherwise they will be continually penalised, which, if it does not lose them the match, will considerably dishearten the forwards. A noticeable fault is "sticks." Every player knows the rule, but how many keep it? No doubt, some umpires are a trifle strict, though it is a fault on the right side, more particularly at the beginning of the season. Unless an umpire is strict, as the season goes on, the game develops into a regular rough and tumble. There should, perhaps, be a certain amount of latitude in giving "sticks," but there are three occasions on which one thinks that a referee cannot be too strict, viz.: (1) Shooting a goal; (2) hitting a corner; and (3) clearing when defending. In each of these instances, the consequences and loss of any advantage to the offending side are so great that the rule should be most rigidly and firmly enforced. To take shooting at goal, for instance; the higher one raises one's stick the harder one can hit, and the less chance the goal-keeper has of stopping the shot.

In the hitting of a corner, if the stick be raised above the shoulder, the ball will travel quicker to the forwards waiting for it; the latter, in their turn, have more time to steady themselves for shooting, and the defenders have correspondingly less time in which to make dispositions for intercepting the shot. And lastly, in the case where a forward is making a run down the field, and has passed everyone except the back, who relieves the situation with a huge hit (giving "sticks" in doing so), the whole advantage gained by the attacking side is lost, unless the referee rigidly enforces the rule as to "sticks." If umpires fully realised these points, they would do more to improve the game in every possible way. After all, it is not fair to players who do adhere to the rules that others should break them with impunity.

THE HEIR TO THE THRONE.

He attributed my hesitation to very different causes, and as he was continuing his assurances I managed to get to my main point indirectly by saying that before any considerable sum of money would be found I must satisfy myself as to matters at The Chase.

"Go there at once, my dear sir," he exclaimed instantly. "Not, of course, to discuss the financial matters, which we understand are to be entirely our own affair. See von Bergstein and my daughter. I assure you they will welcome your help and that of your friends."

"But I have been there, and was refused admission by Baron von Bergstein."

"It is extraordinary," he exclaimed, throwing up his hands. "Von Bergstein is a most able man—most able—but now and then he commits the most astonishing mistakes. At a time like this it is of quite vital importance that we should have as many friends in this country as we can gather to the cause. But I will set that right. If you tell me that you are still resolved to give us the inestimable value of your assistance in the cause, I will give you a letter to my daughter and to von Bergstein."

"I am quite resolved, your Highness," I said.

But he hesitated and his look suggested the question which he did not put in words.

I understood. "I will write a cheque for £500 as an earnest of that resolve," I added.

"That was not in my thoughts for a moment," he protested, and then gave himself the lie by setting to work on the letters at once, while I wrote the cheque.

When I rose to leave he opened a little silver box on his writing table, and took out one of a number of similar ribbons.

"This is for some of our special friends in other countries than our own, Sir Ian; the 'Order of the Dragon.' Permit me to present it to you with the assurance of my warmest esteem for your recent services to my daughter, Countess Evala, the future Queen of Hungary; your future Queen, as I should like to say."

He made the presentation with a grandiose air, and I accepted it with becoming seriousness and humility; although I could not go so far as to kiss the podgy shaky fingers which he held out for that purpose. But I bowed myself out as if from the presence of royalty.

Within an hour I was on my way to The Chase, determined that this time nothing should prevent my admission. I was now a conspirator, armed with credentials and "a decoration"; and although I was secretly ashamed of the way in which I had gained them, I felt that I could at least use the opportunity they gave me to serve my future Queen loyally and faithfully.

Remembering the procedure on my former visit, I asked this time for von Bergstein, and took up a position close to the side gate by which he had come out. But he suspected my object, and spoke to me through the gates.

"I wish to speak to you privately and very urgently, Baron," I said, and moved away to allay his suspicion; but the instant the gate was unlocked I darted back and forced my way in. "We can speak more conveniently in the house," I said quietly.

The lodge-keeper, a big burly fellow, glanced at the Baron as if expecting the order to throw me out; and for a moment or two it looked like our coming to blows. But with a happy thought I took out my "decoration." "His Highness has honoured me with this," I said to von Bergstein.

His amazement was complete; and I took advantage of the pause to walk off quickly toward the house. He followed, and then I gave him the Prince's letter.

"I have come to see the Countess Evala and am charged with a message to her from her father. I have offered my services to the cause of his Highness, and he has been gracious enough to accept them."

For a time his rage was too great to let him reply, and we were close to the house when he spoke. "I am afraid that her Excellency is not well enough to receive you, Sir Ian," he said, his voice down a tone and unsteady with anger.

"I am distressed to hear it, Baron, but the message is urgent, and I will wait until she has recovered."

No more was said until we had entered the house. He led me to a room and left me, saying he would deliver my message.

But I knew better. I was convinced that he had some other purpose, and meant mischief. So I waited a minute, to give him time to get out of the way, and then went out to look for Evala for myself.

Fortune favoured me. After I had opened two doors at random, only to find the rooms empty, the third attempt was successful.

It was a large room at the back of the house, and a young and rather pretty girl was sitting in the broad bay window which overlooked the sunlit garden.

She looked as I entered, and sprang to her feet.

"Who are you, sir?" she exclaimed nervously.

And then from behind the curtain which had concealed her Evala herself came out.

"Sir Ian Calmadale!" she exclaimed with a catch of the breath; and the quick frown, the involuntary biting of the lip, and the rush of colour to her cheeks, suggested that her intense surprise was not unmixed with resentment and indignation.

CHAPTER IX.

EVALA.

Not knowing how far Evala's companion was in her confidence I was scrupulously careful not to allow either word or look to suggest that my visit was other than a merely conventional one.

"I am afraid I have blundered in not causing the servant to announce me, your Excellency," I said in a formal tone and with a low bow; "but the urgency of my errand may perhaps be pleaded in excuse. I am the bearer of a message from his Highness Prince Osca, and have the honour to present you with my credentials."

I uttered this apologetic rigmarole in order to let her have time to recover from her surprise and handed her the Prince's letter.

While she was reading it, her companion watched her for a moment very closely and then favoured me with a long steady scrutiny. Presently I turned slightly and met her look. Her eyes held mine for a moment, and then with a smile she turned away to the window and looked out into the garden.

I augured from this that my name was not altogether unknown to her, and that, as she could only have heard it from Evala, it was possible that she knew something of the circumstances also. It was plain, however, that if she had heard me spoken of as a murderer, she was no more prejudiced than Prince Osca himself.

Evala was so long in reading the few lines which her father had written that I guessed she was considerably puzzled how to treat my intrusion. I was still waiting for her to speak when I heard the footsteps of two or three people hurry past the door in the direction of the room I had left; and I smiled involuntarily as I concluded that it was von Bergstein returning with some others to hurry my departure.

It chanced that Evala looked up from the letter in time to see the smile and misunderstood it.

"This appeals to you as a jest, Sir Ian," she said somewhat warmly.

"On the contrary, your Excellency. I was never more earnest in my life. The smile you caught was due to a far different cause. Baron von Bergstein left me in a room yonder saying he would tell you I was at The Chase; but as I had reason to know that he did not intend to do that, I did not stay for him. He has just gone with some others to induce me to leave the house without seeing you."

The girl at the window half turned, and was smiling broadly.

"Should I go and tell him, Evala, that Sir Ian is already here?" she asked, and shot a glance at me which said as plainly as words that I had at least one friend in the house.

"No, thank you, Muriel. I wish you to remain here," replied Evala quickly and decidedly. "Sir Ian knows that I am of the same mind as the Baron in regard to this interview."

"Subject to your permission, Mademoiselle, the message from his Highness is one which I can only deliver in private."

She frowned at my intentional use of the word "Mademoiselle," and received it with that little stiffening gesture with which she had rebuked the indiscretions of "John, the chauffeur."

"My father does not refer to any message, Sir Ian."

Before I could reply, there was a knock at the door, and von Bergstein and Count Lugo entered hurriedly and paused on seeing me.

"Your pardon, Countess; but I wish to speak with you privately at once on urgent business," said Von Bergstein.

Evala welcomed the interruption as a means of avoiding the interview with me. "You will excuse me, Sir Ian," she said, dismissing me.

"You pardon, Excellency, but my business is even more urgent and cannot wait even for the Baron's. I am here with the sanction of his Highness himself."

"This is insufferable," exclaimed Count Lugo hotly.

"I will report to his Highness your opinion of his message, sir," I said, turning on him.

"I must ask you to withdraw, Sir Ian," said von Bergstein.

"And because I know your reasons, I decline. I will state them if you wish;" and I took out the sealed letter of mine to Evala which had been returned. I needed no further proof than his disconcerted look to convince me that it was his work.

"You cannot have heard me ask you to excuse me, Sir Ian," said Evala, clearly at a loss to understand this little passage.

"Your pardon again, but I heard you quite distinctly. If I am compelled to appear insistent in seeking an interview at this inopportune time, it is Baron von Bergstein's fault rather than my own. I was here some days ago; but he did not tell you of my wish to see you. I wrote your Excellency, asking you to receive me, and then a second time—this letter—giving the purport of what I had to say."

"But I have not received any letters," said Evala.

"I think the Baron can explain."

The tables were turned now, and her expression as she looked to von Bergstein for his explanation was resentful enough to satisfy even me.

"I know nothing of the matter," he protested.

"I should be sorry to think otherwise, Baron, of course; but the matter cannot rest here. If my letters are tampered with, I must know by whom," she replied with great dignity.

"I will, of course, make every inquiry," he said.

"Probably I can assist you. This is the letter I received in reply to my request for an interview, and this the envelope in which my longer letter was returned unopened;" and I gave them to Evala.

"This is not from me, Sir Ian, nor this. It is evident that a letter addressed to me has been opened and suppressed. You see that, Baron?"

She put them into his hands, and both he and Count Lugo looked supremely uncomfortable. One person in the room was obviously enjoying the scene, however—Evala's girl friend, whose dislike of von Bergstein was patent. But her enjoyment was cut short by Evala while he was examining the papers.

"Muriel, dear, I think you had better leave us for a few minutes." She went very reluctantly, and gave me a bright encouraging smile as I opened the door.

Then Evala made another attempt to get me away. "I am going to ask you to allow us to consider this matter alone, Sir Ian," she said.

But I was not going. "With every deference, I must urge that the matter on which his Highness has sent me must be allowed to have precedence," I repelled with a low bow.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J.E. (Springwood).—The incubator you mention has been on the market for many years. All makers send full instructions with the machines. It would be waste of time trying to cure your sick birds. Kill and burn them.

Beginner (Hornsby).—Any of the heavy breeds will suit you. The general-purpose fowl is a better paying proposition than the variety you mention. The best way is to try both, and you will be better satisfied with the one you ultimately adopt.

At the Poultry Conference held last Saturday, Mr. Valder, who presided, assured his hearers that in three weeks' time the position of poultry expert would be filled. Applications ofr the position closed last Monday. Nearly all our best practical men, as well as the prominent experts of the other States, are included among the aspirants. With such a large number to select from the Public Service Board should have no difficulty in making a first-class selection.

The Poultry Farmers' Co-operative Society held the monthly sale of purebred poultry last Wednesday. There was a large proportion of heavy breeds, the quality throughout being well up to the average. Competition for the best birds was very keen, and the following prices were realised:—White Leghorns, 5s to 13s; b. Leghorns, 3s to 11s; b. Orpingtons, 4s to 33s 6d; Langshans, 4s to 18s 6d; s. Wyandottes, 3s 6d to 15s. Ducks brought good values.

The action of the selling agents in making a charge for returned empties is causing a good deal of friction between the producer and the agents, but the trouble is likely to be adjusted soon to the satisfaction of all parties concerned.

In last Saturday's "Herald" it was stated that housekepers would be surprised to learn that new-laid eggs had fallen 9d per dozen wholesale during the week. Perhaps they were equally surprised when they went to the retail store to find very little difference in the retail price. This clearly indicates a very unsatisfactory state of affairs in the egg market.

The selling agents, it is understood, are to meet to-day to discuss the matter, and to endeavour to devise some method by which a ruling rate may be fixed for given periods. It is intended also to fix prices for the various grades. The first proposition presents no difficulties from the agents' point of view, but the latter problem will be a difficult one to deal with. In the United States legislation has been passed in order to prevent the sale of unsound and rotten eggs. Something similar is urgently required in this State, and at the Poultry Conference last Saturday a resolution was carried unanimously that the Board of Health be asked to take steps immediately to compel vendors of cold store eggs to brand the goods before being offered for sale.

The inexperienced poultry farmer believes that he can dispose of his products without the middleman, and that he can sell privately and save the commission charged by agents. On the other hand, the "old, experienced stager" invariably sells at auction, or through the commission agent, and cheerfully pays the 5 per cent. charged. The agent will strive for higher prices, because it means more commission. The merchant knows that cheap eggs sell more bacon, and tend to draw customers for other lines. Whenever a farmer has reason to doubt whether he is getting top prices, either at the auction sale or from the agent for the time being, he should divide his consignment into halves, being careful to see that both lots are similar. He should send one half to a fresh place and the other half as usual. In a few weeks comparisons may be made, and a choice decided on for future consignments. Suppliers whose eggs are of uniform size, clean, and carefully packed will invariably command top prices, and rarely have to resort to the advice given above. Reputable agents are careful not to lose clients who supply "choice suburban brands." They can never get enough to supply the demand, and buyers are only too willing to give a little above market quotations.

Male birds should never be allowed to run with the opposite sex, unless eggs are required for hatching. Those not required for stud purposes are only a drain on the profits, and should be disposed of at once. It will be necessary, especially in the heavy breeds, to cut the spurs of the roosters, to prevent injury to the hens or pullets. Owing to the recent excessive rain there is sure to be a shortage of chickens during the spring months, and no doubt very high prices will be netted for choice birds. When eggs get low in price, turn them into chickens, and under proper management they will give good returns. Do not hatch more than you can care for properly. It is a mistake to try to grow more than you can grow well.

The fifth annual show of the Railways and Tramways Employees' Poultry Club will be held in the upstairs portion of the new municipal poultry markets, Quay-street, on Friday and Saturday next, and will be the last of the season's shows. A class for "utility" is added to the schedule: the hens or pullets to be judged for laying purposes. It will be interesting to watch the results in judging in this class. If it is possible to tell by outward appearance which is the best layer a most difficult problem will be solved.

NOTES.

Mr. Taylor has transferred the Australian terrier, Blue Gwen (by ch Monaro Glenara, ex Monaro Leona), a sister to ch Union Boxer, to Mr. Walker, of Enfield. A son of Monaro Glenara has been secured by a Campsie fancier from Mr. George Johnson.

The champion South Australian Pomeranian, Wevenor Royal, was beaten by Mrs. H. Moseley's Brown Fox at the Ballarat show.

Next Saturday the Fox-terrier Club will hold its annual show at Brighton-le-Sands. Mr. M. E. Tilbury, hon. sec., anticipates that the show will be the best in the club's history.

Mr. J. Farrell, one of the early members of the Fox-terrier Club, died in Sydney last week. He owned several good young dogs, but had not the best of luck with them. He made the generous offer of furnishing a large room in Elizabeth-street and letting the Fox-terrier Club have the use of it free of rent; but the club, whilst appreciating the offer, thought that the position of the room was not sufficiently central.

Another good fancier to pass away was Mr. J. Poole, of Botany, one of the pioneers of Yorkshire terriers, and a good judge of them. He bred a number of good coloured dogs. His genial personality will be missed by the members of the silky Yorkshire and Australian Terrier Club.

The monthly meeting of the Cattledog and Sheepdog Club of N. S. Wales was held at the Sydney School of Arts on last Saturday. Mr. H. Lord was in the chair, and there was an exceptionally good muster of members, including the hon. secretaries, Miss A. Mackay and Mr. T. Bryan. On the president intimating that Messrs. King and M'Leod's recent importation, Kelpie bitch, Kelp of Kelso, will be competing at the sheepdog trials, the club decided to write to her owners asking them to take advantage of benching her in the complimentary class at the forthcoming show. Much time was taken up receiving show entries, which constitute a club record. The standards were again discussed and advanced another stage. They are now nearing completion. His Excellency Sir Gerald Strickland has consented to give his patronage to the club.

Mr. Robert Kaleski writes: Re Mr. M'Leod and his assertion that the Kelpie originated with the Border collie, I have no time for useless controversy, and have corrected Mr. M'Leod so often on this point that it becomes monotonous. I must, however, point out again—(1) That the original 'Kelpie sprang from Gleeson's Kelpie (pedigree unknown) and Caesar, a descendant of Elliott and Allen's Brutus and Jenny (smooth collies imported). (2) That up till now Mr. M'Leod has always maintained that C. P. W. King originated the Kelpie at Condobolin, N.S.W. (3) That there is no standardised breed known as the Border collie, and that they appear to be a cross of setter and rough collie. (4) That in the new "Book of the Dog" (Cassell's), p. 472, the Kelpie is given as an absolutely Australian production.

PUG DOG CLUB.

The members of the Pug Dog Club of New South Wales held their last special meeting at the Supreme Court Hotel, King-street, and although they were again unfortunate in having to face extremely wet weather, there was a good attendance. The business of the evening was successfully carried through, office-bearers for the coming year being elected. The president, Mr. J. B. Moffatt has placed the use of his office at 44 Elizabeth-street at the disposal of the club for its meetings, etc. The secretary reports that this is not, as is generally thought, a ladies' club, as it has a good majority of male members.

A VISITOR FROM INDIA.

About eight years ago Mr. J. H. B. Martin left Sydney to travel practically round the world. Whilst here he was a breeder of Dandie Dinmonts, a grand little Scottish breed that has been unaccountably neglected in Australia. He also judged bulldogs and several other breeds at a kennel club show. For some time past Mr. Martin has been a resident of India. There he became prominent in canine matters. He returned to Sydney last week, and was welcomed by many old-time friends in his native city.

The Calcutta Kennel Club, Mr. Martin states, is the biggest affair of the kind in the East. Bombay, Lucknow, Lahore, Simla, and Moosooree also foster the dog fancy. Big prices are paid in India for dogs imported from England. One of the Maharajahs paid the high price of £500 for an English fox-terrier champion.

Australian terriers have been exhibited at Indian shows; at first they did not take on as they deserved, owing to the public not knowing their many good qualities. Mr. Martin says that this breed is eminently suitable for India, where vermin-killers and house-guards are required. He intends, before returning to Calcutta in about three weeks' time, to select some good specimens of Australian terriers.

Mr. Martin has judged dogs at Calcutta, Colombo, and other places. Whilst on a visit to England he saw the modern types of show dogs, and he judged several breeds at the Ladies' Kennel Club's show at the Botanical Gardens, London. He visited Crufts' and the Crystal Palace shows, and also inspected notable kennels, such as F. Redmond's and George Raper's.

Distemper is virulent in India, and hundreds of valuable dogs die from this disease every year. Hydrophobia, which is unknown in Australia, is troublesome in India, where a judge has to be careful in handling exhibits.

A popular dog in India is the Rampur hound, which is a cross between Great Danes and greyhound. A number of these big dogs form what is known as a Bobbery pack. They are great killers, their principal quarry being jackals.

In India, as in Australia, the big breeds, such as St. Bernards and mastiffs, are dying out. Terriers—Irish, Airedale, and fox—are suitable to the trying climate. The big dog biscuit firms save show committees a lot of expense by printing tickets, prize cards, registration forms, posters, etc.

Mr. Martin was sorry to hear that the New South Wales Kennel Club was not flourishing as it should. He considered that the establishment of a number of strong specialist clubs had been the means of weakening the pioneer club.

WOMEN'S HOSPITAL BENEFIT.

A GENEROUS DONATION.

Yesterday Mr. Reynolds Denniston, the treasurer of the Little Theatre benefit matinee, arranged by Mr. Hugh C. Buckler and Miss Violet Paget, for Wednesday next in aid of the Crown-street Women's Hospital, was notified that the directors of the Little Theatre had made a donation of £200 towards the matinee fund. This basis to splendid result will be built upon by the appeal to lovers of a strong programme made by Madame Clara Butt, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, and the managements of the Tivoli, the Palace Theatre, and the National Theatre, together with the effort of the Little Theatre. The plan will open at Paling's at 9.30 to-morrow morning.

400,000 DYSPEPTICS IN SYDNEY.

PHYSICIAN TELLS WHAT TO EAT, AND GIVES SOUND ADVICE TO ALL STOMACH SUFFERERS.

A well-known medical practitioner recently made the startling statement that a careful estimate shows that nearly 50 per cent. of us have some degree of dyspepsia—that's about 400,000 people here in Sydney. When it was suggested that 50 per cent. is a pretty large percentage, the doctor, seeing that he was not being taken quite seriously, spoke as follows, and with emphasis that at once dispelled all doubt as to whether or not he was in earnest:—If 50 per cent. of the people of your town had just been exposed to smallpox, the whole town would be panic-stricken, and yet such exposure probably would not cause anywhere nearly as many deaths as will be caused, in time, by complications following mild cases of dyspepsia that are being neglected right at this minute. One drink of whisky doesn't make a drunkard. One day's neglect of a mild attack of dyspepsia isn't going to kill anybody. But nearly everyone neglects an abnormal condition of the stomach for months or years before becoming conscious of being an actual victim of real dyspepsia. And neglect, from that time on, can do damage pretty fast. It may lead to stomach ulcers or cancer, and terminate fatally. The enormous amount of dyspepsia, and its alarming increase from year to year, are due to the fact that we don't live normal lives. It's not normal to eat fast, to eat ultra-fancy foods, to sit all day at a desk, to live an inactive indoor life, etc. These abnormal conditions of living cause hyperacidity of the stomach. That means an excess of acid in the stomach contents. That excess leads to dyspepsia, indigestion, belching, distress after eating, wind, acid stomach, etc. For the cure of any of these troubles I prescribe, first of all, the use of some common sense. Don't starve or go on any freak diet, but eat moderately, avoid fancy dishes, go light on stimulants, and see if you can't get a little more exercise. Don't take any pepsin or patent medicines or drugs to act on the stomach, but go to your chemist and get a little ordinary bisurated magnesia, and take one-half to one teaspoonful in a little hot or cold water after each meal. The bisurated magnesia is an antacid. It is not to act on the stomach at all, but to act entirely upon the contents of the stomach to neutralise the excess acid. That is the way to get rid of your dyspepsia, indigestion, etc., and keep out of danger of developing stomach ulcers or cancer.

AT THE CROSSWAYS.

Once again during the past week has the modern child been the subject of criticism and controversy. On one hand it is alleged that he is farther from the paths of virtue than his forbears; on the other hand it is claimed that he is no worse than he ever was, though the weakening of parental responsibility is admitted.

In that admission it seems that we reach the heart of the subject. The child of to-day is no different from the child of all ages, neither better nor worse; but in the matter of his upbringing it is not so easy to make a definite statement. It cannot be denied that the relation between parent and child has changed tremendously during the last generation or so; the parent who expects to be the absolute arbiter of his child's destiny is as uncommon to-day as the child who gives unquestioning duty and obedience. Education, with its cry of individuality and free will, is chiefly responsible for the change of attitude, and no doubt many a parent looking back on a narrow and restricted childhood, has vowed that his children shall have more freedom. What many parents too often forget is, that, with freedom the development of personality must go responsibility and consideration for others, or the structure of character is all lop-sided.

We are passing through a period of evolution in education; old precepts are brushed aside, new laws are made every year; wise men and women all the world over are giving their deepest consideration to the problem of training the child. Pedagoges rise up here and there with new theories, and with an unending list of arguments to prove their theories, and the "new method" of to-day is old-fashioned and out of date to-morrow. It is all part of the work of evolution, and in time perhaps will lead to the perfect system.

But while pedagoges and psychologists formulate new schemes for the education of the child, there is one essential basis which remains unchangeable, and that is the bond between parent and child. Upon that bond rests the whole educational structure—using education in its broadest sense—teachers may plan the most perfect of school systems, but unless the parent plays his part there is something missing. Under modern conditions the parent generally means the mother, for the average father is too much occupied with his business to have much time for his children. And so it is the mother who must face and answer the question—"Is the modern child receiving the wisest and best up-bringing?" Never probably in the history of the race did the child receive more kindness and consideration than at present: never was the path of youth made easier and pleasanter. But it must be confessed that, on the mother's part, indulgence is very often the result of weakness or laziness. It is so much more comfortable to see the children having a good time, so much less trouble to let them have their own will, to let them go their own way: while to correct, or deny them a thing they want is often a real pain to a fond mother. "Let them enjoy themselves while they can; they'll only be young once," is one of the catch phrases which constantly meets any attempt at discipline: and so the child, who could just as easily be trained to be helpful and thoughtful for others in his happiness, goes on his way with the belief ever more firmly embedded in his mind, that to follow his own desire is pleasure, and his right.

Most little children are naturally affectionate and generous. With a little careful training these two qualities will develop, with the child's growth, into a sense of responsibility and consideration for others. Independence and a distinct personality are admirable in a child, but need not be encouraged at the expense of the gentler virtues. In a world where all are bound by bonds of common citizenship, obedience to law, and the regard for one's neighbour are essential; and the child who is taught in early years that he owes a duty of obedience to his parents, as well as the affection which he naturally feels for them, is the child who in the years to come will make the best citizen.

And this making of citizens lies in our hands. The schools can do much; the compulsory training can do much, for our boys; but the mothers can do most of all. For the earliest years of life belong to the mother, and it is then that she can build solidly and surely the foundation on which the whole character will rest. It takes time and trouble, this building of character, and the builder must be ever on the watch for the flaws that will creep in. She must be firm, even stern, at times, and, above all, she must be patient and loving, far-seeing, and hopeful.

Just now we seem to be standing at the parting of the ways; the strict discipline of the older generation is passing away, and a newer creed of ease and free-will is being preached. It rests with the mothers to decide whether the new doctrine is to carry the coming generation along the path of selfishness and indulgence, or whether, strengthened by a sense of responsibility and respect for others, it is to develop all that is highest and best in the individual. It is a momentous decision, which only the mothers themselves can make.

WHO WANTS THE VOTE IN GREAT BRITAIN?

It is sometimes thought that the demand for women's suffrage in Great Britain is made by a small number of discontented women, and that the majority of people care nothing about it. In a recent number of the "Queen," a list is given of the different bodies who have actively supported the demand for the franchise. This list includes "the name of practically every town council of first-class importance in Great Britain, except Belfast. Five county councils, 108 city and town councils, and 38 Urban district, rural district, and parish councils have passed resolutions or petitioned Parliament in favour of women's suffrage. A large number of Conservative associations, and half a hundred Liberal associations have passed women suffrage resolutions; also several Socialist and Labour bodies, including the Fabian Society. Fifty trade and Labour councils have also passed favourable resolutions. Then there are 40 women suffrage societies, the N.U.W.S.S., with a membership of 50,000 leading the way. (Three only of these forty societies practise militancy). And amongst the organised bodies of women who support the demand for the suffrage are the National Union of Women Workers, the largest organised body of women in the Kingdom including representatives of nearly every philanthropic and social enterprise managed by women. The Women's Liberal Federation, with 140,000 members; the National British Women's Temperance Association, with 155,000 members; and the Scottish Women's Temperance Association, with 100,000 members. The Women's Co-operative Guild, with 28,600 members; the Association of Headmistresses and University Women Teachers; the Society of Registered Nurses; the National Federation of Women Workers, and International Council of Women, and many others.

"Half a million organised British women want the vote, 151 public bodies want them to have it, and representative men, in a ratio of four to one, are in sympathy with their [illegible] demand."

A MODERN PICTURE EXHIBITION.

The exhibition of modern international art now being held in Rome is a welcome side-dish to sightseers who have indulged too freely in antique frescos, mosiacs, and the eccentricities of ecclesiastical art, and the style in which this modern feast is served and garnished adds considerably to its charms.

The exhibits are contained in 18 salas, each with a distinct individuality of its own, and with decorations that harmonise with the leading characteristics of its contents, here emphasising a dominent colour-note, there echoing an original idea. The vestibule, spacious lofty, and dignified, opens into corridors, whose walls are covered with neutral-tinted crash. Carpets in quiet grey tones deaden all sound, and on pedestals stand pots of living blossoms in softly, chiming colours, china-blue asters, cloudy pink azaleas, deep ruby tulips.

In one sala in which a conspicuous exhibit is Vittorio Grassi's "I Civettari" (The Owls)—a striking work showing two men in long cloaks trudging beneath a lurid sky, and carrying owls, whose fiery eyes glow eerily from the shadows—the walls are covered with a delicate shade of lavender and silver, panelled with heliotrope and ornamented by a conventional design of black and grey owls, with large, round, yellow eyes.

In another room, in which a leading picture is Vittorio Zecchin's "Verso la Luce," the three wise men of the East are depicted walking in single file beneath an intensely blue vault of sky across which streams the miraculous star-beam. Their venerable heads of snowy hair are crowned with gold; they carry caskets of richly-chased gold and wear robes of brocade stiff with gold and gems. The walls of this sala are covered with sand-coloured canvas, freely splashed with gold, the skirting boards and panellings are of black wood, inlaid with royal blue and green, and the armchairs and settees of ebony, are furnished with cushions of royal blue. A delicious composition by Angel Zarraga is "La Idanazata"—(The Betrothed), where an exquisitely virginal figure in transparent lace robes is seen surrounded by her maidens. Here the sala has walls of the tint of ivory, with panels of natural white wood, all the picture-frames are very narrow, mere borders of white wood; and the quaintly-shaped benches and settees, also of white unpolished wood, are lightly inlaid with verdigris metal work, and have deeply-fringed cushions of suede, the whole creating an atmosphere of charming freshness and simplicity.

Another room, in which are gathered a number of pictures, showing rich tones of orange and gold, strikes a more sumptuous note. Here the picture-frames are made and elaborately carved in gilt, the walls of a deep green here are bordered with a frieze of scarlet and gold, and the tall gilded chairs have cushions embroidered with tulips.

The room devoted to Auguste Rodin's strange and sometimes repulsive figures in bronze—among them the monstrous "crooked hand"—is carpeted with grey velvet, its white walls are narrowly panelled with black and are hung with portieres of white silk bordered with black. There is a choicely-appointed room devoted to the French Impressionist School, in which such men as Claude Monet, Edoardo Manet, Auguste Renoir, etc., are represented. Some of these compositions are very sensational. Monsieur Edmond Cross shows something he is pleased to call "Eucalyptus et Oliviers." Of these it is safe to say that their own mothers would not recognise them.

All the pictures in this exhibition are hung very low, and have no rails before them; the floors are covered with neutral tinted carpets, soft to the foot and sound-absorbent, and through the transparent canvas ceiling a clear and mellow light falls.

All these details to which the artists themselves have not disdained to give their personal attention, greatly enhance the value of the exhibition, and the spectator, who has, perhaps, acquired a stiff neck and strained eyes from gazing up at the frescos in the Sistine Chapel, subscribes heartily to the modern doctrine that beauty should go beautifully.

AGNES L. STORRIE.

THE NEED OF PLAYGROUNDS.

"Sydney wants a number of play-areas for little children," said one of the State school inspectors recently, speaking of the place and power of play in child culture. "They need not be very expensive. A portion of any park could be arranged to answer the purposes for a small amount of money. I advise you, parents and citizens, to visit the Lance playground in High-street, Miller's Point. It is the type of playgrounds which the Playgrounds' Association is trying to establish in Sydney. There should be one in every thickly peopled part of the city, and at least one in every suburban municipality. I further advise you to join the Play-grounds' Association. Why ask other countries to send us their children, while we allow our own to die? Why spend money in enlarging hospitals, and at the same time breed invalids? Why deplore a lowered birthrate, while we do so little to lessen the death-rate?

"A playground is better than a prison, or a penitentiary, or a hospital. Fortunately, the present progressive Minister for Public Instruction (Mr. Campbell Carmichael) sincerely sympathises with this fine idea, and is prepared to give it appreciative and practical support."

A PROTEST.

It comes with more or less of a shock, in a so-called democratic community like ours, to hear anyone speak with contempt of "social climbers." The phrase seems very much in the air, and a person accused of being a social climber is apparently considered to have touched the bed-rock of baseness. It is not at all uninstructive to seize on such a catch phrase as this one, to examine it carefully and without bias, in order to determine how much there really is in it, and to find out if possible why it has become popular. To begin with, it is not easy to point out wherein lies the baseness of social climbing. An old Anglican lady once said that the lower classes should keep to the class in which they were born, because the Catechism said we were to do our duty in that state of life into which it has pleased God to call us. An examination of the Anglican Catechism proves the old lady to have quoted incorrectly, for the passage runs thus: "And to do my duty in that state of life unto which it shall please God to call me." The tense makes a considerable difference. In Australia we are liberal-minded enough to feel a glow of pleasure when we realise that here, at any rate, talent may rise from the gutter to the topmost pinnacle of public life. Why not, therefore, in social life? Where is the sense in conceding public position, and grudgingly opening, or spitefully closing, the social portals to worthy aspirants?

Before condemning social-climbers, it would be as well to discover what there is so very sinful in social ambition. Let us admit, for the sake of argument, that each upward step in the social ladder brings us in contact with people of greater education and refinement, with broader minds, wider sympathies, more tolerant judgment, and kinder hearts. If this is so, surely it becomes a virtue in any person to struggle on from one step to another to reach the paradise of gentleness and liberality at the top. It should rather be the fashion to speak of social-climbers with the bated breath of reverence.

But let us suppose that the contempt expressed in this phrase is levelled, not at the climbing, but at the motive which is supposed to actuate certain people who go on to charitable committees. It would certainly be much more noble to work for love of the public weal than for personal ambition; but can one man judge his brother? It is pretty certain that "the heart of man is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked," and that does not apply to the hearts of those stigmatised as social-climbers only, and it is equally certain that the secret thoughts and motives of the heart are known only to the Omniscient. This way of looking into the matter would lead one to conclude that it is a good thing to try to rise in the social scale; that those who attribute low motives to others are presumptuous, and that the baseness lies only in the want of charity which has given such vogue to the catch phrase "social-climbers."

THE CRECHE FOR THE TENT CITY

The recent article in the "Woman's Page" suggesting the idea of a creche for the "tent city" is worthy of serious thought, and it is to be hoped that during the period of inauguration of this splendid scheme of the tent city this matter will be kept well in view. Here, too, is an opening for women and girls to offer their services as the guardians of the creche, for, undoubtedly, the mothers who come from the far-off, arid interior will be only too willing to pay their mite to be freed from the responsibilities of babes and children of tender years. One has only to consider the vast responsibilities those bush mothers have to bear (very often doctor, nurse, teacher, and mother all in one) to fully realise the great boon that the creche will be to them, to know that their children are left in capable and competent hands, while they avail themselves of the unaccustomed luxury of care-freed hours and draughts of refreshing ozone. But they are very affectionate those bush mothers—perchance it is that their isolation from society, and the solitude of the bush land, fosters their affection, and makes them cling to the wee morsels of humanity who are such company in long, monotonous days—and it will be with something of compunction that they will part with their children, even for the space of a few hours. But if they are to have the full benefit of that camp by the sea, they should lay aside those tender sentiments for the time being, and enter with zest into the humane scheme that is being prepared to bring to them fresh life and vigour, to face again the heat and monotony and vicissitudes of the far "out-back."

LEE.

"Materfamilias" writes from Narrabri:—It is indeed a pleasure to read such an article upon a further feature of the proposed tent city for inlanders as the one appearing in your Page for Women on the 14th. The workers for the seaside camp are most anxious to receive and grateful for all kindly practical suggestions towards the development of the scheme, and this last one of the creche tent is indeed worthy of most careful attention.

I am thinking of one case I know, amongst many, where the wife of a farm hand from the southern districts stayed a little while in the Harbour City en route to her husband's fresh settlement in the north-west. She had never seen the sea, and longed for a sight of it. But there was a shy toddler and a babe in arms. The poor mother tried, but had to give up the attempt, for the little bush child was easily scared by the trams and rush of traffic; so they passed out back once more without even one afternoon by the seaside. Last summer there were three babies in the little home instead of two, all under 4 years of age, and all suffering from sandy blight; and this winter will see a fourth added to the mother's care. She has sometimes told me that it is a relief to just run across to see me upon an errand, leaving the father in charge for half an hour or less. It is not hard to imagine what a creche tent in a seaside camp would mean to such as she. And she is one of many.

PUCK'S GIRDLE.

I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes.—"Midsummer Night's Dream."

The concert programme has undergone an extraordinary change during the past few years. Only a season or so ago operatic excerpts were interspersed with "little" songs of the spasmodic type, which had displaced the sentimental three-verse songs of earlier days. But in both three-verses and spasms, the broken heart and the love-sick wight were the chief topic; hopeless longing for the living or sad regret for the dead love were the two main themes. To-day we have almost lost the love-sick note; the modern song deals with nature or the more robust things of life. And most noticeable of all is the appearance of the names of the great poets on a concert programme, where once the words of the song were a mere accompaniment to the music. This new custom was very marked in the programme of Mme. Clara Butt and Mr. Kennerly Rumford last Saturday night. In the group of English songs so exquisitely rendered by Mr. Rumford, we had Rossetti's exquisite sonnet, "Silent Noon," Stevenson's "Roadside Fire," with its delightful open-air spirit; Blake's charming little "Jocund Dance" and "Eva Toole," a gay Irish ballad, by Arthur Percival Graves, who, by the way, is a brother of Lady Poore.

Then in Mme. Clara Butt's list, the two songs with which she most charmed her audience, were "The Leaves and the Wind," a simple little story of a simple, everyday theme, which the singer gave with a delightful grace; and the tragic "Women of Inver," with its world-old story of the men who go down to the sea in ships, and the women who weep and wait, a song in which the singer reached her highest effect.

Those who have read Madame Boult's plays are very anxious that they should be produced on the stage and give the general public an opportunity of judging what one of our local dramatists can do. In order to meet the cost of production a matinee will be held next Saturday afternoon at the Criterion Theatre, when Mr. Hugh Buckler and Miss Violet Paget and members of the Little Theatre company will take part, and will be assisted by artists from the Tivoli. Mr. Hugh Buckler, who is taking an active part in the arrangements, is very interested in Madame Boult's work, and he has consented to act himself, with members of his company, in the production of the "Maid of Orleans," which will be given in September. People who are interested in Australian literature will be glad indeed that Madame Boult's work is at last receiving recognition.

Theatrical people are certainly setting an example to the rest of the community in the matter of charity. No sooner were the needs of the Crown-street Woman's Hospital made known than offers of benefit matinees were made, first by Mr. Hugh Buckler, of the Little Theatre, and immediately after by Mr. Hugh Ward, of the J. C. Williamson management. The managers are not only being nobly supported by the artists of their various companies, but the valuable help of Mme. Clara Butt and Mr. Kennerley Rumford has been promised for both matinees, and with so many attractions the two performances should ensure a considerable sum towards the amount needed, for the public cannot fail to support the theatrical people's generous efforts.

"Veronica" writes from Melbourne:—It was decided last year by the executive of the Wattle Day campaign to make "Wattle Day" an annual event in Victoria. Last year it proved such a success that nearly £800 was distributed among charities. A meeting was called recently in the Melbourne Town Hall in order to make arrangements for the holding of a public meeting of those interested in Wattle Day. Mrs. D. V. Hennessy, the Lady Mayoress, presided, and the attendance was large. Tuesday, July 1, was fixed on as the date for the general meeting of those interested, and it was decided to endeavour to work in co-operation with the Wattle League, at present a separate organisation.

The majority of people have never heard of vaccination against typhoid, and yet it is quite common in hospitals both here and in England and America. The "Australasian Nurses' Journal" for this month says: "On looking through the records of one of our large metropolitan hospitals, where typhoid cases are being continually admitted, we find that during the six year period—1904-1910—21 cases of typhoid fever occurred amongst nurses. Of these six died, or nearly 30 per cent., which is far above the average mortality of typhoid patients. In the hospital from which these figures are taken every precaution against infection had been tried, but the disease continually appeared among the nurses. It was about 1910 that anti-typhoid vaccination was first practised, and all nurses were vaccinated against typhoid. Since then no single case of typhoid has occurred among the nursing staff. Nor are these results unique. In the British Army the disease is ten times more frequent amongst the unvaccinated. . . . We hope the day is not far distant when vaccination against typhoid will be made compulsory for all nurses attached to a hospital in which the disease is treated."

The Chair of English Literature at Trinity College, Dublin, which was held by the late Professor Dowden for 45 years, has been temporarily filled since his death by Miss Olive Purser, M.A. Professor Dowden was a world-renowned scholar, and to be appointed to his vacant place, even temporarily, is very high tribute. Miss Purser was the first woman to obtain a scholarship after the admission of women to Dublin University, and after winning a classical scholarship with gold medal, she set up another record by winning a university studentship, with "large gold medal," in modern literature, and her success has been striking and unique.

The first woman to stand for the Italian Chamber of Deputies is Madame Gragia Deledda, one of the most famous of modern Italian writers. She is not a professed feminist or politician, but she believes that there are many things concerning laws for women and children, which women can state better than men, and so she is standing as a candidate for the Canton of Nuro, n Sardinia, where she was born.

After the awful floods in Dayton, U.S.A., men and women were all engaged in helping to repair the damage, and women of all classes helped in the work. Owing to the filthy conditions left by the floods, the women found themselves hampered by their skirts, so most of them sensibly discarded their petticoats and adopted man's clothing for the time being.

AN INTERESTING LECTURE.

It was a very unusual gathering at which Mrs. Holman presided at the Blackfriars Training College last Thursday afternoon. The big classroom was filled with girls and youths, the students of the college, who had come to listen to Miss Hodge speak on the suffrage cause in England. Some of the audience had come from real interest in the subject; a few had come to scoff; many had come from mere curiosity, or because they might find some entertainment; the different motives could be read in their faces.

But in the few words introducing the lecturer, Mrs. Holman reminded her listeners that they were greatly privileged in having put before them the history of the great cause which is agitating the minds of men and women in all parts of the world, by one who has studied the subject from every point; and the attention of the audience was captured instantly, nor did it flag for a moment during Miss Hodge's speech.

In a calm but eloquent manner the speaker gave a brief sketch of the woman's movement in England from the end of the Eighteenth Century. She told of Mary Wollstonecraft, of Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, of the earliest Reform Bills, that robbed women landowners of the right they had held, with men, of nominating members of Parliament. She spoke of the decision that the word "person" in the bill referred only to the male; and of the test case of the women who trespassed on ground where a sign said, "Persons trespassing will be prosecuted," and who were punished because, in the words of the Judge, "women were not persons in the eye of the law in the matter of privileges, but they were persons in the matter of penalties."

She spoke of the great educational movement amongst English women since the late sixties; of the women who had competed with and beaten men in their own subjects at the old universities, but to whom the degree had been, and still is, refused. And, coming down to later days, she told of the 28,000 factory women who had asked the member for their district to redress their wrongs, of the promise given and broken by that member; and of the subsequent remark that the "28,000 women were not equal to one drunken boilermaker, for he had a vote, and they were voteless."

Then she came to the question of militancy. She showed how for years and years the women worked quietly and in a "lady-like" way for the vote; how they wrote books, gave lectures, held meetings, presented endless petitions; only to be ignored and set aside again and again and again. How, when they became a little more forcible, and stood up in public meetings to ask questions or cry "Votes for women," they were ejected with cruelty; and how at last the younger women in the movement, tired of their fruitless endeavours, urged upon the older women the doctrine of militancy. They quoted Mr. Gladstone as authority, and Mr. Lloyd George's own words, "The only weapon of the voteless is violence." And they instanced Mr. John Burns's example in smashing the windows of the West End shops, some years ago. And because their ills were desperate they tried their desperate remedies.

"Property is the modern idol," said the speaker, "and so the suffragists attacked property, and only property. In not one instance have they attempted personal injury, though for themselves they have braved and endured untold pain. And only women perhaps can realise what it means to those women to go out and destroy. To men the work of destruction is easier; it is the usual thing in disputes about territory for men to go to war and destroy both life and property. But to women such destruction is abhorrent, and it is only the force of the wrong to be righted that drives them to such methods."

Then the speaker told of the underlying motive in the whole suffrage fight. It is because their education has opened their eyes to the appalling conditions which exist in England amongst women and children; because they understand the awfulness of the social evils, the sweating, the overcrowding, and their menace to the whole race, that these women think that they should have a voice in making laws to alleviate these evils. And it is because they honestly and truly believe that no race can reach its highest until its women are free that they think no price too big to pay for that freedom. And the lecturer reminded her listeners of the religious side of the movement, "which you do not seem to realise in Australia." The Church armies of the suffragists number many thousands, and include a number of clergymen, who appreciate the women's efforts to improve the conditions of humanity. "And the big law-abiding public is with us," said the speaker. "All the disturbances at meetings are made by a few larrikins; while our bitterest opponents are those wealthier men who believe that the woman's vote will interfere with their profits or pleasures, or both."

In speaking of public opinion on the subject, Miss Hodge mentioned Florence Nightingale as an instance of the change of public opinion in a few years. "It is the custom now to speak of Florence Nightingale as a model of all the womanly virtues; but in her own day she was called a 'bold hussy,' who wanted to go to the Crimea so that she could be with the soldiers. She is called a 'ministering angel' and the 'Lady of the Lamp.' Yet she might be called the 'woman with the hatchet,' for on one occasion, tired of waiting for the officer with the keys of the medicine chest to return from the mess, she took a hatchet and broke open the chest to procure the medicine needed by the sick. Some day perhaps," said the speaker, "the woman with a hammer" will be placed on a pinnacle, too."

THE EVOLUTION OF THE NOVEL.

Nowadays we take our novels seriously. Where in former times they were read merely for amusement or relaxation, they have now become the platform on which are discussed all the problems which life presents to us. By successive stages the novel has passed through the realms of fairyland, through the regions of fanciful romance, through the stagecraft of incident probable or improbable, to the world of human nature from its crudest, rawest expression, to the highly-evolved flower of civilisation. We are all interested in psychology just now, and the novel which is a psychological study is the one most in vogue. The novel pictures not only the life and manners, but above all the thought, of its age, and the novel of to-day is a reflection of the complex life of to-day.

In all times there have been novels which have given us studies of character—such a one, for instance, as "Clarissa Harlowe." But here we are shown not so much development of character as character fixed or determined by the conditions of life. Everything is clear-cut and precise; there is no shading, no rounding off, none of that insensible merging of one phase into another which accompanies growth and denotes activity instead of mere passivity. It stands in relation to the modern novel as did the silhouette to the modern photography which it preceded. Fanny Burney's "Evelina" and Jane Austen's inimitable books, faithful mirrors of their times, afford evidence of character, being largely the result of environment by picturing the passive nature of at least the feminine element in that intensely artificial age. Life has since those days become more complicated, more perplexing, more full of problems, yet withal more natural and free; and we turn to the novel of to-day to study the development of human nature under these altered conditions. Modern unrest expresses itself freely in this the chosen vehicle for the portrayal of our moods, and in its pages therefore we read the signs and tendencies of our times. There we see depicted the growing desire for freedom, accompanied by an increasing dislike of pretence, which animates the vigorous spirit of modernity; the struggle of the individual for full development to the uttermost possibility, with an impulse towards greater frankness in human intercourse which finds an answering echo in our own hearts. In the contemplation of the well-drawn character studies which the modern novelist lays before us we learn that action is the direct result of character, rather than that natural sequence of environment which was a feature of an era of repression. In the masterly dissection of human nature, in the accurate limning of mental processes, the hidden springs of action are laid bare, and we turn from the wonderful analysis presented to us by the master-hand to look upon humanity at large with clearer vision, deeper insight, and better understanding.

J.B.M.

THE LAGOON.

On winter mornings, when the soft, pearly fog is slowly driven from the valley by the golden shafts of the sun, it lies in the cradle of the green slopes like a shimmering sheet of glass, reflecting the purple-flowered lucerne paddocks that clothe the softly swelling rise that undulates to the oak and willow fringed banks of the winding river. It mirrors the sienna-tinted rushes that grow about the point where the boxtrees are, the brilliant emerald green of the water-couch along the headlands of the cultivation, the great weeping-willow at the upper end, and smiling mosaics of cloudless blue. At sunset it is all faery hues, rose and cadmium and golds, fading with ineffable softness into the tender mauves and greys that come with the day's closing, when it would seem as if the water, too, fell into slumber when night's purple shadow steals over the distant hills. Before a storm, when the wind bends the tree tops and roars on with a hint of menace, the water is churned into anger, and is sullen and turgid and troubled, and then grey beneath the beat of the rain. Every hour brings some mutation unto it; it responds even as a woman to the changes that the hours bring, a sensient thing of moods.

It is sanctuary for the birds! The feathered nomads of the air pause here, sometimes the graceful black swans halt awhile on their long flight west, conjuring up pictures of reed-fringed, sluggishly-flowing rivers between flat banks in the land where the sun sets red. Black duck and wood duck and teal flock here, following the season's changes; sometimes the ibis fly over in a graceful sweeping phalanx, flown far from the brown plains north-west and the reedy swamps; the pelicans come and dart their great curved beaks after fish with their own characteristic gesture, a graceful grey crane paces in stately wise amongst the reeds that skirt the water, and more rarely the beautiful white ibis is seen upon the water. Always wandering on the wing, the prey of every sportsman wherever they make their haunt, do they leave their sanctuary with regret when they turn for the wide north-west again?

On moonlit nights the lake is transformed into an enchanted mere. It would seem but fitting if from some great space of shadow there should put forth the dusky barge with the Three Queens of legend, for this might well be the island-valley of Avilion on nights of mystery.

It is all enchantments and witcheries; a mirror in which Diana loves to peep. Sometimes she is coy, and hides her face beneath a fleecy-cloud scarf, sometimes she is sad and the silvery glory glimmers but wanly through the murk, sometimes she laughs for pure joy of her own loveliness, and the surface of the water breaks into unnumbered laughter, and every dimple has caught the luminous magic of a star. I have stood and watched it when it was swimming in the sheen of the moon, dreamy and mystic, and then behind the dark trees the great, golden moon rose and threw a glistening path of light across the water, and tinsel-like threads of glittering silver cut the rich darkness of the shadows. On summer nights, sitting in the garden with the star-spangled sky overhead, and the good green grass below, with the strange subtle scent of petunias in the air, and the crickets droning an accompaniment, fancy sets sail upon a sea of dreams, but no dream is as fair as the moon-kissed lagoon in the cup of the hills.

NURSING IN ENGLAND.

English hospital authorities are being faced by the fact that the stream of volunteers for the nursing profession is diminishing, and that the women who are offering are no longer the best of their class. Up to the present the nursing profession has attracted countless women, not only because it was one of the first to be opened to educated women, but because it is a vocation. But conditions of life are changing, and as nurses in the old country have not had the same consideration as their sisters in Australia, the question of supply is beginning to be a problem.

"Regarded strictly as a profession, and not as a philanthropic occupation, nursing offers singularly little inducement to any woman wishing to make herself independent," says a writer on the subject in the "Englishwoman." "Though hours are in most hospitals not as long as formerly, and working conditions have somewhat improved, the crux of the whole difficulty, the extreme shortness of a nurse's professional life, is unaffected by any recent reforms. Indeed, the tendency of present-day hospital policy in deferring training to a late age, and appointing young matrons to important positions, is all in the direction of shortening the professional career of nurses who do not obtain matronships. The demand for nurses is more and more becoming a demand for women who are prepared to undertake work which absorbs their whole energies for ten to fifteen years, and leaves them at the end, without occupation, without substantial earnings, to spend the rest of their lives in no better case than that of women who have never trained themselves for any profession, or made any effort to attain monetary independence. Women will always be willing to sacrifice themselves to a great cause, but they will not consent much longer to be worn out and thrown aside ten, twenty, or thirty years too soon. To begin training at 23 (as they do in England), to obtain a certificate at 27, to pursue her profession till 35, to remain a precarious five years at a hospital, which would never contemplate engaging a woman of her age; can anyone put this before a woman of ability and energy as a tolerable profession? A professed nun renounces many things, but she is not thrown back into the world when the world has become nothing to her. It is this, not hardships, deprivations, the physical and moral disgusts inseparable from continuous contact with disease, which is at last slowly weighing down the balance against the most honourable of professions."

The fact that almost all the large English hospitals refuse probationers under the age of 23 hampers a nurse at the outset, for in most professions—medicine or teaching, for instance—a woman is nearly through her course at that age, and most girls cannot afford to wait all those years before wage-earning. Then follow four years training, with a salary averaging £18 at the larger hospitals, and very much less at smaller institutions. The nurse's working hours are ten or twelve every week day, and eight or ten on Sunday; and night duty may be as long as 14 hours. She receives one whole holiday a month, and two or three weeks at the end of each year. A great part of her training time is spent in doing servant's work for less than servant's pay, or in earning money for the hospital by nursing outside patients. "This is the work," says the writer, "which weeds out all but the strongest nurses before they are 35, which, unhappily, weeds out a large proportion whose skill, patience, and knowledge make them most valuable attendants upon the sick, but who must, perforce, be thrown aside, to be superseded by others, whose physical vigour is their greatest claim to the selection."

THE TOMBOY.

"I'm really worried about Molly," said an anxious mother. "She is a regular tomboy. There's hardly a day that she isn't 'kept in' for some prank or other at school, and though I never seem to be without a needle in my hand, she never has anything fit to wear. She is never out of mischief."

"If she were never in mischief, I think you would have more cause for complaint," said the grandmother, soothingly. "I have known a lot of girls in my life, and it is my experience that if a girl is never naughty she is either sly or ill."

"Oh granny, what a dreadful thing to say!"

"It's true all the same. Young creatures are not meant to be models of propriety and quietness. All the while they run about, and jump and tear their pretty frocks, their bodies are growing naturally, and while they are thinking out some fresh prank and joining in some new mischief their minds are growing. Even when they are being wilful and disobedient their personalities are developing."

"But, granny, you don't mean to say that you would encourage a girl to be wild and wilful and noisy!"

"Not at all, my dear. I should endeavour to teach her to be none of the three; but I should not worry myself into wrinkles because she did not change from a healthy, irresponsible child into a sedate young woman while I waited.

"The girl who is always quiet and well-behaved, and never in mischief, is unnatural," went on the older woman gravely. "She is either lacking in physical strength, or else she is finding a less legitimate outlet for her energies—perhaps both. It is just as natural for boys and girls to get into scrapes as it is for lambs and ponies to run and frisk in the paddocks. It is the natural outlet. And it is the mother's part to direct the child's instincts so that the inherent energy is not checked, but diverted into wiser channels as the child grows up. As long as a girl is truthful and generous and honest in her mischief a mother has no cause for fear, and it rests with her to see that the dear, delightful, naughty girl grows up into a dear, delightful woman."

"Oh, there's nothing sly or mean about Molly," interjected the mother. "Whatever she does is done openly, and ——"

"Mother, mother," shrieked a young voice, and a bright-faced girl of twelve burst open the door.

"Mother, dear, I'm so sorry, I've torn my new dress. I couldn't help it. I was trying to open Lucy Brown's gate for her—she's so little you know, mother—and I had to climb up to lean over to get the old latch, and a horrid old nail was in the fence and tore me. Look!"

She held up a jagged tear in the blue serge skirt, and gazed at it ruefully.

"Isn't it a terror?" she exclaimed.

"Yes, it is a bad tear," said the grandmother: "but if you slip on another frock and bring your thimble I will show you how to darn this."

"Oh, granny, that will be fun. I've never mended a dress before. I won't be a shake." She skipped out of the room, leaving the door wide open behind her.

"Oh, isn't she hopeless!" said the mother, as she rose to close the door. "She's only wore that dress twice."

"Hopeless," said the grandmother, indignantly. "Not a bit of it. She was truly sorry that she had torn her frock, and is eager to mend it. And, remember, she was helping little Lucy Brown when she did it. Hopeless, indeed!"

"Oh, granny, I'm afraid you are hopelessly prejudiced," laughed the mother. "But she really is a darling."

"Of course she is," said the grandmother, threading her needle.

COMPULSORY CREAM GRADING.

In his address to the Co-operative Dairy Factory Managers' Conference yesterday, the Minister for Agriculture mentioned some of the features of the Dairy Bill that he hopes to bring before Parliament. Mr. Trefle thus practically repeats his performance of some 12 months ago. At the last conference of managers we were told about this bill, and given an indication of its contents. But the bill has not yet become law, or even started in that direction. Such delay is disappointing. It is to be hoped that next year will not see Mr. Trefle or some other Minister still promising a new bill covering the dairying industry. Definite action is wanted. The Minister's remarks on previous occasions prove this. Other evidence emphasises the necessity for reform, and all practical experience endorses it. For example, Mr. Trefle's statements before the annual conference of butter factory managers last year showed that he had abundant evidence of the necessity for improving the position in regard to the testing of cream at the factories. We were then assured that action would be taken to protect the supplier, but nothing has been done since. Now Mr. Trefle promises to provide for what he terms compulsory grading of cream, but intends apparently to leave grading optional. Of course this is a contradiction, but as we understand it the Minister will leave it to suppliers to say whether it shall be compulsory that their cream should be graded. He perceives that there may be instances where suppliers will consider it hopeless endeavouring to produce a first-class article, and be satisfied to lump the good and the bad. It remains—providing Mr. Trefle's bill ever makes a public appearance—to see how this is going to be arranged exactly. It is rather difficult to understand the wisdom of making "compulsory grading optional."

The main thing in regard to the grading and testing of cream, however, is to ensure that the suppliers will be honestly treated. Compulsory grading, if properly supervised, will lead to the production of a better quality of cream, and thus materially help the butter-maker. It is right, therefore, that Mr. Trefle should make provision to ensure that the supplier shall obtain an honest test. As has been recommended in these columns, the example of Queensland is to be followed, and the bill will compel the publication by butter factories of the amount of butter-fat purchased, and the amount of commercial butter manufactured. If there is an abnormal "overrun" it will soon be apparent under such conditions, and the manager will have to explain matters. Suppliers will be effectively protected, and the man who is producing a first-class cream will not be penalised, and no manager will be forced to adopt methods he does not approve of owing to unfair competition. As we have pointed out, while the majority of our factories are testing suppliers' cream correctly and honestly, in certain cases the tests are juggled with for certain purposes. The practice appears to be more prevalent than is generally supposed, and there has been enough said to warrant protective action being taken. The matter is the simpler because this can be done without incurring any hardship on the factory manager who is not guilty, while in addition it protects him from unscrupulous competition. Mr. Trefle is fully seized with the need for checking the testing of cream supplies, and will take steps to that end. For that reason it is to be wished that his bill may become law, although, all things considered, it is doubtful if it will.

A FORESTRY PROPOSITION.

A scheme suggested by Mr. E. K. Wolstenholme in another column is worth the attention of the forestry authorities. As is the case with many of those who are dependent in any way upon the timber industry, fruitgrowers have reason to be somewhat alarmed as to the future supply of fruit cases. The industry demands a better case than was accepted in the past, but present prices are high for good cases, and likely in future years to be much higher. Suitable timber for making cases is growing scarcer, we are told, and while the problem may not be of immediate urgency, it certainly appears that it will in time be one of the many arising from failure to conserve timber resources and make provision for future requirements. That is unless some progressive step be taken now. Mr Wolstenholme not only directs attention to this prospective trouble, but also outlines what certainly appears to be a very practical proposition. He points out that the rough mountain country, which is Crown land and likely to remain so, in the Bathurst and other districts, will grow Pinus insignis to perfection, which has proved to be a fine lumber tree. The utilisation of rough Crown lands for growing this timber should be quite practicable, and while virtually reclaiming waste land would go far to meet a strenuous difficulty in future years. Unless all the world's best authorities are making a great mistake, the country which has the enterprise to embark on such re-afforestation schemes, content to wait a generation or more for a return, will be handsomely repaid in the end. Whether it would be an attractive investment for private enterprise is a matter that those interested must settle for themselves. Future returns should be very handsome, but a long time has to be spent waiting for them, and during the interval, expense of maintenance has to be reckoned with, in addition to the original outlay. The State, however, occupies an unusually strong position in this respect, for it has the land available without cost, and a supervising staff that has to be maintained in any case, while the period during which the trees must mature is a mere detail in the life of a State. There is evidence of a slow awakening to the necessity for more attention to forestry, and in this case definite lines are submitted which should appeal to the authorities.

CO-OPERATIVE DAIRY FACTORIES.

MANAGERS IN CONFERENCE.

The eighth annual conference of the Co-operative Dairy Factory Managers and Secretaries' Association of New South Wales was commenced in the clubroom of the Hotel Grand Central yesterday afternoon. The president, Mr. J. Searl, presided.

The Minister for Agriculture, Mr. Trefle, in the course of an address, explained the bill he will introduce shortly to Parliament.

The secretary's report stated that members were showing a keen interest in the association. The Royal Agricultural Society had granted the free use of a pavilion for holding a winter dairy exhibition. Gratitude was expressed to the Government departments and various persons who had assisted the exhibition. This year's schedule had brought out a number of fresh competitions. The committee had offered a prize for cheese, and had decided to ask the cheese expert, Mr. Matthew Wallace, to read a paper at the conference bearing on cheese manufacture. Letters were sent to each factory drawing attention to these facts, but, he was sorry to say, the response had been poor.

The president congratulated members on the success which has accrued from their several conferences. Many things had been attempted and carried through, and the advantages to the dairying industry had been considerable. Since their last conference he had met Mr. Sinclair, Mr. Massey Greene, and Mr. Fuller in Melbourne. As members of the House of Representatives those gentlemen had given him every assistance in regard to the moisture standard and grade-marking questions. He had listened to the debate in the House, and as they knew the moisture test had since been placed back at 16 per cent., and the grade-marking had been discontinued. The dairying industry had lost a valued friend since Mr. Fuller was no longer in the House. His knowledge of the industry, and his understanding of their needs gave added weight to his arguments. He (Mr. Searl) had looked into the question of amalgamation with the kindred Managers' Association in Victoria. The great difficulty was that the Victorian association included all dairy factory managers, while in New South Wales membership was limited to managers of co-operative factories. The only suggestion he could make was that there might be a Federal executive to which important questions should be referred.

In moving "That an endeavour be made to have all inspectors work up to the one standard so as to remove the friction caused by different officers giving conflicting instructions to dairymen," the president said they would all understand the reason for the motion. Dairymen had had to put up with conflicting instructions from officers from different departments. He quoted a case where one inspector ordered a partition to be taken down, and a little later another inspector ordered it to be rebuilt. "We are overrun with inspectors and don't know where we are," said Mr. Searl.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Ainsworth, and carried. During the discussion one speaker said he knew of a dairyman who had closed his dairy in disgust owing to the trouble he had had with conflicting instructions.

Mr. H. J. Ainsworth moved "That we members of the Co-operative Dairy Factory Managers' and Secretaries' Association of New South Wales urge upon the Minister for Agriculture to bring in legislation prohibiting the sale of glassware for milk and cream testing unless it be certified as being correct."

In seconding the motion which was carried, the president said he understood there was a law in Queensland prohibiting the sale of any glassware that had not been certified. Such regulations were badly needed in New South Wales.

Mr. Vinden and Mr. John Searl supported the motion.

The Minister for Agriculture, Mr. Trefle, who was greeted with applause, said the annual gatherings of the association resulted in a distinct improvement of the dairying industry. They had excellent expert knowledge at command regarding dairying, but the difficulty was to get people to accept the advice that was offered. Last year he made the association certain definite promises, and he had drafted a bill which he thought embodied every important suggestion that had been made to him. He had not submitted the bill to Parliament, but he hoped to introduce it during the coming session.

"Among the leading features of the bill are provisions for the registration of these margarine factories, and the inflicting of heavy penalties against the sellers of margarine under false colours. (Cheers.) This is one of the difficulties that has cropped up in connection with the butter industry of this State. It is a serious problem in London, of course, and has been for some considerable time, but now we have margarine being manufactured in Sydney on a large scale. (Hear, hear.) I want to be distinctly understood when I state that we do not object to margarine being placed upon the market, so long as it is plainly marked 'margarine,' and not sold as any other commodity under misrepresentations. What we do object to is a person selling margarine under the cover of butter. (Hear, hear.) That practice is distinctly harmful to producers of this country, to dairymen, and to the public, who are paying for an article which they honestly believe to be butter. One of the most effective methods of dealing with this traffic is by the registration of the sales of margarine and the persons to whom it is sold. For instance, if a restaurant is known to be purchasing large quantities of margarine, and it is also known that the commodity placed upon the tables was represented to be butter, it would be a case for investigating whether the margarine was being mixed with butter. If the public prefer margarine that is their business. But let them know when they are getting margarine. (Applause.) The restriction I have included in this bill will not be a restriction upon the honest manufacturer of margarine.

"I have also provided that persons who test cream shall pass a standard in order that such persons may give a correct opinion. There are also provisions in the bill for the checking of glassware and other ware sold for the testing of cream, and for the publishing of the amount of butter made and the amount paid for by proprietary and other butter factories.

"Then the compulsory grading of cream is provided for. I understand there may be cases, owing to certain conditions regarding locality and so forth, where it is practically hopeless for suppliers to expect to produce first-class butter." (Applause.)

Mr. Trefle went on to emphasise the necessity there was for users of milking machines to keep them clean. In some cases which the department had investigated it was found that filthy dirty machines were being used. Prosecutions had been initiated, and more would follow if an alteration did not follow. Many dairymen were not told when they purchased the machines that it was absolutely necessary to wash them after each milking.

Mr. Trefle promised to consider whatever resolution the conference adopted.

The conference will continue its deliberations to-day.

FRUIT CASE TIMBER.

Mr. E. K. Wolstenholme, Bathurst, writes:—One of the vital questions that concerns the orchardist of to-day is the future supply of first-class case-making timber. The present price of a good case is very high indeed, and it seems that the future must bring an increased price. Suitable timber is certainly becoming scarcer, and the orchardist of the future will be even more particular than he is now, and will not be satisfied with anything less than a clean white case. Immense inroads upon the white pine forests of the world have been made, and I think the demand exists for some action to be taken by the State authorities to ensure at least some supply of suitable timber for this purpose. The need will not only be felt by the fruitgrower in years to come, but by many industries. I wish to outline a scheme in the rough which seems possible. I am familiar with the rough mountain country adjoining Bathurst. The soil is mostly of a volcanic nature, and the rainfall averages from 30 to 40 inches. Many thousands of acres of this hilly country, returning practically no revenue, will grow Pinus insignis to perfection, as can be seen in various places. This pine has been proved to be (when grown fast, as it will grow in this soil with heavy rainfall) one of the finest lumber trees for case timber. It is tough, pliable, and light, and would grow fine logs in 20 years. There are immense areas of Crown lands not likely to be used profitably for years to come, stretching from Tarana through Sunny Corner, Dark Corner, to Palmer's Oakey to Wattle Flat, bounded on the Bathurst side by Limekilns, Peel, Napoleon Reef, and Yetholme. There are probably many other suitable areas in other parts of the State.

What could be better than this great area covered with valuable lumber? What an asset from land hitherto valueless. The cost is small, out of all proportion as compared to the ultimate return. Expense would be the ringbarking of a great deal of heavy timber, which alone would greatly improve the land value. The raising of seedlings: Ideal areas can be selected in many parts for nurseries to propagate the young trees. The transplanting: there are many methods of doing this operation at a great rate. With the exception of very little expense in thinning and trimming, nature does the rest. Rabbits I have known to attack these trees when they could get nothing else, but the resinous nature of the bark is very distasteful to them, and I think in the open, with many other shrubs growing, they would never touch them. Such a scheme seems a clear, obvious necessity. With the mills among the timber it has the making of a great industry. It should pay handsomely either Government or private enterprise. It will help orchardists and others in a practical way, and should be indirectly worth millions to the State in years to come at a present expenditure of a few thousand pounds.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

MR. TREFLE REVIEWS HIS WORK.

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE.

Speaking to a "Herald" representative, Mr. J. L. Trefle, Minister for Agriculture, made a review of his administration, and spoke of some important developments which he has planned for the immediate future. The Department of Agriculture, Mr. Trefle pointed out, had been for years the most neglected of all the State departments, but of recent years there has been an awakening to the great importance which the administration of agricultural affairs has upon the development of the State.

"Three years ago," said the Minister, "there was not one flock of merino sheep upon any of the State farms. Realising that it was the duty of the State to preserve the representative types of our grand merino flocks, I have established one at Nyngan, one at Yanco, and one at Coonamble. The staff of sheep instructors to the State farm students has also been increased from one to five. In addition to this, experiments are now being conducted with the blending of longwools and crossbreds for the production of mutton, especially with a view to exportation."

Referring to the dairying industry, Mr. Trefle said there were now 15,000 head of cattle being scientifically tested by experts. The object was to convince dairy farmers that a continuous scientific testing of their herds was an essential to success and stability. Farmers in this State did not seem to realise the possibilities of harm which lay in the retention of worthless milkers among their herds.

"When the Scottish Commission visited Sydney," said Mr. Trefle, "they pointed out that our Clydesdale horses for farm purposes were in some respects inferior to those most favoured at home. In order to assist stockowners to secure horses of the latest type, I arranged with Mr. Dunlop, of the Scottish Commission, to select representative types for New South Wales. That has been done, and I recently imported six Clydesdale stallions and six mares for use on the State farms."

The commission given to Mr. Herbert to visit the leading ostrich farms of the world and to select some of the best specimens for New South Wales, was also declared by Mr. Trefle to have been eminently successful. About a dozen of these valuable birds, imported from North Africa, are now located at the Yanco Experimental Farm, and the Minister hopes in this way to have laid the foundation of an industry which is worth something like three million pounds sterling per annum to the South African settlers.

Speaking of the number of appointments of experts which have been made during the last three years, the Minister said he looked upon these as perhaps the most important aspect of his administration. He believed that the appointment of an economic botanist, whose duty it was to study the natural grasses of the State, and to advise as to their propagation, especially in the more arid districts, would eventually demonstrate that grass was even a more valuable asset to the State than wheat. The appointment of an analyst for the stock areas of the Northern Rivers districts, to educate the farmers in the preparation of the anti-tick dip, is another that Mr. Trefle is convinced will yield payable results. The same may be said of the tobacco culture expert. Mr. Trefle believes that tobacco growing may be made a payable proposition in New South Wales. To further the development of this industry the Minister has appointed an expert to advise upon the suitability of the soil and other matters relating to tobacco culture.

Speaking of his work in the Forestry Department, Mr. Trefle says:—"I think I can honestly claim to have made some substantial progress in this direction. I have established afforestation stations at Tuncurry, Armidale, and on the Southern tableland, and I have conducted re-afforestation experiments at Grafton, Coopernook, Bellingen, Pine Ridge, and Kempsey." The inauguration of a wattle plantation and the establishment of a camp for convalescent consumptives are other directions in which the Minister claims to have done something really worth doing.

From the training grounds of the Hawkesbury Agricultural College, and the schools of agriculture and veterinary science at the Sydney University, the Minister hopes eventually to have available a number of young trained, scientific officers, who will keep in constant touch with all branches of farming throughout the State. These officers will be used to assist in extending the work of the department, particularly in regard to the education of farmers generally, the breeding of new varieties of wheat, oats, maize, and other cereals, lucerne, and potatoes. It is also intended, says the Minister, to establish a farm where stock diseases will be under close observation and subject to scientific treatment. Consequent upon the heavy demand upon the department for its high-class pure seed wheats Mr. Trefle states that instructions have been issued to increase the area under crop at the State farms. Arrangements are also being made at the new demonstration farms at Condobolin, Temora, and Nyngan for a considerable area to be put under crop this year. A seed potato farm is another of the projects in the Minister's mind for the immediate future. Instructions have also been given for a start to be made on the breeding of mules for tention. It knows that what he will have to work on the farms in the hot, dry districts of the State, and jacks are now being imported for that purpose. Vignerons will be interested to know that the Minister is arranging to have a very large number of grafts on to phylloxera-resistant stocks made during next season. It is intended to increase the purchase of these stocks each year, and thus obtain wood for propagation work.

"The above," concluded Mr. Trefle, "are indications of what is being done for the producers of the State. They are, I think, some justification for the remark I have made on more than one occasion to the effect that it is intended to make the Department of Agriculture the most up to date and progressive in Australia."

THE BUTTER BUSINESS.

ROYAL COMMISSION ADVOCATED.

WINGHAM.—Discussing the London butter market with the "Herald" correspondent, Mr. F. Hibberd (who was for some years manager of a factory in the Bega district, then one in Walamba, and later at Wingham and West Maitland) asserted that the practice of paying first-grade prices for second-grade cream—combined with the fixing of the Sydney market at a fabulous price—are the two factors that have played the principal part in wrecking the London butter market. The same factors, he contends, have brought about the present "margarine menace." "The custom of paying unwarranted prices for an inferior article has had the effect of lowering the grade of a great proportion of New South Wales butter; while the "rigging" of the Sydney butter market at inflated values has told its tale in frocing (practically) managers and directors of butter factories to store larger quantities of butter in London for six to nine months, in order to avoid, if possible, a loss. It is fair to assume that the major portion of the butter was second grade when it went into cold storage, and it can well be imagined that after being there nine months it would not come out in any degree improved. Mr. Hibberd holds that there can be no two opinions as to how good, wholesome margarine, manufactured on up-to-date principles, will compare with such butter. The Minister for Agriculture should appoint a Royal Comission to inquire into matters pertaining to the industry.

NEW ZEALAND CHEESE.

DIRTY MILKING MACHINES.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), June 17.

A question which vitally affects the dairying industry of New Zealand was discussed at the annual meeting of the South Island Dairy Association. In a former letter were published extracts from a circular forwarded to dairy factories by the New Zealand Dairy Commissioner, Mr. D. Cuddie, which impugned the cleanliness of the milking machine, and showed how its use was affecting prices for dairy produce at home. At the meeting Mr. Cuddie said there were ample proofs that the complaints made against some of the New Zealand cheese during the past season were quite justified. If one looked at past annual reports or discussions throughout New Zealand it would be seen that the matter had been dealt with, and that warnings had been issued that unless something was done to remove defects the dairy people would hear about them as soon as the market prices were against the trade. The increase in the cheese output in the last six years had been 120 per cent., while last year it was 22 per cent., and this year 26 per cent., and it was only reasonable to expect, when the industry was going ahead, at this enormous rate, that the Dominion could not maintain the high standard of a few years ago. One reason was that some people were going into the business who had little knowledge of what was required. As for milking machines, there were considerably over 4000 of them in use in New Zealand. Any experienced factory manager would say that it was more difficult for him to manufacture first-class cheese to-day than it was before the machines became so common. When the recent trouble arose in connection with complaints from home, he had as many machines examined as possible before the season ended. Some 300 machines had been examined, and he found that only 23 per cent. were clean. Then 50 per cent. of the machines were absolutely bad, and in a very serious condition indeed, and the remainder were not clean, but not as bad as the 50 per cent. They had 4000 machines in use, and they had to admit that half of them were not what they should be—a very serious state of things. Something must be done to overcome that state of things; a combination should be made among factory managers, directors, and the department. He was not in favour of appointing inspectors.

PURE MAIZE COMPETITION.

DAPTO.—The Dapto Agricultural Society has decided to hold a purebred maize competition, on similar lines to those of previous years. The Department of Agriculture is to be asked to supply three varieties of pure seed, and farmers can choose any two kinds they think fit. When the maize is grown it will be judged on the score card system, as adopted by the Department of Agriculture. Last year entries were received from all parts of this State and Queensland.

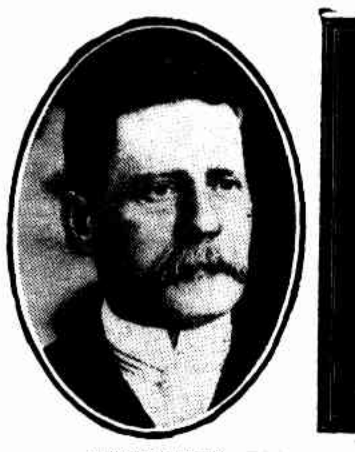
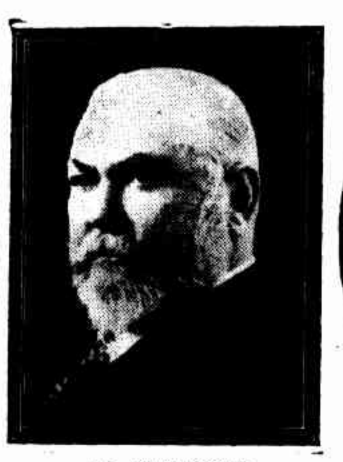
FEDERAL MINISTERS.

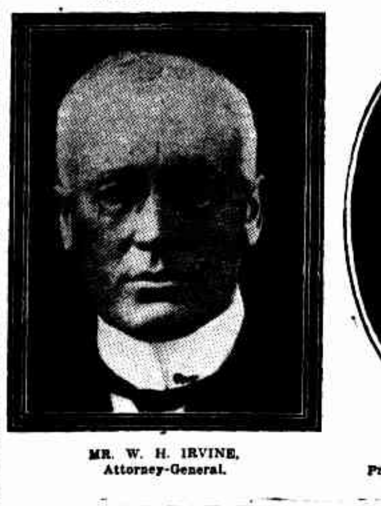


SENATOR MILLEN,
Minister for Defence.

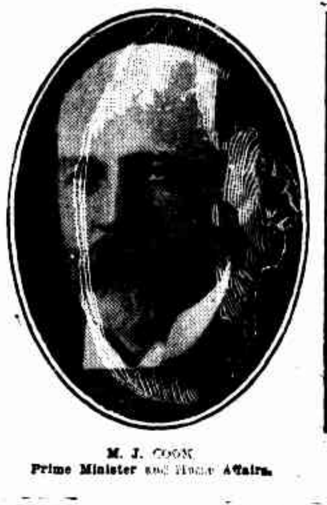


SIR JOHN FORREST,
Treasurer.

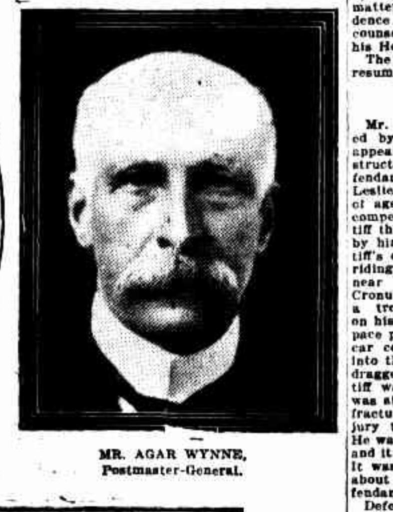
MR. W. H. KELLY,
Hon. Minister.



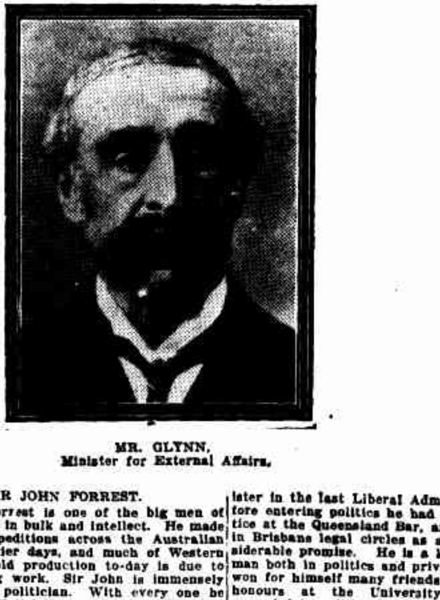
MR. W. H. IRVINE,
Attorney-General.



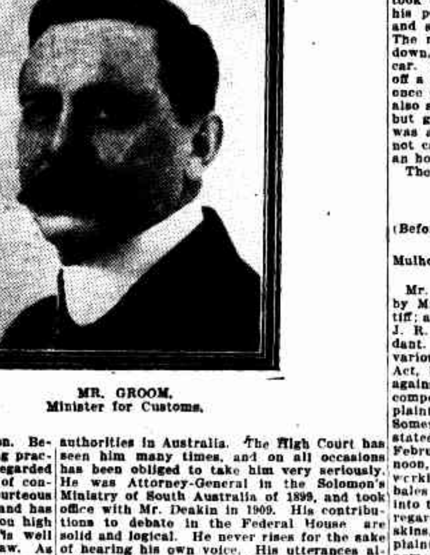
M. J. COOK,
Prime Minister and Home Affairs.



MR. AGAR WYNNE,
Postmaster-General.



MR. GLYNN,
Minister for External Affairs.



MR. GROOM,
Minister for Customs.

SIR JOHN FORREST.

Sir John Forrest is one of the big men of Australia—big in bulk and intellect. He made surprising expeditions across the Australian desert in earlier days, and much of Western Australia's gold production to-day is due to his pioneering work. Sir John is immensely popular as a politician. With every one he meets he is "Hail fellow, well met!" When he made his journey to the Coolgardie goldfields he was in the Western Australian Survey Department. Later he became in turn Deputy Surveyor-General, Acting Commissioner of Crown Lands, and Surveyor-General, with a seat in the Legislative Council. When the colony was granted a Constitution he became its first Premier, and held that office for 10 years. He was Postmaster-General in the first Federal Cabinet, and afterwards became Defence Minister and Minister for Home Affairs. When Mr. Deakin took office, in 1905, Sir John accepted the Treasurership, and he was Acting Prime Minister during the absence of Mr. Deakin at the Imperial Conference in London.

MR. W. H. IRVINE.

An Irishman from county Down, Mr. W. H. Irvine is one of the men who have made their mark in Australian politics. He is a lawyer by profession, and a perfect master of detail. Give him any subject, and he will get to the bottom of it with astonishing insight. When Mr. Irvine rises to speak the House is all at-say will be mercilessly to the point and relentlessly logical. Before entering Federal politics Mr. Irvine had a distinguished career in the Victorian Parliament. His greatest public service, perhaps, was the smashing of the Victorian railway strike.

MR. LYTTLETON GROOM.

Mr. Lyttleton Groom was Home Affairs Minister in the last Liberal Administration. Before entering politics he had a growing practice at the Queensland Bar, and was regarded in Brisbane legal circles as a lawyer of considerable promise. He is a kindly, courteous man both in politics and private life, and has won for himself many friends. He won high honours at the University, and is well grounded in politics, journalism, and law. As a public speaker, he has a good delivery, and makes sure of his case before he begins. The general opinion will be that Mr. Cook was wise in including him in the Ministry.

SENATOR E. D. MILLEN.

Senator Edward Davis Millen, who is 52 years of age, has been in Australian public life for nearly a quarter of a century. Before being elected to the New South Wales Legislative Assembly for the Bourke seat late in the eighties, he was proprietor and editor of a newspaper in the western district. Mr. Millen was one of the "young bloods"—James Ashton was another—who assisted in making 1898, Mr. Millen was defeated for the Legislative Assembly, Mr. (now Sir George) Reid nominated him to the Legislative Council. Three years later, on the inauguration of federation, he was elected to the Senate, and has been a member of that Chamber ever since. Senator Millen is one of the keenest politicians New South Wales, even the whole Commonwealth, has produced. He is probably the most rapid speaker in Australian public life.

MR. GLYNN.

Mr. P. McM. Glynn, 33 years ago, in Dublin, was awarded the medal of the Law Students' Debating Society for Ireland. He is almost as Irish in speech to-day as he was then. On Constitutional law he is one of the ablest authorities in Australia. The High Court has seen him many times, and on all occasions has been obliged to take him very seriously. He was Attorney-General in the Solomon's Ministry of South Australia of 1899, and took office with Mr. Deakin in 1909. His contributions to debate in the Federal House are solid and logical. He never rises for the sake of hearing his own voice. His utterances always have an important bearing on the subjects at issue, and he says what he has to say in the shortest possible time. He came from County Galway to Australia, in 1880, after having passed through Trinity College, Dublin. In debate his native wit occasionally breaks out, but he never discharges his shafts with the object of hurting any man's feelings. His friends are numerous and his enemies few. Mr. Glynn's selection for a portfolio will be welcomed on both sides of the House.

MR. AGAR WYNNE.

Mr. Agar Wynne was for some time leader of the Legislative Council in Victoria. In 1893-4 he was Postmaster-General and Solicitor-General in the Patterson Government. From 1900 to June, 1902, he was Solicitor-General in the second Turner and the Peacock Ministries. He was elected to the Federal Parliament in 1906, and is a member of the legal firm of Hamilton, Wynne, and Riddell, Melbourne.

MR. W. H. KELLY.

Mr. W. H. Kelly is one of the best "stonewallers" in the Commonwealth Parliament. He succeeded Sir William M'Millan as the representative of Wentworth in the House of Representative, and is one of the most fluent speakers in that Chamber. Mr. Kelly has made a close study of the defence question.

LAW REPORT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice and a jury of four.)

THE VALUE OF AUBURN LAND.

Gregg v Chief Commissioner for Railways.

Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Edwards, instructed by Mr. Norman E. Gregg, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Ralston, K.C., and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Mr. J. S. Cargill (Solicitor to the Railway Commissioners), for the defendant. This was an action brought by Ashton Hall Gregg against the Chief Commissioner for Railways for the purpose of having assessed the amount of compensation to which he was entitled for 12 acres of land at Auburn, near the Clyde Railway Station, and fronting Normanby and Chisholm streets, resumed by the Government in July, 1911. Mr. Campbell, in opening the case to the jury on the 12th instant, said that plaintiff had purchased the land in June, 1911, and prior to that date the Railway Commissioners were undisclosed competitors for the property. They desired, apparently, to acquire land in the vicinity in case it was needed for any railway work, not immediately contemplated, but which might be necessary hereafter, and they employed an agent to get as much of this land as they could. Before he purchased, Mr. Gregg made an inspection of the property, and ascertained that there was a large deposit of clay there, suitable for tile and drain pipe manufacture, etc. Being satisfied, therefore, that the venture for the purpose indicated was a promising one, he bought the land for £1200. A month afterwards the defendant resumed it, under the provisions of the Public Works Act, but as plaintiff considered that the valuation made by the defendant was too low, he brought the matter into Court for assessment. The evidence in the case was closed last week, and counsels' addresses having now terminated, his Honor briefly summed up to the jury.

The jury assessed the value of the property resumed at £2825.

MOTOR AND PONY COLLISION.

Horsfall v Honeybone.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Monahan, instructed by Messrs. Harold T. Morgan and Morgan, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Chubb, instructed by Mr. G. W. Phillips, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Leslie Vincent Horsfall, a boy about 10 years of age, against J. W. Honeybone, to recover compensation for injuries sustained by plaintiff through a collision between a pony ridden by him and defendant's motor car. Plaintiff's case was that on September 29 he was riding a pony, which was absolutely quiet, near Tempe bridge, on the way to Cronulla. After watering the pony at a trough near the hotel, he proceeded on his journey. A motor car going at a rapid pace passed him safely, but defendant's motor car coming up immediately afterwards ran into the pony, knocked the animal down, and dragged it along for some distance. The plaintiff was thrown under the motor car, and it was afterwards found that he had sustained a fracture of two ribs, a somewhat serious injury to the right knee, and minor injuries. He was an inmate at the hospital for a month, and it was two months before the knee healed. It was alleged that the accident was brought about by the negligent driving of the defendant's car. Damages were laid at £500.

Defendant pleaded not guilty, and gave evidence that after he crossed the bridge his motor was going at from eight to ten miles an hour in the middle of the road. He overtook the plaintiff, and was passing him when his pony suddenly swerved across the road, and struck the mud-guard of the motor car. The result was that the animal was knocked down, and plaintiff disappeared beneath the car. He afterwards extricated the boy, took off a couple of spurs he was wearing, and at once conveyed him to the hospital. Witness also stated that he was not racing at the time, but going so slowly that after the impact he was able to pull up within 6ft. The car was not capable of getting up a speed of 30 miles an hour.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury of four.)

INJURED ABOARD SHIP.

Mulholland v Darling Island Stevedoring and Lighterage Co., Ltd.

Mr. Perry and Mr. C. G. Addison, instructed by Mr. F. J. Tanner, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by Messrs. J. R. Baxter Bruce and Co., for the defendant. This was an action brought, under various sections of the Employers' Liability Act, by Robert Mulholland, wharf labourer, against the defendant company to recover compensation for injuries sustained by the plaintiff while working on board the steamer Somerset, lying at Darling Island. The case stated on behalf of the plaintiff was that on February 13 last, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, he and a number of other men were working in No. 4 hold of the steamer stowing bales of sheepskins as they were lowered into the hold. The superintendence above in regard to sending down the bales of sheepskins, by means of slings, was, according to plaintiff's contention, in the hands of a man named Highfield. After about eight or 10 slings had gone down an order was given to haul up the sling, and, while this order was being carried out, the hook attached to the sling caught the cross or outward beam of the hatch, and lifted the hatch coverings from their position. One portion fell into the hold, striking plaintiff, and fracturing one of his ribs, besides inflicting other injuries of a minor character. He was laid up for a considerable time, and since the accident had been unable to resume active work. He said that the accident had been caused by the negligence of the defendant company or its servants in failing to see that there was nothing to impede the clear working of the sling through the hatch. It was also alleged that the hook was defective. Damages were laid at £500.

Defendant company denied the negligence charged, and traversed the various counts relied upon in plaintiff's declaration.

Evidence was called for the purpose of establishing that orders were given before the loading of the sheepskins commenced to remove the coverings of the hatch, but this was not done. The accident was the result.

The case stands part heard.

A CASE SETTLED.

Relph v Rutty.

C. H. Relph sued Mark Rutty, importer, for £218 commission on the sale of Felix motor engines and a Mea magneto.

Mr. James and Mr. Markell, instructed by Mr. A. E. Whatmore, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Broomfield and Mr. Coen, instructed by Messrs. Lambton and Milford, for defendant.

When Mr. James opened the case to the jury a settlement was arranged, and plaintiff accepted a verdict for £200, without costs.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury of four at Darlinghurst.)

M'LEAN v BEDINGFIELD.

£1000 DAMAGES CLAIMED.

Linnora M'Lean sued William Bedingfield for assault and wrongful imprisonment, and claimed £1000 damages.

Mr. H. B. Bignold, instructed by Mr. A. D. Glover, appeared for plaintiff; Mr. F. S. Boyce, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, for the defendant.

This was a case in which the plaintiff, who is the wife of Mr. George M'Lean, squatter, of Paradise station, New South Wales, against whom an order for judicial separation was made by Mr. Justice Street in April, 1913, complained that the alleged assault and false imprisonment was committed by the defendant on October 6, 1911, while acting in his capacity of Inspector of Police, in charge of the Parramatta police district. Defendant had subsequently been promoted to the position of Superintendent of Police, stationed at Bourke.

The information set out that on October 6, 1911, defendant assaulted and beat the plaintiff, whereby the plaintiff became sick and wounded, and was for a long time unable to transact her business, and incurred expense for nursing and for surgical and medical attendance. Plaintiff also sued the defendant for imprisoning the plaintiff, and keeping her in prison for a long time. Damages were also claimed for that the defendant entered a room lawfully hired by the plaintiff from the proprietor of the Parkgate Hotel at Parramatta, and broke open certain boxes belonging to the plaintiff, and damaged certain wearing apparel and other goods belonging to the plaintiff, contained in the boxes, and elsewhere in the room.

Linnora M'Lean, plaintiff, stated that on the afternoon of the date in question, she was giving her husband a bath in the room of the hotel. Mrs. Mortelson rushed into the room and said: "The M'Lean's are here." She then saw the defendant enter the room, and she ordered him out, stating that she was not dressed. Defendant caught her by the right shoulder cruelly, and pushed her against the window. Had it not been for a chair near the window she would have been pushed through the window. Her husband then stepped between the defendant and herself, and said: "My wife is not dressed." Defendant said: "I have come to arrest this man. He is drunk and mad, and I will put him in a lunatic asylum." Plaintiff said: "My husband is not mad," and defendant replied: "You are not his wife; you are only living with him." She then showed defendant her marriage certificate. He read it, and said: "You're a liar." Her husband, who was 77 years of age, was very excited. Defendant was also throwing his arms about excitedly. He was in plain clothes, and she did not know he was a police officer. After her husband was dressed, defendant said: "I've had enough of this," and pushed her between the bed and the table. She could not get away, and her husband's two sons took her husband away. Defendant treated her with the greatest roughness. Mrs. Mortelson said: "Are you going to let them take your husband away," but when she tried to follow her husband defendant said, "If you meddle again I will have you locked up."

Counsel for plaintiff explained that this was the imprisonment complained of. Plaintiff alleged that she had been kept a prisoner in her room, when she wished to leave it.

Continuing her evidence, plaintiff said she afterwards found that her boxes and other property had been interfered with.

To Mr. Boyce: "I married Mr. M'Lean in 1911. He was my fifth husband. I had previously been married five times, but one of the men, William Doolan, had a wife living at the time. I had also passed as Mrs. Bentley for about two months, when I took my sister's name in order to draw some money due to her, and to keep her boy. Letters used to come addressed to Mrs. Montague, which was my sister's stage name, and I received them. I was convicted before Judge Docker on a charge of bigamy, for having married Mr. Baker, being at the time the wife of Mr. James. I was sentenced to two years. I was quite innocent. Mr. James was my sister's husband. I had no money at the time, and had no solicitor or witnesses. I did not swear that I never went by the name of Mrs. Stone. Charlie Stone was my first husband's name.

When shown some police court depositions signed by her, in which she denied ever having gone by the name of Stone, witness said: "I don't care how it went down; I never swore it. How could I say such a thing, when my own son, Charlie Stone, was in court, and there were letters in court addressed to me as Mrs. Stone.

In further reply to Mr. Boyce plaintiff admitted that she had sworn she was born in Raymond, Essex. At that time she believed that to be correct. When married to Mr. M'Lean she gave her place of birth as St. Louis, U.S.A. That was correct. She had lived in the same house as Mr. Bentley. They lived as brother and sister. He was called Mr. Bentley and she was called Mrs. Bentley. The Parramatta episode was the third time that her husband had been taken away from her. She had gone to Paradise twice to get him back. She had never threatened her husband with a revolver and forced him in that way to return with her. She had never struck the old man, and had always been most kind to him. M'Lean had never pleaded with her to let him go back to his son George. It was not a fact that M'Lean was continually drunk, and that drink was being constantly taken up to the bedroom.

Margaret Edwards stated that she had been employed at the Parkgate Hotel in October, 1911. She showed Inspector Bedingfield up to the M'Lean's room on one occasion, at the inspector's request. He opened one of the boxes in the room and looked through it.

Charles George Hadley, licensee of the Parkgate Hotel, stated that he saw Mr. M'Lean every day. He never saw him under the influence of drink. He had seen him many times apart from his wife and Mrs. Mortelsen. He would have been able to leave the place alone at any time if he had wanted to.

The case had not concluded when the Court rose.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice A. H. Simpson.)

HIPWOOD v WATERHOUSE.

The hearing was continued of the case in which Joseph Hipwood sought an injunction against Charles Waterhouse, the elder, in respect to alleged encroachment on and damage to the plaintiff's property.

Mr. T. P. Power (instructed by Mr. A. G. de L. Arnold) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. D. Maughan (instructed by Mr. S. M. Stephens) for the defendant.

The statement of claim, which had been amended, set out that the plaintiff was the owner of a house and land at No. 3 Paul-street, North Sydney, adjacent to land owned by the defendant. It was complained that a wall built by the defendant between the two allotments, on the top of which was a fence, and certain poles, had become insecure, and had encroached on the plaintiff's land, and that a quantity of loose soil and rubbish piled against the wall had caused water to flow on to the adjacent land. The plaintiff asked for an injunction restraining the defendant from continuing the encroachment, the deposit of soil, etc., and from neglecting to repair and reinstate the wall and the house adjacent so as to render them secure from collapse. It was further prayed that the defendant be compelled to remove the deposit, and to make good the damage and loss sustained by the plaintiff.

The defence pleaded prescription, the Statute of Limitations, laches, and acquiescence, it being stated that the dividing fence was in the same state 20 years ago.

The case stands part heard.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly.)

AN INTERESTING CASE.

Sassell v G. and C. Hoskins.

His Honor heard an application by Mr. Broomfield and Mr. Monahan, instructed by Messrs. Saywell and Saywell, on behalf of Kate May Sassell, widow, in her action against G. and C. Hoskins, claiming £2000 as compensation for the death of her husband, George Robert Sassell, who was killed whilst employed at the Lithgow Smelting Works. The action was taken by means of a common law count and under the Employers Liability Act. The verdict was in favour of defendants, but under section 9 of the Workmen's Compensation Act his Honor had discretion at the trial to award compensation and to order that the costs of the unsuccessful trial be taxed in the ordinary way and deducted from the amount of compensation so fixed.

His Honor awarded plaintiff £400, but directed that the costs of the trial should be deducted from that sum, the costs to be taxed unless the parties agreed as to an amount. The order settled any further litigation.

IN DIVORCE.

IRVING v IRVING.

George Irving petitioned for a dissolution of his marriage with Emma Irving (formerly Neale) on the ground of misconduct with William Robinson. The parties were married at the Registrar-General's Office, Chancery-square, Sydney, on August 4, 1906. Petitioner also claimed damages.

On the authority of M'Garry v M'Garry and Pike, co-respondent, reported in Vol. 3, page 129, the New South Wales Weekly Notes, a case before Sir Frederick Darley and a jury of twelve, in which the co-respondent did not appear, as in the present case, his Honor instructed the jury that they must award damages against the co-respondent because he did not appear. They could grant a farthing.

The jury returned a verdict in favour of respondent, but that co-respondent should pay a farthing damages.

Mr. James and Mr. Breckenridge, instructed by Mr. W. T. Dash, appeared for petitioner; and Mr. G. C. Addison, instructed by Mr. R. W. Fraser, for respondent.

CHIEF INDUSTRIAL MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

(Before Mr. G. C. Addison).

AN UNSUCCESSFUL CLAIM.

H. L. Sawyer, employed in the Interlocking Department of the Railways, claimed £7 12s from the Chief Railway Commissioner, because he said that from July 1 to December 2, 1912, he had been employed on work similar to which blacksmiths received 11s a day for, while he was receiving 10s a day.

His Worship said that on the whole circumstances of the case he could not see that the claim had been sustained.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

SMITH v NICHOLSON.

Verdict for Defendant.

Judgment was given in the case in which Alexander Smith, Ltd., of 88 Beattie-street, Balmain, sought to recover £107 2s 6d from Nicholson and Company, Ltd., of 342 George-street, Sydney, as damages arising out of an injury to Arthur Waring, alleged to have been caused by the negligent driving of a motor lorry by a servant of the defendant. Of the amount claimed £4 10s represented damage to the motor-cycle ridden by Waring at the time of the accident, £55 represented loss of business through Waring's absence, and £44 12s 6d had been paid in wages to a substitute. The defendant firm paid into court £5 and 10s costs in full satisfaction of the claim, but denied liability notwithstanding.

Mr. Monahan, instructed by Mr. G. Crichton Smith, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Curtis, instructed by Messrs. Weaver and Allworth, for the defendant.

His Honor said that after viewing the locality of the accident he accepted the version of the defendant, and found that the driver of the lorry was not to blame. A verdict was accordingly entered for the defendant.

HENLEY v CITY COUNCIL.

William John Henley, builder, of Johnston-street, Annandale, sued the Municipal Council of Sydney for £100 alleged to be still owing in respect to certain building work which the plaintiff had contracted to carry out for £27,448, and had duly performed.

Mr. Hammond, instructed by Messrs. M'Donell and Moffit, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Edwards, instructed by Mr. T. W. K. Waldron, Acting City Solicitor, for the defendant council.

The case for the plaintiff was that the work, which involved the construction of the Ultimo-street stores, had been delayed through the council ordering certain extras from time to time. The amount sued for had been deducted by the council on account of the delay, for which it was submitted the plaintiff was not liable.

The defence was that the contract contained a clause that the work should be completed in eight months, the plaintiff to pay £7 damages for every day occupied after the specified time had expired. It was alleged that the plaintiff had accepted the deduction when the final payment of the contract money was made to him, and reserving its rights as to further damages. The defendant council contended that it was entitled to £650 in respect to the delay mentioned, and brought a cross-action for £400, setting off £100 of the balance against the plaintiff's claim.

His Honor reserved his decision.

HARRIS v SYDNEY COUNCIL.

Sir Matthew Harris sued the Municipal Council of Sydney for £90 in respect to damage alleged to have been caused by flood water to property at 639 Harris-street, owing to faulty and negligent construction of municipal drains.

Mr. Sheridan, instructed by Mr. Matthew J. Harris, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Edwards, instructed by Mr. Waldron, Acting City Solicitor, for the defendant council.

It was stated that the damage was caused on November 23, January 23, and March 9 last.

For the defence it was contended that adequate drainage provision had been made, and that obstructions to a gully, which caused the flooding, had been left there by a bottle and rag merchant, for whose action the council was not responsible.

The case stands part heard.

VEND CASE.

JUDGMENT OF PRIVY COUNCIL.

COMMONWEALTH V. ADELAIDE STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.)

LONDON, May 30.

The facts and legal arguments in this case were so fully gone into before Mr. Justice Isaacs in the High Court, that I need not repeat them as reproduced before the board representing the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The more important part of the appeal will be the reasons of the Court, which have not yet been given, for the decision which you have already published in favour of the defendants. The hearing of arguments lasted eight or nine days on behalf of the appellants, nearly the whole of that time being devoted to the speech of Sir R. Finlay. On May 27, after Mr. R. F. Mitchell had been speaking less than a day, he was informed by the Lord Chancellor that the Court had been considering the matter, and had come to the conclusion that the appellants had failed to satisfy them that the shipping agreement contravened the Statute, or that its provisions were of themselves detrimental to the public, and, therefore, that he need not deal with that part of the case. The Lord Chancellor added that apart from the agreement itself, the contention on the other side was that what had been done under that agreement; in fact, established detriment to the public, and also that such detriment was intended by the defendants. Now this was a matter as to which there was a large body of evidence, and the Court would like Mr. Mitchell to direct his attention to that evidence in the first instance.

Mr. Mitchell stated that that had been his intention, and he proposed to put before the board certain evidence which would conclusively establish that the findings of the Full Court to the effect that the f.o.b. prices had been affirmatively shown by the evidence of the Crown to be reasonable were justified, and that the findings of Mr. Justice Isaacs to the contrary effect were occasioned by his Honor having overlooked material evidence which completely qualified the facts upon which he relied.

Mr. Mitchell added that after he had dealt with that part of the case, he proposed to put forward similar arguments and review the evidence to establish that the prices charged by the shipping companies to their customers over and above the f.o.b. prices were also fair and reasonable. He relied upon various legal positions as showing that the respondents were not legally responsible either for the increased f.o.b. prices or in these proceedings for any cost to the public over and above the f.o.b. increases. But apart from these legal contentions he intended to address himself simply to the fact as to whether the Crown's own evidence did not establish conclusively that both sets of prices were reasonable.

Mr. Mitchell had just concluded his arguments upon the evidence justifying the increase in the f.o.b. prices, when the Lord Chancellor informed him that the Court had considered his arguments and had arrived at a clear determination that the findings of the Full Court as to the reasonableness of the f.o.b. prices were fully justified.

Mr. Mitchell said that he then proposed to refer to the facts, which would also justify any increases in the prices charged by the shipping companies over and above the f.o.b. price, and he was prepared to demonstrate in the same way the reasonableness of those prices from the Crown's own evidence.

But the Lord Chancellor said that the present view of the Court was that, inasmuch as the agreement really attacked was the shipping agreement, and as the shipping agreement merely provided for certain maximum prices which the shipping companies could not exceed, the Court, as at present advised, could not quite understand how the Crown could maintain that in these proceedings the respondents were responsible for any alleged unreasonable charges to consumers over and above the f.o.b. prices. Were the prices which, in point of fact, had been charged under an arrangement charged with intent to operate to the detriment of the public? Their Lordships had told counsel for the respondents that on the character of those charges, there being nothing stated about maximum and no minimum, it was a fortiori conclusive that they stood on the same footing as the f.o.b. prices of the coal. Then the only point that remained was this, Was the entering of the shipping companies into this agreement with the colliery owners to get control of the carriage of this coal in itself a wrong? It had not been proved to be detrimental in point of price to the public. The question was, Was it wrong in point of law? There they were thrown back upon the construction of the common law, and as at present advised their Lordships found nothing to show that there was control exercised in point of fact to the detriment of the public. Taken by itself, apart from such proof, their Lordships, as at present advised, thought that the reasons which led them to the conclusion that the vend agreement was not illegal must lead them to the conclusion that the shipping agreement was also not illegal.

Mr. Wise, K.C., in reply, laid stress on the evidence of the agreements between the colliery owners and the miners that the hewing rate should rise and fall with the rise and fall of the selling price of coal. He also referred to the evidence of prices of coal which he said was sold to foreigners f.o.b. by members of the combine at lower rates than those charged for interstate supply. The question to be decided was how far was the interest of the public to be subordinated to the interest of a small group of producers and traders? The test of a pernicious monopoly was that it combined to exclude others by engaging in a particular trade, and that, he insisted, was the evil of the colliery owners and shipping combination.

The courtroom was cleared, and when a few minutes afterwards the public was readmitted, the Lord Chancellor said: "This appeal raises questions of great importance, on which, however, their Lordships have come to a clear conclusion. The advice which they will humbly tender to the Sovereign will be to affirm the judgment of the High Court of the Commonwealth of Australia, and dismiss the appeal with costs. But as the questions involved are of great importance, their Lordships propose, while giving that advice to his Majesty, to take time to put their reasons for coming to the conclusion they have arrived at, in what appears to them proper form."

The counsel were: For the Appellants, Sir Robert Finlay, K.C., Mr. Wise, K.C., and Mr. A. Page, instructed by Mr. J. H. Galbraith, for the respondents, Mr. Mitchell, K.C., Mr. Atkin, K.C., Mr. Schiller, and Mr. Nesbitt, instructed by Messrs. Wadeson and Malleson.

Mr. Atkin, K.C., was on the same day made a Judge of the High Court.

THE CRECY HOTEL INQUIRY.

The City Council inquiry regarding the Crecy Hotel tenders will be resumed at 7 o'clock this evening. On Friday night last evidence was given by Alderman Harris and by the Town Clerk, city building surveyor, and chief clerk. A motion was submitted by Alderman Lawrence expressing the opinion that the comptroller of assets was working in the best interests of the council, and that the council place on record its continued confidence in that officer. An amendment was moved,—"That the motion stand over till the end of the inquiry." General confidence was expressed in the officer's ability and conscientiousness, but it was thought by some that the motion was premature. The amendment was carried by eight votes to six. Further evidence will be taken to-night.

GAS STRIKE.

A HUNDRED MEN FINED.

THE JUDGE'S REMARKS.

One hundred employees of the Australian Gaslight Company were ordered to pay fines and costs totalling £907 by Mr. Justice Heydon, yesterday, for participating in the recent gas strike.

An employee named Perkins, was fined £10, and the other 99 men £8 each, with £1 1s costs in each case.

Forty-nine defendants were summoned last week, and 51 yesterday, making a hundred in all. The prosecuting counsel, Mr. Broomfield, did not call evidence in respect to the 51 defendants summoned yesterday, as the evidence given last week also governed the cases.

In delivering judgment, his Honor said that, in these cases—the Minister for Labour and Industry v Perkins and others—it was admitted that there had been a concerted cessation of work by the defendants and a number of other employees of the Australian Gaslight Company, and the cessation was for the purpose of securing certain objects; but it was contended that the objects were such that the cessation was not a strike under the Act. It was further contended that, if the cessation was not a strike, it had been condoned, and if the right to take proceedings before the Court had not actually been given up, at least the penalty should be light. As to the first point. It appeared that in September, 1911, the Australian Gaslight Company and the Gas Employees' Union entered into an industrial agreement, which fully settled wages and conditions in the service, and which was to endure for three years. Some 12 months afterwards, the union claimed an additional 1s a day all round, and took steps to have the question of wages re-opened. They began a ballot on the question whether or not they should strike, but on application by the Minister for Labour to the Court, an injunction was granted, forbidding the counting of the votes. The restlessness continued, and, after some time, an application was made to the Court for a wage board. This was refused, on the ground that there was an industrial agreement in force, and the industrial agreements could only be varied by consent of the parties. The day after this decision, the cessation of work took place. It was claimed that it took place in consequence of the decision, and was, therefore, a demand for a board to determine wages—not a demand for wages.

"It is clear," his Honor contended, "that the board was only wanted as a step towards higher wages. The men were dissatisfied with the wages in the agreement, and with the provision which bound them to those wages during the term of the agreement. They wanted the obstacle created by their own arrangement swept away. The employers could do this by consenting to vary the agreement, either by reopening the wages rates or by varying them, or by altering the provision as to its duration. The cessation, therefore, was to compel the company to give some such consent as should remove the obstacle. They struck against their own industrial agreement, and would not work under its conditions.

"That to my mind is clearly a strike. If not the strike provisions of the Act could be nullified. The contention, if sound, would enable employees, the moment an award unsatisfactory to themselves was made, to request the board to reconsider the whole question of wages. If the board refused, they could at once stop work, and point out that it was not a strike, but merely a cessation of work to set a tribunal in action. The thing is absurd. Industrial agreements are not less binding than awards, but rather more so, for they embody the actual consent of both parties, and can only be cancelled or varied by a similar consent; and a strike against the terms of an industrial agreement is just as much within the Act as a strike against an award.

"The second point, that the right to prosecute had been given up, is equally untenable. No doubt while the strike was on the employers agreed to take the strikers back and to victimise none of them, and the Government to call a special session of Parliament to amend the Act and empower a board to deal with the matter, but those things do not touch the strike. It may at first sight seem peculiar to see negotiations carried on with men who are breaking the law, as to the terms on which they will cease to break the law, but that relates to the men's future action, not to their past, and there is not a single word in the agreement to suggest that the strike was to be condoned. Grant that the company had given up its right to sue for damages for the breach of the industrial agreement, they could not touch the right to prosecute either for the breach of the agreement or for the strike. If an employer, by settling a case with an employee, can take away the right to prosecute, he could escape from the Act by employing non-unionists at low wages, and, if threatened with prosecution, settle the case with them. I must, therefore, find the cases proved, and consider the question of penalty. It was urged that there was not in this case (as in the ferry and railway porters' cases) the circumstances that a board was actually at the time of the strike considering an award. That is true, but on the other hand there was an existing agreement, which carried even greater weight than an award for the very reason that it was an agreement. The men could have approached their employers, or the Government, after the decision of the Court, without striking. But they preferred to tear up their agreement. Then the consequences were most serious; the strike was successful, and, I cannot doubt, was thereby the direct parent of the ferry and railway porters' strikes. Can I deal with those who set the example, and who had been threatening the community for six months, less severely than those who followed the example? They taught the other strikers that to cause great inconvenience and damage to the community by stopping necessary services was a thing which they could compel the employers to reward instead of to punish; and the consequence was that in the two following strikes the public was seriously injured in the same way. The gas employees were thus, though the last to be prosecuted, the ringleaders in the recent industrial troubles, and I cannot see that their punishment should be any lighter than that of the other strikers. I therefore impose on Perkins a penalty of £10, and on each of the other 99 defendants a penalty of £8, with costs one guinea in each case.

"I direct that the amount of such penalties shall be a charge on any moneys which are now or which may hereafter be due to each such person from his present or future employer, including the Crown, for wages or in respect of work done, and that the employer be notified of such order.

"I should like to add that I settled upon this penalty of £8, and wrote it in my judgment yesterday, before hearing from Mr. Broomfield this morning of the intention of the Minister to consider whether there should be any further prosecutions."

MINISTER'S APPLICATION.

Mr. Broomfield said that the remainder of the cases the Minister would like adjourned for a fortnight. The fines would be paid by the union. There were about 2000 men involved in the gas strike.

His Honor said it was really a matter in the Minister's discretion as to whether he would proceed against other defendants. If the Minister was not ready to proceed with other cases his Honor would grant the adjournment applied for.

His Honor granted a postponement of the hearing for two weeks.

KICKED BY HORSE.

PENRITH, Tuesday.

The inquest on James Walter Ransley, who was kicked by a horse with fatal results at Llandilo, was held by Mr. Arthur Judges, district coroner. The evidence of deceased's father, Thomas Ransley, showed that the two were doctoring a horse which was bad with colic, when deceased said to his father, "You had better go and get your dinner and I will keep the mare moving till you come back. I can have mine later." When Thomas Ransley had gone a few yards, however, he heard a moan, and on looking round his son said, "I am kicked in the stomach," and further said, "It's all over with me, father." Deceased was taken to the hospital, where he died at 7 o'clock last night. He was a native of Llandilo and 32 years of age. Deceased only had one arm, having lost the other in a gun accident some years ago. He was a first-class bicycle rider, having ridden into a place in the Goulburn to Sydney road race, also Bathurst to Sydney, and other road races. This family has been rather unfortunate. Some years ago the father was out after cows. He threw a stick at them, but it struck a limb, but rebounding hit him in one eye, destroying the sight. Some years later a son met with a similar accident in exactly the same way. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

HEALTH OF THE CITY.

An unusual number of cases of diphtheria have lately been reported to the City Health Officer. Of the 27 cases of infectious diseases that occurred in the city for the fortnight ended on Monday, 21 were of diphtheria, four of scarlet fever, and two of enteric fever.

SLOW WORKERS.

INFERIORITY OF THE IMMIGRANT.

Further evidence was tendered before Mr. Piddington, K.C., yesterday, with regard to the operation of the State industrial laws.

The Industrial Registrar, Mr. Holme, continued his evidence. He said that as far as he could learn, immigrants were slow when compared with the Australian workers. In many cases they had not sufficient experience in England to entitle them to the rates ruling here for first-class men.

The Commissioner: In that regard, I think I can endorse your remarks about the comparative speed of the English and Australian workers.

Mr Holme: With regard to applications made by slow workers, inspectors are sent out to watch the men at work, and permits are granted according to their report. Some applications for permits had been made because of the difficulty of procuring work. Such applications were not made frequently, and came to hand chiefly during times of temporary slackness. When the next cycle of depression fell upon Australia, it was probable that the office would be inundated with applications for such permits.

Mr. Buchanan asked the Commissioner for a direction as to the mode of procedure, which he intended to adopt. If he desired to hear certain employers he would be willing to call them at once, though it would convenience him greatly if Mr. Connington, who represents the trades, could exhaust the whole of his witnesses before any of the employers were called.

Mr. Connington said that if certain employers were called at once he considered that the proceedings could be shortened, for he could form his questions to the other witnesses which he would call according to the evidence which they gave.

Mr. Buchanan: It looks as if Mr. Connington wants me to show my cards so that he can go on with his case.

The Commissioner: I am sure Mr. Connington would not refer to any employers as cards.

Arthur Lawrence Newberry, secretary of the Amalgamated Carpenters' and Joiners' Society, gave evidence in favour of instituting a system of craft unionism. He favoured the present system of practical wages boards as against what he called the legal system with a judge and assessors hearing complaints. If a board were established with two practical men on both sides and a chairman with a knowledge of the trade, many difficulties and delays could be overcome. Grouping of trades had not been successful in the case of his society.

Evidence was also given by John Bridges Crombie, secretary of the Tailors' Union.

POTTS HILL RESERVOIR.

The members of the Water and Sewerage Board visited Potts Hill yesterday, and examined the works in progress for the construction of the new reservoir, which is to have a capacity of 150,000,000 gallons. The present reservoir at Potts Hill has a capacity of 100,000,000 gallons, so that in the height of summer, when the consumption by the city reaches something like 40,000,000 gallons per day, there will always be a full week's supply in the new reservoir, in addition to the other stores. The Potts Hill works are connected by railway with Rookwood. The board has a large steam navvy at work at present, and will shortly have an additional navvy of double the size in operation.

MARKET-STREET DISTURBANCE.

DEPARTMENTAL EXPLANATION.

After the recent statement by a jury, endorsed by Mr. Justice Pring, "that it was much to be deplored that a drunken row could take place in the heart of the city and last for two hours unchecked by the police," the Minister for Justice, Mr. D. R. Hall, called for a report on the matter.

The Minister has been informed that no continuous row took place, but that there were three separate disturbances; the first at the corner of Market and Elizabeth streets, which lasted only a few minutes. Later a second disturbance took place at the corner of Market and Castlereagh streets, which was immediately suppressed by a traffic constable, who was on duty close by. Half an hour afterwards a third outbreak occurred, at which the stabbing appears to have taken place, and again two constables were immediately on the scene.

These facts were not brought out at the trial, as they had no bearing on the guilt or innocence of Buttel, who, it will be remembered, was found not guilty and discharged. Hence the erroneous belief that a drunken row in the heart of the city lasted for two hours unchecked by the police.

CASUALTIES.

LEICHHARDT BURNING FATALITY.

"Accidental death, the result of face and body burns," was the finding of the Acting City Coroner (Mr. Fletcher) yesterday, in the case of Mrs. Rosanna Loosemore, 58, late of White-street, Leichhardt. In evidence, it was shown that the deceased called out to her husband from her bedroom at about 11 p.m. on June 13. Hurrying to her, Mr. Loosemore found his wife lying on the floor with a piece of candle beside her. Her nightdress was burnt, with the exception of the wristbands. She died at the Prince Alfred Hospital a couple of hours later.

A MERCER'S DEATH.

At an inquest yesterday Dr. Lloyd Parry, of Sydney Hospital, stated that John Aubrey Farrell, 48, was admitted on June 18, suffering from the effects of a cut throat, and evidently some form of insanity. He died the same day while in a state of epilepsy. Annie Branwhite, of 418A Elizabeth-street, said she was a partner of deceased in a mercery and gentlemen's outfitting business. He left about £1000 worth of property. On June 18 deceased was so ill that witness suggested sending for a doctor. After he had taken a cup of tea, witness went for a cab to take him out. She returned, to find deceased lying in the kitchen doorway with blood running from his throat. The Acting City Coroner (Mr. Fletcher) found that death was due to "natural causes, namely, status epilepticus."

LITTLE GIRL KILLED IN WOOLLOOMOOLOO.

Five labourers endeavoured to catch a steer which had escaped from a herd on the North Coast Company's wharf on the afternoon of June 16. They followed the animal through the city, but lost sight of it in Castlereagh-street. An hour or so later they discovered it at the Domain gates. It then ran to Fort Macquarie, and was brought to bay on the ferry wharf.

Meanwhile, according to the evidence of Mrs. Margaret Knox, at the City Coroner's Court yesterday, what was described as a "cow" had knocked over Barbara Knox, 2 years, in Judge-street, Woolloomooloo. The child died at about 6 a.m. the next day. The Acting Coroner (Mr. Fletcher) recorded a verdict of accidental death.

WOMAN NEARLY SUFFOCATED.

A supposed leak in the gaspipe of a room adjoining the bedroom of Mrs. Priscilla Edmunds, 74, in Corunna-road, Stanmore, alarmed that household yesterday morning; for Mrs. Edmunds was discovered lying in bed in an almost suffocated condition. Dr. Tudor Jones attended her. Later she was taken by the Civil Ambulance to the Prince Alfred Hospital, where she is now in a critical condition.

RYDE RAILWAY FATALITY.

Mrs. Christie Hale, a resident of Artarmon, was killed at the Ryde Railway Station on Monday evening.

While waiting for the Sydney train, Mrs. Hale left her husband and child on one side of the platform to cross to the other. She reached the platform all right, but in returning she was overtaken on the rails by a passenger train from the Hawkesbury. Her body was carried forward about 50 yards. It was not until the train had steamed out of sight that a porter discovered the woman's mutilated body.

PEA-RIFLE TRAGEDY.

BOMBALA, Tuesday.

A fatal pea-rifle accident occurred on Tuesday afternoon, when Albert Sullivan, aged 12, was shot dead instantaneously. Deceased and a younger brother were rabbit-shooting, both lads having pea-rifles. Albert was carrying his by the muzzle, which was pointing towards his head. Suddenly he stumbled, and the gun went off, shooting him through the head.

A TEAMSTER INJURED.

WOOLGOOLGA, Tuesday.

A teamster named Walter Evans fell under his log-laden waggon on a bush road to-day, and lay for a considerable time with both legs fractured. His cries were at length heard by a passing settler, who conveyed him to town and thence to Coff's Harbour for medical attention.

SHIRE VALUATIONS.

WEE WAA, Tuesday.

At the Shire Appeal Court two appellants, the Commercial Bank and Janet Findlay, had values reduced to less than half the shire assessment for properties in Rose-street, Wee Waa.

BACKWARD PAPUA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—May I claim the courtesy of your columns to enter an indignant protest against one of the remarks made by Mr. R. C. Hamilton in his interesting contribution to your issue of to-day (June 24), entitled "Backward Papua."

Whilst agreeing with this gentleman's contention that more should be done for Papua by the Commonwealth Government than is being done at present, I consider such a statement as the following quite unwarranted by the facts: "What progress Papua has made has been accomplished in spite of the Administration, and not with its assistance." The statistics published in the Lieutenant-Governor of Papua's book on the territory prove conclusively that what progress has been made has been made almost entirely since Papua became a dependency of the Commonwealth and passed out of Imperial control. I do not cite figures, in the hope that Mr. Hamilton may read the book and remove some of the erroneous impressions under which he seems to labour.

In the first place, it must be remembered that this portion of the island of New Guinea was annexed at the request of three eastern States of Australia for purely strategic reasons; that the Imperial Government added its administration to other enormous responsibilities with extreme reluctance, and in handing it over to the Commonwealth stipulated that the interests of the natives should be protected, and that they should not become the victims of unscrupulous exploitation. This is the mandate which the Australian Parliament gives to its Executive, and the results reflect nothing but the highest credit on the gentlemen who have been toiling for years in such a climate as Papua to carry it into effect.

Australia has achieved what no other white nation can claim, the almost bloodless settlement of a savage country without the concomitant spoliation and misery of the autochthonous population. That we are able to show the world an administration comparable in justice and humanity, for the brief term of its existence, to the records of the Civil Service of India itself is something for Australians to be proud of. And it is most undoubtedly due to that "curse of officialdom," from which, according to Mr. Hamilton, Papua is now "suffering." I do not pretend to Mr. Hamilton's knowledge of the economic and financial requirements of the country, and only hope he may get all the assistance he desires, but I do know something of the conditions under which the "conclave of officialdom" to which he refers is working, and the difficulties and dangers they have to overcome for an admittedly insufficient remuneration. The average Resident Magistrate receives considerably less than three hundred pounds a year, and in return for this munificent sum maintains the Pax Britannica over areas as large as this County of Cumberland, encumbered with pathless jungle and permeated with fever. Throughout the year he lives—more often than not without the sight of another white man's face—in the atmosphere of a Turkish bath. The only gleams of civilisation which brighten his lonely existence are the periodical inspections of the Lieutenant-Governor and his staff. The Government steamer, the Merrie England, was even five years ago, when I spent some months on her, recognised to be totally inadequate. The visit of the late Mr. Batchelor, then Minister for External Affairs, and party taxed her accommodation beyond even the Papuan idea of comfort. We must all agree that our members of Parliament cannot see too much of any dependency for which they are responsible, and the probability of future deputations demands an even larger vessel than the palatial Upolu chartered evidently by the Lieutenant-Governor and not by the Administrator—an entirely different person. Why those in Papua should not be allotted decent travelling accommodation like any other Government servants is hard to understand. Moreover, the Government steamer is only too frequently a "hospital ship" as well as a departmental necessity. When I was in Papua five years ago—on the occasion of the delimitation of the German boundary—of seven officials who went up the Mambare River, six returned to the Merrie England in a state of high fever, and the groaning and dry-vomiting were horrible to listen to. A few weeks afterwards the Minister for Mines, in the course of his duties, crossed the island from Boona to Port Moresby, and had to be carried into the seat of administration in a state of collapse. On returning to Samarai I found a magistrate of many years' faithful service about to lose a leg, and probably his life, from coral poisoning, which may be the fate of any official (who has, moreover, no pension to fall back upon).

When one realises that titles of distinction would have been conferred on these gentlemen for their noble work in the midst of such hardships had their service been Imperial and not Australian, that they receive ridiculously small salaries, no pension, and no recognition from the "fount of honour;" and that, in spite of Mr. Hamilton's quite natural impatience because well-nigh insuperable difficulties of development do not fall, like the walls of Jericho, at the blast of administrative trumpets, the Commonwealth Administration has, in six years, quietly and modestly accomplished more than the 21 years of Imperial control which preceded it; when all these things are considered I cannot help protesting that Mr. Hamilton's statement that "what progress Papua has made has been accomplished in spite of the Administration" is not only rather reckless, but also a little ungrateful and unkind.

MR. CHIDLEY'S THEORIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In reference to the condemnation of my book by Judge Murray, will you kindly allow space to say that apart from the fact that the result of a life study was condemned after a night's perusal, the remarks made by his Honor as to portions being "nauseating" show that a mistake was made in its hasty perusal. In fact, his Honor's remarks generally showed that he had got a wrong idea of my work. In any case it is not one that a hasty judgment can be formed on. Women who have read my book have written me that they know I am right, and that it is a beautiful book." The long delay of the public to see what has happened, to see the importance of my book and the great truth it contains is becoming tragical.

Of course, knowing what I say to be true, I must go on trying to make it public, but I think it time that someone came forward to help me to a fair hearing. To call a man a lunatic, to put him in an asylum one day and in gaol the next, and to illegally close his lecture halls, is no way to treat one who is trying to do good to his fellow creatures.

I am, etc.,

June 24. W. J. CHIDLEY.

CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUNDS.

A scheme for the provision of children's playgrounds and more tennis courts, in Moore Park, was brought under the attention of the health committee of the City Council yesterday by Alderman Griffin, who claimed that not alone in Moore Park, but in other localities areas should be specially set apart for children. It was decided, after some discussion, to defer action till next meeting pending the receipt of a report from Mr. Layton.

DEFENCE.

MINISTER'S FAREWELL WORD.

"GIGANTIC REVOLUTION."

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, who is leaving his office to make way for a Minister in the Liberal Cabinet, to-day issued a long statement covering the progress of his department since the time he took charge on April 29, 1910. The report is a most comprehensive one, and apart from a lot of mere history, it contains much valuable information. After dealing with what has been done, Senator Pearce states: "It would not be boastful to say that the foregoing constitutes a record of administration in the Defence Department of the Commonwealth of Australasia. Public opinion as to the necessity of energetic measures has been awakened, and its reflex has been seen in Government action and Parliamentary approval. The expenditure of money, both for naval and military defence has increased enormously, but Australasia has the satisfaction of knowing that she is getting good value for her money. The scheme of universal training constituted a gigantic revolution in the industrial and social life of the Commonwealth, and few changes of a like character have been effected with so little friction. There was at the outset some grumbling and some trouble, as was inevitable in bringing about such a great scheme over such a huge area as the continent of Australia.

WORK OF THREE YEARS.

"If we look back and realise that three years ago we had no equipment, no organisation, no personnel, for the new scheme, and that this had to be provided for at the same time as the new scheme was being brought into being, it is without doubt a tribute to the universal assent that has been given to it that there was so little friction, comparatively speaking. The Inspector-General's report on the defence forces for the present year shows that both the cadets and the militia are loyally acting up to the spirit of the Act, and carrying out the spirit of the regulations. However, notwithstanding all that has been spent on the scheme, if we realise the position of Australia and watch what is going on in the world around us, we feel compelled to utter 'so much to do, so little done.' I cannot close these remarks without giving testimony to the loyal assistance that I, as Minister, have received from the whole of the officers and staff, naval and military, who have had the task of carrying out the naval and military schemes—often, I fear, under great disabilities. Both schemes are now well on foot. The spade work has been done in regard to both, and it now only remains for an efficient administration, loyal support, and an intelligent public opinion to make the schemes thoroughly effective and to make the defence of Australia and the Empire real."

FACTS OF THE SCHEME.

The following interesting facts are set out in the report:—

It is anticipated that in June, 1913, the total personnel of the Navy of 3350, will be made up approximately as follows: Lent from Royal Navy, 800; ex-Royal Navy Pensioners, etc., 360; Australians transferred from Royal Navy, 400; Australians recruited in Australia for R.A.N., 1790; Total 3350.

The Australian fleet, as at present constructed or under construction, is as follows:—

In Australian waters, cruisers, Encounter, Melbourne, Pioneer; destroyers, Warrego, Parramatta, Yarra; gunboats, Protector, Gayundah; torpedo boats, Countess of Hopetoun, Childers.

About to leave England for Australia: Battle cruiser Australia, cruiser Sydney, submarines AE 1, AE 2.

Building in Australia: Cruiser Brisbane, destroyers Torrens, Swan, Derwent.

In Great Britain: One submarine depot ship, one oil supply ship.

The naval expenditure for the last three years is:—

Year 1910-11	£1,456,071
1911-12	£1,595,605
1912-13	£2,349,257
Total	£5,400,257

The expenditure in the cost of establishing factories up to June 30, 1912, which was from revenue, the appropriation in the purchase of land, erection of buildings, machinery, and plant, factory fittings, and furniture, in connection with the establishment of the several factories, was approximately as follows:—

Small arms factory	£149,000
Cordite factory	£95,800
Clothing factory	£12,300
Harness factory	£6,500

It is estimated that the initial cost of establishing the woollen mills will be about £85,000 or £90,000.

The number of persons employed in connection with the several factories, as on March 1, 1913, was:—Small arms factory, 282; cordite factory, 86; clothing factory, 403; harness factory, 153; woollen mills, 1; total, 925. The amount paid in salaries and wages for the month of February, 1913, was as follows:—Small arms factory, £3080; cordite factory, £944; clothing factory, £2193; harness factory, £1722; total, £7929.

Under the system of universal training, the war establishment will be about 120,000, and the equipment required will cost about £2,500,000, of which we can reckon £1,000,000 worth as on hand. It will be necessary to provide not less than £500,000 per annum for the next five years to complete the new establishment, after which the annual cost should be not more than £200,000, if the same establishment remains in force.

The comparison of the defence forces on May 31, 1910, and May 31, 1913, is as follows:—

Force.	1910.	1913.
Junior cadets	24,055	53,141
Senior cadets	10,597	89,720
Militia	22,098	33,020
Field guns, 18-pdrs.	28	84
Field guns, 15-pdrs.	28	28
Rifle clubs	1,071	1,139
Permanent forces	1,510	2,487

Including junior cadets and rifle clubs, the annual cost per head of individuals on the establishment of the department is £7/5/ in 1913, as against £7/10/ in 1910. Similarly, the cost per head of the establishment of the military part of the central administration votes is 6/3 in 1913, as against 7/ in 1910.

A. S. WHYTE, 197 Collins-street, Melbourne.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

At 1.45 to-day the curtain will rise upon "A Midsummer Night's Dream," after which Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton will enter upon the last nine nights of their farewell season. The Shakespearian fairy play is one of their great productions, beautifully staged, with colour-contrasts and changes of musical tone at every development of the mirthful, poetic piece.

This evening, at Her Majesty's Theatre, "The Count of Luxembourg" will be performed for the last time but two, with all its charming music and humorous incidents. On Saturday next "Autumn Manoeuvres" will be produced for the first time in Australia, and though the title wittily refers to the love-plot, the story will be laid in military circles, so that the stage will be gay with uniforms. Miss Florence Young will appear as the heroine, and there will be parts both for Mr. Reginald Roberts and Mr. Talleur Andrews, with Mr. Phil Smith as principal comedian. Many other favourites will appear. The plan is at Paling's.

There will be another matinee of "Excuse Me" at the Criterion Theatre to-day, due to the continued popularity of the American farcical comedy, in which Mr. Fred. Niblo, Mr. Greig, Miss Beatrice Terry, Miss Holloway, and a long list of artists assist in the delineation of a queer assemblage of express-train characters. Uproarious laughter is the result.

At the Little Theatre, in spite of the holiday matinee, there will be another afternoon performance to-morrow, "Bobby Burnit" proving a strong attraction which can support such a course. Mr. Hugh Buckler plays the central character, and the business exploits of the "Green Kid" cause much amusement until his love for Agnes (Miss Violet Paget) inspire him to assume more heroic proportions.

At the Palace Theatre crowded audiences attend every performance by the American Musical Burlesque Company of "The Grafters," of which the William Anderson direction announces another matinee on Saturday. The Texas Tommy Twirl and other dances, the laughable nonsense of the three tramps, and a whole series of songs, contribute to the success of the new piece.

"Life's Shop Window," founded upon the novel of the same name by Victoria Cross, is the new attraction at the Adelphi Theatre, where Mr. Wm. Anderson's company is drawing large audiences with this story of love on a ranch in Arizona. Miss Olive Wilton as the erring wife, Mr. Max Clifton as the husband, and Mr. R. Beckett as the aristocratic tempter, figure successfully in the new drama, with its realistic storm scene.

Mme. Boult will be accorded a testimonial matinee at the Criterion Theatre on Saturday afternoon next, when the dramatic authoress will have well-deserved advantage of an influential committee and an attractive programme. Miss Violet Paget, Mr. Hugh Buckler, and the Little Theatre Company will present an act of "Fanny's First Play;" Mr. Gerald Kay Souper, and other artists will appear in "The Lie Circumstantial;" Mr. Wilton Welch and Miss Louise Carousse will join in a dramatic specialty; and concert numbers of interest will be contributed by Misses Queen Boult, Nettie Lawson, Gertrude Palmer, Geraldine Ward, Mabel Woolcock, Mr. Sid Macdonald, and Mr. Arthur Appleby. The plan is at Paling's.

At the National Amphitheatre, both this afternoon and in the evening, the Loyal Banzai family of Japanese jugglers and equilibrists will make their two farewell appearances. The Four Stagpooles will be seen in their new and mirthful act, Eugen Ossipoff, Russian baritone, will sing; Hanley, Marguerite, and Hanley, continental acrobats, have returned for a short season; and Wong Toy Sun, George Murphy, Myra Gale and Little Sadie, Ruby Tounton, National Duo, Hart and Kenny, Jennings and Gerald, are all in the bill.

In consequence of the enthusiastic reception accorded last Saturday evening at the Repertory Theatre to the talented elocutionist, Miss Madeline Rowsell, this artist has (with her husband, Mr. E. Gilbert Howell) been re-engaged to appear at the Fifth Dramatic and Musical Recital on Saturday next, when the amusing sketch, "Semi-detached," will, by special request, be repeated.

MR. JOSEPH M'CABE.

After an absence of three years, Mr. Joseph M'Cabe, the popular lecturer on evolution and astronomy, will make his reappearance in Sydney next Tuesday evening in the Protestant Hall. The subject of the opening illustrated lecture will be "The Story of Life on the Earth" or "Marvellous Chapters in Evolution." The plan for the series will be open to-morrow morning at Cole's Book Arcade.

CONCERTS AND RECITALS.

The Sydney Amateur Orchestral Society will give their second concert of the new season at the Town Hall next Wednesday evening, and the plan for this interesting event will accordingly open at Paling's this morning. Mr. Alfred Hill will conduct a new and beautiful "Symphony in B flat" by the Russian composer, Glazounow. Another special feature will be the introduction of Mr. Frank Hutchens' overture, "A Song of Victory" (first time in Australia), and the programme will include Debussy's "L' Apres Midi d'une Faune," and Grieg's "Peer Gynt" Suite. Mr. Cyril Monk will play the Vieuxtemps "Violin Concerto in D Minor," and Mr. Nelson Illingworth will sing Mr. Alfred Hill's "An Impression in Two Scenes."

The Sydney Madrigal and Chamber Music Society's second concert of their year will take place at St. James's Hall on Thursday evening next, when Mr. W. Arundel Orchard will conduct this fine body of voices in two beautiful madrigals by Orlando di Lasso, in Wilbye's "Adieu, Sweet Amaryllis," and in examples of modern composers by Coleridge-Taylor, Balfour Gardiner, F. H. Cowen, and Hubert Parry. Miss Gladys Hay, a new soprano from Scotland, will make her debut in songs by Lane Wilson, d'Hardelot, and Allitsen. The Austral String Quartet (leader, Mr. Cyril Monk) will play the Beethoven Op. 18, No. 2. The plan is at Paling's, as notified.

At the midday organ recital in the Pitt-street Congregational Church to-day Miss Lilian Frost will play the "Toccata in F" (Widor), "Romance" (Lemare), "Grand Choeur" (Guilmant), and Esther Kahn's new entracte, "Sweet Idleness." Madam Sara Lewis will sing.

Miss Leila Wiburd will give a vocal recital at St. James's Hall to-morrow evening, when she will be supported by the Salon Trio (Misses Rego, Curtis, and Brown) in chamber music, and by Mr. Herbert Radcliffe in baritone numbers. The soprano, who is from the studio of Miss Ada Gee, will sing the prayer from "Tannhauser," and songs by Landon Ronald and other composers. The plan is at Paling's.

The Railway and Tramway Musical Society will give an entertainment at the Railway Institute on Saturday evening next, when J. B. Buckstone's "A Rough Diamond" will be staged. On the concert side the assisting artists will be Miss Mabel Batchelor and Stella Dircks, and Mr. Reg. Riemenschneider. The plan is at Paling's.

On Saturday evening next, in St. James's Hall, Miss Gladys Bull, a pupil of Mr. Lawrence Campbell, will give an elocutionary recital. Miss Bull's programme will include recitations, selections from Shakespeare, and musical monologues. Mr. Cyril Monk (violinist), Mr. Herbert Radcliffe (baritone), and Miss Queenie Fenton (pianist) will assist, and there will be a comedy, entitled "Jerry and a Sunbeam," in which Miss Bull will appear with Mr. George Hewlett. Plan at Nicholson's.

At the St. James's Hall next Tuesday evening, July 1, Mr. Nelson Illingworth will give a song-recital. Among his numbers will be songs by Schubert, Schumann, Brahm, Heuchel, Debussy, and a group of new songs by Rex de Cairos Rego. Mr. Walter Thorman will assist. The plan is at Paling's.

Mr. Nicholas J. Gehde announces a concert at the Town Hall next Sunday afternoon, when Misses Elsie B. Peerless, Ivy Allen, and Thelma Henderson, Signor A. Torzillo, Messrs. Ernest Archer, Harold Hasel, Master Royden Williams, and Cathedral chorister boys will assist in an attractive programme.

OTHER ENTERTAINMENTS.

"Quo Vadis?" is now in its seventh week at the Lyceum Theatre, and there are still large houses at all performances. There will be a matinee to-day, when the doors will be opened at 1.30 p.m., and the entertainment will begin an hour later. "Quo Vadis?" has certainly proved the biggest picture boom Australia has ever had.

"Spanish Blood," the star picture at West's Olympia, Oxford-street, has proved a great attraction, and the return of Miss Asta Nielsen has been a welcome one. Miss Nielsen is known all over the world to patrons of "the movies," as the picture houses are called, and she has become a great favourite. To-morrow night there will be a change of programme to support the star film.

"The Strength of Men" is the title of the star picture of the new programme to be introduced at the Crystal Palace Theatre to-morrow. This is a strong bill, and includes some excellent dramatic, comic, and topical subjects.

There will be a complete change of programme at the Lyric Theatre to-mororw, and the feature film will be entitled "Behind the Scenes," a dramatic subject. Hadji, known as the upside-down man, will be presented, as well as some other comedy pictures.

At the Colonial Theatre to-morrow there will be an entire change of programme, the star film of which will be a dramatic subject entitled "The Yaqui Cur." In addition, there will be some dramatic, comic, and scenic pictures.

There will be an excellent bill at the Empress Theatre to-morrow, the star picture of which will be entitled "The Heart of the Forest." This is a drama full of human interest, and should appeal to the patrons of this popular house. The film showing the little-known fishes of the Mediterranean will be of interest to many.

Professor Witte will give an exhibition of fancy skating at the Glaciarium this afternoon, and again on Saturday night. To-morrow afternoon Professor Allander will give a demonstration, and in the evening there will be a hockey match between the Wanderers and Ottawa. The game should be a fast one.

The attendances at the Royal Roller Rink, Agricultural Grounds, Moore Park, continue to increase with each session. The skating surface is a large one, and will accommodate many without over-crowding. There are three sessions daily, with music at each.

The Centennial Skating Palace, Bondi Junction, continues to attract large numbers to its well-appointed rink. The management has in hand some further attractions, particulars of which will be announced in due season.

An "evening dress and white night" is announced for the Imperial Roller Rink on July 17. The arrangements are well in hand, and the management is looking forward to a successful function. There is a material increase in the attendances at each session.

Large attendances still continue to rule at the Coliseum Roller Rink, North Sydney, where many novel features have been introduced. There is an excellent skating surface at this rink.

Sutton's Skating Rink, Drummoyne, near the post-office, is getting a large percentage of the patronage of the local skating enthusiasts, and each session is well attended.

The Edison kinetophone, which reproduces talking motion pictures, will be featured at Spencer's Lyceum at the conclusion of the "Quo Vadis?" season. Mr. H. M. Wilson, who was sent out by the inventor to install the mechanism, has carried out a series of tests, and expresses himself as being highly satisfied with the results. It is possible only with the Edison kinetophone to take the voice record and picture film at the same time, as a record of the voice 40ft from the horn, giving the artist free movement for any acting, can be made. The Spencer management does not claim that the kinetophone is the first talking picture, but it does claim that it is the first and only practical talking picture perfected and presented to the public.

MISSION WORK IN INDIA.

Miss Lilian Knights, travelling and organising secretary of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, delivered an address at the Y.M.C.A. last evening on her work in India. The [illegible] of Sydney presided. The lecturer gave a graphic account of the ravages by the plague in Poonah, and the horrors of the subsequent famine. Miss Knights concluded her address by making an earnest appeal for support for the mission.

The SYDNEY MAIL.
PRICE THREEPENCE.

This Week's Issue, is a
Pure Foods Special Number, containing a 16 Page Supplement.

It is, undoubtedly, one of the most interesting and valuable of the "Mail" Special Numbers.

It deals with a variety of subjects that have an intimate connection with the health of the public, and gives many hints that will be appreciated by householders.

It also states the precautions taken by the Health authorities to guard the interests of the people. The Number was entered upon with the idea of ascertaining the truth, and of following up the work of the officials, and as a result, numerous important facts are presented in interesting fashion.

The issue is FINELY ILLUSTRATED. There is a handsome double-page engraving that will be very popular. Other pictures are right to the point in drawing attention to certain evils that menace health.

The Pure Foods Number should not be missed by parents. Children are especially susceptible to some of the dangers that are pointed out.

MINISTERS' DILEMMA.

From the results of yesterday's meeting of the State Cabinet it will be seen that Mr. Holman has his hands full. One of the Ministers is ill from overwork; and the Premier, who is to resign in a few days, apparently has not made up his mind whether he will or will not take the portfolio of Labour and Industry. Mr. Carmichael has broken down because he has been administering the Department of Public Instruction and at the same time has attempted to ride the recent whirlwind of strikes as Minister in charge of Labour and Industry. But the Cabinet has been able to do nothing to help since the Premier is unable to make up his mind. Government, indeed, is practically hung up as far as any responsible head is concerned. The Cabinet could not even come to a decision upon the very urgent question of ordering new locomotives to enable the Railway Commissioners to prepare for the coming bumper harvest and wool clip. It had so much to do that it did not reach the problem of passing the necessary by-law authorising the raising of freights and fares to the 1907 level, so that the railway accounts may not show a deficit. The farce of Government with the Premier away and with portfolios vacant or not represented was, however, kept up as far as deciding upon what should be done with Federal Government House and upon the advisableness of contesting the Wollondilly seat. It appears that we are to have a museum where the King's representatives have lived as our guests; and it would be interesting to know whether the Government proposes to make its action with respect to this outrage an issue before the electors of Wollondilly. The people of New South Wales have never been given an opportunity of saying through the ballot-box what they think about the business. Will Mr. Holman venture now to make his appeal? Since the seat is to be contested he may be forced to do so. But whatever happens nothing can be clearer than the mind of the country upon the matter. At yesterday's meeting at the Town Hall £800 was subscribed towards the amount required to prosecute the appeal to the Privy Council; and the balance will, no doubt, be easily raised. Meanwhile the Cabinet has acted as though it were empowered by a High Court judgment to do what may fairly be held to remain undecided; and, as the Privy Council is certain to give the case its most careful consideration, nobody would be prejudiced if the Government were to mark time. But, as we have already remarked, this is essentially an issue for the people. A Cabinet, which is practically no Cabinet under the circumstances, ignores the people, and acts as though the Privy Council were not a body to trouble about.

Any discussion of the position must show how serious is the dilemma in which Ministers find themselves. This applies to every question before them. On the demand for locomotives by the Railway Commissioners there is the difficulty that an important section of the Labour party demands local manufacture and it will not listen to reason. The city unionist thinks only of employment; and the producer, who is going to be heavily penalised if his harvest cannot be expeditiously handled by the Railway Department, does not count. There is no sympathy between the two. But Ministers are desperately afraid of offending the man on the land, and if left to themselves would have ordered the locomotives when the urgency of the situation was first revealed. At any rate, from what we know of the Treasurer, we may assume that the needs of the country would have received immediate attention. As things are one Cabinet meeting after another is held and nothing is done. Another dilemma meets Ministers in the vacancy created at Wollondilly by the death of Mr. M'Court. Left to themselves they would prefer to let the Liberals take the seat without opposition; for a heavy majority against a Labour candidate at the present moment would be too much like an indication of coming judgment. Yet not to fight for the seat would be such a confession of weakness that Mr. Holman has seemingly declined to make it. Ministers have thus been able to make up their minds, but there must have been some heart-to-heart talk in Cabinet before the final decision was taken. We do not wonder that the question of increased railway rates and freights was not reached. Yet this is a matter of prime importance. It, no doubt, does not count as such in the eyes of Ministers while the conundrum of what to do with vacant portfolios has to be given an answer. They do not want new colleagues, because the process of selecting such might generate too much friction; and a caucus explosion, even with Mr. Holman's efforts at prevention or suppression, might prove to be a very awkward thing. Moreover, the proposal to increase railway revenue means additional taxation—another very bad advertisement of Labour finance and administration. Working men are being asked to bear their share of the burden this time, but farmers and settlers everywhere will know what it all means before the general elections come round. How Ministers must sigh as they think of the wave of indignation which is rising through the State. They are finding each succeeding Cabinet meeting more difficult. Every one now becomes an electioneering session, and the trouble is that no precaution seems capable of providing anything like the shadow of a great rock in a weary land.

AFTER THE GAS STRIKE.

The aftermath of the gas strike was seen yesterday in the Industrial Court, where Mr. Justice Heydon found a number of defendants guilty of a breach of the Act, and fined them for their participation in the strike. Of course, it is not a pleasant part to rejoice at others' misfortunes, even if they be merited, but at the same time it is impossible not to confess to a feeling of satisfaction that the law has been vindicated. The gas strike put Sydney to enormous loss and inconvenience; that its consequences were not even more serious than they were was simply a piece of good luck. What sympathy the public had for the grievances of the gas workers was forfeited when they repudiated their agreement with the companies and took the law into their own hands. A strike is always a deplorable thing, but when it affects a public utility such as gas, workers should feel a special responsibility, and should be restrained from breaking the law, not merely by the fear of penalties, but also by the thought of the tremendous hardship to the community their action may involve. The gas strike was free from some of the discreditable elements which were present in the ferry and Darling Harbour strikes. The men did not strike when a wages board was actually sitting, or was about to sit—a piece of cynicism showing the respect in which in certain quarters the whole idea of arbitration is held. The gas strike was declared in order to secure a wages board. Still it involved the repudiation of an agreement voluntarily undertaken, and as such was quite unpardonable. It exhibited the same reluctance to abide by a contract which is becoming so universal a tendency in modern unionism. To the man in the street no clearer case of guilt could have been made out, and Mr. Justice Heydon was able to take the same view upon legal grounds. He disposed of the contention that the strike was a demand not for increased wages, but for a board to determine wages. If such a plea were valid it would mean that an industrial agreement such as existed between the Gas Companies and their employees would be deprived of any binding effect. In the same way the argument that by the ultimate settlement of the strike the right to prosecute had been waived was also dismissed.

As in the previous strike cases, Mr. Justice Heydon inflicted substantial fines. Although, as he pointed out, the gas strike was, perhaps, less heinous than its successors, it must bear the responsibility for all that happened during the following months. It was the direct parent of the ferry and of the porters' strikes. The gasmen tore up their agreement, stopped work and got what they wanted by these illegal methods. It was an immediate encouragement for everyone else to go and do likewise, and, as we know, in two large departments of industry men were not slow to do so. In all three cases the law has been vindicated, and the offenders punished in form at least, if not in substance. There seems to be still a great deal of mystery about these fines, and there is at least considerable doubt whether they have ever been collected. If they have not, then the prosecutions are simply ridiculous, and the whole idea of the law is reduced to an absurdity. What is the use of going through the elaborate farce of prosecution if it is not intended that the offenders should suffer in any practical way? The authorities for some reason or other are extremely reticent about the whole matter, although if there is nothing to conceal it is strange that they should be at such pains to conceal it. The explanation which inevitably suggests itself is that the prosecutions were intended to save the Government's face in the eyes of the public, but that the fines are merely a formality, and are not to be exacted in case the unions and their members should be offended so soon before the elections. If this is so, then it simply means that the law is being reduced to a dead-letter, and the whole administration of the Act turned into a mockery.

THE COAL TRADE.

In spite of constant labour troubles, in spite of the competition of foreign coal in the Pacific markets, in spite of the growing use of oil, the trade of the coalfields of New South Wales has been increasing during the past year. It might have been predicted that this comparatively satisfactory development would not be allowed to go for very long unchecked. Neither strikes nor partial stoppages might quite avail to prevent the increase of this important trade. But, then in New South Wales there are always the railways to be reckoned with. Whether it be a time of disaster or a time of success makes no difference to the railways; it appears safe to calculate that in any emergency they will be unable to do the work required of them. In drought time there are insufficient trains to carry the stock to better pasture. In a rich harvest there is insufficient rolling stock to carry the wheat to the sea. The position which would best suit them would probably be if the State suffered from a normal condition of slight depression. Therefore there was really no cause for surprise when, as soon as the much-hampered coal trade managed to rise above its difficulties, and provided more coal than usual to be carried on the New South Wales railways, there were found to be insufficient trucks to carry it. If the rolling stock had been able to cope with the normal increase in any of our chief industries, then indeed there might have been justification for astonishment. As it is, the South Coast coal trade has been at different periods quite disorganised by the shortage of trucks. The Western mines have felt it severely. A few days ago the town of Bathurst was in danger of running short of the coal necessary for its gas supply. The Northern mines suffered until they were driven to petition the Chief Commissioner on the subject. And now, on top of all these difficulties in carriage by land, the facilities for loading coal on to steamers at Newcastle have proved insufficient. Ships are lying there idle, waiting until there are cranes available to fill them; and some have left the port unfilled.

We do not attempt to decide whether the responsibility for these things rests upon the Railway Commissioners or upon the Government. It is possibly the fact that more would have been done if the money had been easier to find. If that be true, it is certainly a pity that the coal trade should be the sufferer. Australian coal is just now fighting a battle in the markets of the Pacific against the coal of Japan, and the fight is going to become fiercer when the Panama Canal lets the coal of the United States through into the Pacific. The coal trade has a formidable opponent ahead of it in any case in the increasing use of oil, especially on shipboard, and every inch that can now be gained in foreign markets may be badly needed in a few years' time in order to keep the mines in full employment. It has been said before, and it is well worth remembering, that even with industrial peace the outlook is none too bright ahead of the coalfields. Australia may some day provide a supply of oil worth considering; but the fact is that at present she does not. Her interest is all on the side of coal. The coal trade is a great asset to this State, and there is no reason why that trade should be hampered by the want of proper facilities at such a juncture.

NEW ZEALAND POLITICS.

The New Zealand Parliament is to be opened by commission to-morrow. Interest will be concentrated on its work, for the capacity of Mr. Massey's Government to conduct the affairs of the Dominion successfully will be fully put to the test in both administration and legislation during the coming session. So far Ministers have during their first year of office initiated few striking changes, and made few mistakes. Mr. Massey is able to point with some justifiable pride to the apparently satisfactory character of his country's finances. But sooner or later he will have to face boldly the whole question of expenditure out of loan moneys, which goes to the root of the financial situation, and makes the outlook appear brighter than it in fact is. Australians will be interested in the proposed conversion of leases of settlement lands into freehold. Much has been done in New Zealand in recent years in connection with the subdivision of large holdings, and the closer settlement resulting therefrom is regarded as one of the most hopeful of the tendencies in the Dominion's social conditions. The provisional agreement recently entered into between Mr. Fisher, the New Zealand Minister for Trade and Customs, and Mr. Tudor, for trade reciprocity between Australia and New Zealand, will, of course, come up for ratification, but obviously this will depend upon the confirmation of the agreement by the present Federal Ministry. Mr. Allen's proposal for an expeditionary military force and the Government's plans for further contributing in respect of naval defence, will also come before Parliament.

But the most important political measure with which the Dominion Parliament will have to deal will be the proposed amendment of the constitution of the Legislative Council. At present it comprises a few life members, and the remainder nominated for a period of seven years. As most of the latter were placed in office by Sir Joseph Ward's Government, it is obvious that the present Ministry is faced by a hostile majority in the Upper House. It is interesting that second Chamber problems are at the present moment being faced by various parts of the British Empire. In the United Kingdom the second stage of the first measures coming under the operation of the Parliament Act is now being taken, and the promised reform of the constitution of the House of Lords has still to be put forward. In Canada Mr. Borden's Government has a large majority in the House of Commons, but an overwhelming hostile majority in the Senate. The New Zealand Government proposes to make the Legislative Council elective on somewhat the same lines as the Commonwealth Senate. The first plan of two large electorates, the North and South Islands, has apparently given way to a proposal for smaller constituencies. Meanwhile the Government has a number of appointments to the Council to fill vacancies under the present system in its gift, and it will doubtless seize the opportunity partially to redress the existing adverse balance. Everything points to the fact that even in the Antipodes finality has not been reached in political experiment, and the constitutional difficulties in New Zealand will be watched with considerable interest by every student of Parliamentary government.

The "Sydney Mail."—One of the most important of the many interesting special numbers that have been issued by the "Mail" is that o fthe current week, which is devoted to the pure foods movement in this State. The subject is dealt with as comprehensively as was possible in a single issue, but an editorial announcement is made that the value of the movement became so apparent in the course of the investigations that it has been decided to establish a pure foods page as a permanent feature of the "Mail." The present issue includes a supplement of 16 pages, making a total of 68 pages of excellent drawings, attractive photographs, and expertly-written articles on numerous subjects, including the work of the authorities in guarding the public health, the feeding of infants, the milk, bread, and meat supplies, the marketing system, modern butchering methods, the fly as a disease carrier, our wasteful and damaging method of handling wheat, and the doomed open-front shop. Among the illustrations is an admirable double-page engraving, which will doubtless find a place on the wall of many a home. It is entitled "The Foster Mother," and represents a fine specimen of a dairy cow standing beside a bench, on which sit five young Australian infants, who owe their sturdiness to the purity and richness of her milk. Altogether this week's "Mail" is a notable number, even the business pages being more than ordinarily attractive, and furnishing good reading as well as pictures.

State Cabinet.—State Ministers sat in Cabinet yesterday for about an hour. The Acting Premier (Mr. Holman) stated subsequently that no decision was arrived at regarding the Chief Commissioner's application for funds to import 80 railway engines from England. It is understood, however, that the bulk of the order will be placed abroad. Mr. Holman said that there was no announcement to make with respect to portfolios in the reconstructed Ministry. Nothing could be done until the Premier returns from his Northern Rivers trip on Saturday. The Premier-elect hopes that Mr. M'Gowen will accept the portfolio of Labour and Industry. Another Cabinet meeting will be held on Thursday.

Mr. Carmichael Ill.—The Minister for Education, Labour, and Industry (Mr. Carmichael) was not well enough to attend at his office yesterday. His medical adviser has forbidden him to leave his room for several days. The Acting Premier (Mr. Holman), in stating last night that he would attend to the Education Department during the Minister's absence, mentioned a week or so ago that Mr. Carmichael asked to be relieved of the Labour and Industry Department. "I have every hope," Mr. Holman went on, "that when Mr. M'Gowen returns to Sydney he will be prepared to take up the industrial portfolio."

Foreshores Resumed.—A couple of years ago the then Minister for Lands (Mr. Nielsen) mapped out a scheme which provided for the resumption for public use of about 16 miles of Sydney harbour foreshores. It is understood that the beaches proposed to be resumed are situated in various parts of the harbour from Balmoral to the Heads. The Acting Premier (Mr. Holman) stated yesterday that arrangements are now being made for the dedication of these foreshores. The ceremony will be performed by his Excellency the Governor (Sir Gerald Strickland). "The matter," Mr. Holman continued, "was brought forward at the Cabinet meeting by the Minister for Lands (Mr. Trefle). Things are now in such an advanced stage that Mr. Trefle anticipates being able to hold the dedicatory ceremony in the near future.' It was decided to mark the occasion by inviting Sir Gerald Strickland to perform the ceremony. No date has yet been fixed. The matter was delegated by the Cabinet to Mr. Trefle. The cost of these resumptions has been estimated at £100,000, but Mr. Trefle thinks it will be possible to obtain the property for less money than that."

UPPER HOUSE.

PROBLEM IN NEW ZEALAND.

REFORM MEASURES.

WELLINGTON, June 17.

In view of the peculiar position that has arisen in the Commonwealth between the two branches of the Legislature, the subject of the reformation of the Legislative Council of New Zealand attracts more than a usual amount of interest. When the present New Zealand Government was in opposition—and it has not yet been a year in office—it laid it down as a sine qua non that the Legislative Council should be placed on a different footing. The Council consists of a few life members, relics of a prehistoric political age, and the balance are gentlemen who were nominated by the now extinct Ward Government, who hold office for the remainder of a period of seven years. Naturally, all the sitting members appointed for the seven year period are supporters of the past administration, and it is not difficult to imagine that their sympathies would be with the "outs" rather than with the "ins." When the Massey Government secured the reins of office it submitted a proposal to substitute election for nomination in respect of the Council. The Dominion was to be divided into two electorates, one for the North Island and the other for the South Island, each to return an equal number of members, the total number not to exceed 40, who would hold office for six years, and 10 from each island to be alternately elected for three years. The nominated Council rejected the measure, though it affirmed the necessity for some reform. The Government then introduced resolutions in the House, and carried them, affirming the expediency of a measure on the lines of that which had been submitted to the Council. The Government evidently had in view the necessity of keeping up the numerical strength of the Council for the ordinary purposes of legislation, and to that end (or ostensibly so), introduced into the Council a bill making the life of a Legislative Councillor three years, instead of seven years. Such a step was evidently necessary in order that the Government should not stultify itself by making a number of appointments for seven years, notwithstanding its declared policy that nominations must cease. That bill also failed, and since then the Government has had time for reflection. Already Mr. Massey has suggested the possibility that in the new measure to be submitted to Parliament next session the two islands will be subdivided for electoral purposes into more than the previously proposed two electorates, and councillors seize upon this pronouncement as an admission that second thoughts are best, and that time has proved their wisdom in refraining from coming to a definite conclusion on a subject which need not be dealt with, for electoral purposes, until the session of 1914, after which the elections will take place. Meanwhile, however, there will be some two dozen vacancies on the Council to be filled, and it stands to reason that the Government will appoint its own friends to those vacancies. Some of them, Mr. Massey says, will be announced by the Governor in his speech at the opening of Parliament on the 26th instant. Such appointments must, under the Act, be for seven years, and they will therefore to that extent perpetuate the present system which the Government, while in opposition, considered so harmful and undemocratic. The question that the Government has to face, therefore, is how to carry out its reform proposal, and at the same time keep up the working strength of the Council without making appointments for such a long period (seven years) as will prevent any reform coming into operation for a period longer than the life of two Parliaments. The only solution of the problem yet suggested is that the Government should bring in a bill to provide that during the next three years the term of office of any Councillor appointed should be for three years only. That, it is argued, would enable the Government to pass any measure of reform that it might consider advisable, and reduce the time of the coming into operation of the reform, and the going out of the nominated members of the Council.

SHIPPING FREIGHTS.

NEW ZEALAND FARMERS' CONTRACT.

TRADE WORTH 20 MILLIONS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), June 18.

The subject of shipping freights has figured largely in the deliberations of the National Dairy Association, which has been holding a conference during the last few days at Palmerston North. The chairman (Mr. Morton) stated that the North and South Island Associations had jointly entered into contracts with the direct shipping companies for the carriage of butter and cheese to London. The existing contract expired in October, 1914, and it was necessary to make arrangements for renewal well ahead. To this end Mr. McMillan, representing the New Zealand and Shaw, Savill lines, was sent out from London to New Zealand with instructions to make a contract for the carriage of dairy produce from New Zealand before he returned to London. An agreement was arrived at and signed, but since then the conditions in regard to carrying had much changed. There had been an increase in freights, wages were higher, running costs were more, fuel had increased in price, and wool freights had doubled. The Dairy Association knew that, and knew that there had been a proposal to increase the freight on meat, so it naturally thought that the freights on butter and cheese might be increased too. It was given to distinctly understand that if a short term contract was urged the rates would be raised, but if it accepted a contract for five years the rate would not be raised. The association deemed it to be in the best interests of the producers to make a contract at the longer term at the rates of freight they had been paying for some years past, and he contended that the association could not have done better. It had been said that New Zealand had a higher rate for dairy produce than Australia, but from Australia no cheese was sent, and while the lower rate there on butter was 2s 4d per box, from New Zealand it was actually 2s 2d, the shipping companies paying the coast freight of 4d, and not, therefore, 2s 6d, as it might appear. The contract, he added, was binding on the association. An interesting discussion followed, a prominent part being taken by Mr. T. Gray, of Messrs. Wright, Stephenson, and Co. By entering into this contract, he said, the association was stifling competition. They would not get competition in the carrying trade so long as engagements of this kind were entered into. He objected to the association being "used" by shipping companies in this way. He knew that other shipping companies were anxious to come into the New Zealand trade, and he failed to see why two companies should have the monopoly. By other speakers it was stated that the shipping companies now operating are going to get opposition in the future, and it was suggested that as the P. and O. Company already goes to Auckland there is nothing to prevent the Orient Company coming to Wellington. The import trade of New Zealand is worth twenty millions sterling, and other shipping companies are looking for a share. Then arose the question of the placing of our dairy produce on the London market. It was stated that four boats arrived at London within seven days with 43,000 crates of cheese, and it was estimated that £100,000 had been lost this season through the present methods of placing dairy produce in London. And there the matter stands for the present.

THE APPEAL.

TO PRIVY COUNCIL.

CITIZENS UNANIMOUS.

£800 SUBSCRIBED IN ONE DAY.

"That this meeting cordially endorses all the steps taken by the Citizens' Committee in protesting against the eviction of the Governor-General from his home in New South Wales."

"That this meeting fully approves not only of the action of the committee in testing the legality of the whole position in the Supreme Court of New South Wales, and in resisting the appeal to the High Court of the Commonwealth, but is further of opinion that a final appeal should be made to the Privy Council as the highest tribunal in the Empire."

"That subscription lists be now opened, and a strong appeal made on loyal and patriotic grounds to the citizens of this State to provide ample funds to be placed in the hands of the committee to meet all legal and other expenses."

These were the resolutions passed at a crowded public meeting in the Town Hall basement yesterday afternoon, presided over by the Lord Mayor (Alderman Cocks).

LORD MAYOR'S SPEECH.

The Lord Mayor said that a large amount of indignation had been expressed, and felt at the alienation of Government House from its original purpose. (Applause.) Not only in Sydney, but throughout Australia, there had been a feeling that New South Wales had been put in an unenviable position in regard to her relations with the King's representative in the Commonwealth. (Applause.) There was no doubt that New South Wales had not only lost prestige in the eyes of the world in the ordinary sense, but in a commercial sense. The Government had made a huge mistake from the point of £ s d, although he did not want to impress that point upon them so much. The presence of the Governor-General in Sydney three or four times a year meant that a larger amount of money got into circulation. We, as a city, were under a distinct disability, and were suffering in a way we should not suffer as a commercial centre, by reason of the action of our Government. If the Liberals were in power and had done the same thing he would be just as strong in his condemnation of what he regarded as ill-advised action on the part of the Government. (Applause.)

SIR WM. M'MILLAN.

Sir Wm. M'Millan, in moving the first resolution, said that they had at least the satisfaction of knowing that they were in the last stages of their work. All that now remained was to secure ample funds to carry their protest to victory. (Applause.) He wished to do away with some misconception which arose at the beginning of the agitation against the Government's action. When it was started they carefully avoided any semblance of party feeling. They asked to their meetings men of all sections, and avoided largely putting up men of pronounced political opinions to speak. They told the country that it was not a matter of party or public policy, but one which touched the imagination and the hearts of the people. (Applause.) They got the largest public meetings in the city and country ever held, and they convinced the Government, if it was capable of being convinced of anything, that public opinion was entirely against it. (Applause.) A democratic Government would have retraced its steps immediately. But, unfortunately, this Government did not, and the citizens' committee had reluctantly to resort to the legal process. They proposed, in view of the verdict of the Supreme Court, to test this matter before the highest tribunal in the Empire. (Applause.) Even if the chances of success were less, a question such as this, which had stirred the hearts of the people, should be settled one way or the other before the highest Court in the land. (Applause.)

APPEAL FOR SUPPORT.

"We call upon all the citizens of New South Wales," he added, "to help us in every way by sympathy, by individual effort, and by circulating our lists for subscriptions to make up a fund which will enable the relators to go to the other side of the world in order to get justice. (Applause.) Apart from this high Imperial aspect of the question, apart from the feelings of the people of New South Wales, when I saw the Governor-General—an English gentleman and the King's representative—practically kicked out of the back door of the State, I felt a blush for every man in the community. We have done ourselves irreparable harm, not merely in our prestige, but in our Imperial interests. It is known in England, has been commented upon not only by men in the street, but by the highest authorities on finance. We cannot expect the country to be recognised in matters of finance if we discard all the principles which an Englishman holds dear." (Applause.)

MR. T. A. DIBBS.

Mr. T. A. Dibbs, who was Sir William M'Millan's seconder, said: "I want to take a practical view of this question; to tell you what I have done to-day, and to ask everyone to kindly add to the list by sending subscriptions in as soon as possible; and, furthermore, to ask their friends to collect funds for this appeal to the Privy Council. I could not do anything before to-day on account of the holiday. Since I have been in the room there have been handed to me further amounts. Altogether I have 26 amounts promised and received, ranging from £50 to £20, and from 2 and 3 guineas down to a guinea. For one day's work this list totals over £300. (Applause.) I have an apology from Mr. J. Russell French accompanied by what is better—a cheque for £25." (Applause.)

MR. DWYER DISSENTS.

At this stage a man rose and complained that no notice had been taken of a written amendment to the motion which he had handed in. He claimed the right to move it.

The Lord Mayor: What is your name?

The Interjector: John Dwyer. (Laughter.)

The Lord Mayor explained that Mr. Dwyer had not previously furnished his name as requested, and that he was waiting for it. He then read the proposal which was to the effect that it would be an insult to the High Court and an unwarrantable interference with the rights of the people to take the course proposed.

MRS. M'NAMARA OBJECTS.

Mr. Dwyer had scarcely sat down temporarily when a lady approached the platform and said in a rather shrill voice: "Here is another amendment."

The Lord Mayor: What is your name, madam?

The Lady: Mrs. McNamara. (Roars of laughter.)

The Lord Mayor then read Mrs. McNamara's proposal, which was to the effect that it would be just as impudent for the New South Wales people to dictate to the Imperial authorities in London over home affairs as for the Imperial authorities to dictate to New South Wales over the Government House question.

Much laughter followed, and it was renewed when the Lord Mayor suggested that, to put matters in order, Mrs. McNamara should second Mr. Dwyer's motion, and that Mr. Dwyer should second Mrs. McNamara's motion.

The large audience, on the amendments being put to it, with three dissentients, threw them out. The motion was then carried in the same degree.

The Lord Mayor here announced a further list of subscriptions handed in, totalling about £200. (Applause.)

STATE'S RESPONSIBILITY.

Mr. Henley said that he was by no means sorry that the High Court judgment was against them. It would give the people of New South Wales a chance to show the metal they were made of—a chance to show where their loyalty and hospitality came in. With New South Wales rested the great responsibility of proving to the whole world that it would not stand this eviction business. (Applause.)

Sir Henry Stephen, in seconding Mr. Henley's motion, said that the Government House proposal had originated in the brain of one minister, and that it was practically through that one minister that it had been carried out.

MONEY ROLLS IN.

Alderman Clarke moved the third motion, which was seconded by Mr. W. T. Waters, and supported by Colonel Goodlet.

An appeal to the audience for funds resulted in about £500 being collected in the room. This made the total collection and amounts promised for the day about £[illegible] out of the £2000 required. Amounts of £50 were subscribed by Mr. J. T. Walker and Miss Walker. Small sums were [illegible] by working men through Mr. [illegible], who [illegible] that no one was being paid for anything being done—"not even the lawyers."

Others present on the platform were Alderman Sandy, Messrs. W. Cope, C. T. Burfitt, A. S. Young, J. T. Walker, and Captain Smith.

THE BALKANS.

WARLIKE BULGARIANS.

SERVIA AND ARBITRATION.

A GREEK PRONOUNCEMENT.

SOFIA, June 23.

At a mass meeting a resolution was passed demanding immediate Bulgarian military action in Macedonia.

BELGRADE, June 23.

Though Servia has rejected Bulgaria's conditions for demobilisation she has re-urged the unconditional acceptance of her own original demobilisation proposal.

Servia is willing to accept arbitration, but not on the basis of an anti-war agreement.

SERVIAN CABINET CRISIS.

BELGRADE, June 24.

The Servian Minister for War refused to take the responsibility for the army's action if the Russian conditions in regard to arbitration were accepted, and he advised that an ultimatum be sent to Bulgaria.

It was on account of this that M. Pasitch, the Premier, handed in his resignation the same time.

The Opposition now refuses to form a Cabinet.

ANOTHER SKIRMISH.

Fighting occurred on Wednesday last between a Bulgarian band and the 7th Servian Regiment in the village of Zletovo. The Bulgarians were driven out, losing 12 men, and the Servians lost three.

THE GREEK ATTITUDE.

ATHENS, June 24.

The Minister for Foreign Affairs states that Greece is ready to submit all the allies' differences to general arbitration, to be carried out simultaneously by the same arbitrators.

He adds that Bulgaria cannot assert that the partition of the conquered territory is a matter which she is entitled to settle with each ally separately, particularly as this was never mentioned in the agreement prior to the war upon which the claim is based.

The newspapers vehemently denounce the attitude of Bulgaria.

A correspondent for a Bulgarian news agency has been expelled from Salonika for disseminating false news.

The Queen has deferred her visit to Germany. Her Majesty is devoting herself to the re-establishment of war hospitals.

TURKISH CONSPIRATORS.

A FATAL AMBUSH.

MORE ASSASSINATIONS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 22.

Ferid Bey, Commander of the Basra division, and Nouri Bey, Governor of Mount Isk, with two officers and a party of gendarmes, were ambushed. Ferid Bey and Nouri Bey were killed, and most of the others were wounded.

The occurrence is believed to be an echo of the plot which culminated in the assassination of Shefyet Pasha, and the result of the project of the Government to introduce reforms.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 24.

The Sultan has confirmed the 20 death sentences passed in connection with the recent conspiracy trial.

Later.

Twelve of the conspirators were hanged yesterday afternoon.

NATIONAL INSURANCE.

A SERIOUS MENACE.

LONDON, June 23.

Many friendly societies complain of the serious depletion of their funds by claims for trivial sickness.

The Grandmaster of the Manchester Unity Order of Oddfellows declares that the administration of insurance benefits menaces both the national fund and the funds of friendly societies.

PARLIAMENT ACT.

RETURNING THE BILLS.

COMMITTEE AND REPORT STAGES.

LONDON, June 23.

In the House of Commons this evening the Premier, Mr. Asquith, moved to make the committee and report stages of the Irish Home Rule Bill, the Welsh Disestablishment Bill, and the Scottish Temperance Bill formal. He argued that the bills must, under the Parliament Act, return to the House of Lords without amendment.

He admitted that the practice of moving wrecking amendments was legitimate, and the Liberals might be compelled to resort to such tactics when in opposition.

A Voice: That will be very soon.

The Premier: I don't care whether sooner or later. If suggestions to improve bills are made before the motion for the third reading stage is reached the Government will consider their nature and allot time for their discussion.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain (Unionist) moved an amendment regretting the suppression of the right to amend bills vitally affecting the Constitution. He characterised such suppression as a gross infringement of the prerogatives of the House.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. Winston Churchill, declared that the Opposition's idea of liberty was power to impose a permanent veto on Liberal measures. Regarding the so-called "degradation," he asked whether the Liberals were not degraded in 1906 when all their bills were thrown out.

Mr. F. E. Smith, on behalf of the Opposition, announced that his party would not take any part in the suggestion stages of the three bills.

The amendment was negatived, the voting being—

For the amendment 202

Against 294

The closure was then applied to the debate on Mr. Asquith's motion, and the latter was agreed to.

FREE FIGHT AT PORTSMOUTH.

LONDON, June 24.

Several seamen and stokers belonging to the cruiser battleship Australia were fined at the Portsmouth Police Court this morning for drunkenness and making a violent attack on the police.

Witness described the affray as one of the worst ever seen in the town.

The trouble started when the police arrested a stoker. The latter shouted: "Come on Australians," and immediately a free fight commenced, during which the police drew their truncheons.

A crowd of 2000 assembled, and matters looked very ugly for some time, the Australians charging the police again and again.

The Bench let the prisoners off with fines, remarking that while everybody was pleased at the colonies sending crews to England, still the members of those crews were expected to behave themselves.

ADMIRAL HOISTS HIS FLAG.

Rear-Admiral Patey, Commander of the Australian fleet, hoisted his flag on the battle cruiser Australia to-day, and exchanged salutes with the warships at Portsmouth.

BANKING AND THE STATE.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S VIEWS.

URGENT REFORM NEEDED.

WASHINGTON, June 23.

The President, Dr. Wilson, again read his address personally to Congress.

He pleaded that there was urgent necessity for reform in the banking system, and urged members to sacrifice even their health in order to press forward necessary bills to prevent a few powerful interests controlling the monetary resources of the United States.

The Government, he declared, was the only authority which ought to control banks and banking.

MOROCCO.

SERIOUS FIGHTING.

BRAVE YOUNG SPANISH TROOPS.

TANGIER, June 24.

Serious fighting took place near Tetuan on Friday.

In many cases the tribesmen charged right up to the mouths of the Spanish guns.

The Spanish force was made up mostly of young soldiers, and they displayed great bravery.

The losses on both sides were heavy.

A press correspondent states that Tetuan is at present "choked with Spanish wounded."

The outcome of the battle has not yet been decided.

FATAL BOXING BOUT.

PELKEY ACQUITTED.

CALGARY, June 23.

In the case in which Pelkey was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of M'Carthy, his opponent in a boxing contest, the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal.

The jury held that Pelkey's blow did not kill M'Carthy.

The Chief Justice decided that any encounter with fists, even if privately arranged, constituted a prizefight. Such a decision practically prohibits boxing in Canada if the authorities chose to interfere.

His Honor declared that even if the jury had found Pelkey guilty he would not have inflicted any sentence, as the case was obviously one brought on in order to define the law governing prizefights.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

AIRMAN'S EXPERIENCE.

LONDON, June 24.

Mr. Fairbairn, while testing a 350 horse-power aluminium aeroplane—which had been devised with a view to a flight across the Atlantic, having the body enclosed and provided with a conning tower with glass sides—flew from Brooklands to Shoeburyness yesterday.

Then, when at an altitude of 1000ft, above the sea the machine dipped and fell.

A friend of the airman saw the accident and sailed to the spot. He attempted to lift the lid of the conning tower, but the aeroplane sank before he could get Mr. Fairbairn out.

Later.

After the aeroplane had sunk Mr. Fairbairn rose to the surface, and the air-jacket he was wearing kept him afloat until he became conscious. He then swam ashore, a distance of two miles.

PRESIDENT POINCARE'S VISIT.

PARIS, June 23.

The President, M. Poincare, left Cherbourg to-day for England.

LONDON, June 24.

Extensive preparations are being made for the welcome of the French President, M. Pichon, and Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Many streets have been decorated.

This morning Mr. Rudyard Kipling published a poem entitled "France," in which he happily summarised the French characteristics.

THE SUFFRAGISTS.

CRIMINAL OUTRAGE.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK A TRAIN.

LONDON, June 23.

A sleeper which had been placed on the railway line in a tunnel at Devonport was discovered a few minutes before the express from London to Plymouth was due.

The outrage is attributed to suffragists.

THE IMPRISONMENT FARCE.

Mrs. Beatrice H. Sanders, financial secretary to the Women's Social and Political Union, who was last week sentenced to 15 months' imprisonment as a result of the conspiracy trial, has been released owing to her refusal to take food.

This means that five out of the six women who were sentenced have already been released, the only one whose hunger strike has not so far been successful being Harriett Roberta Kerr, 54, unmarried, manager of the offices of the union.

PERILS OF THE SEA.

MID-ATLANTIC INCIDENT.

LONDON, June 24.

While the barque Glenmark was in mid-Atlantic her ballast shifted during very heavy weather, and for several days she threatened to heel over.

The steamer Darnholme eventually saw her signals of distress, but owing to the high sea running her boats were unable to reach the barque until after attempts lasting the whole day.

Finally all on board the Glenmark were rescued by means of a lifeline.

The captain's daughter was dragged half a mile through the water, and when she was taken on board the Darnholme she was in an exhausted condition.

STOPPING AN EXPRESS.

GIRL'S PROMPT ACTION.

HOT SPRINGS (Arkansas), June 23.

Bertha Kay, a farmer's daughter, on discovering that a bridge on the Iron Mountain railway line was on fire, frantically ran along the track, waving her sunbonnet. She succeeded in stopping an express train, which would have otherwise fallen through the flaming bridge into a deep river.

In appreciation of the girl's conduct, the passengers presented Miss Kay with the sum of £20.

DISASTROUS EXPLOSION.

PARIS, June 24.

As the President, M. Poincare, was leaving Cherbourg for England yesterday, and a salute of 100 guns was being fired from Fort Roule, an accidental explosion occured, which resulted in two men being killed and eight wounded. Four of the latter are not expected to live.

The lieutenant commanding the firing party admits that a number of cartridges were left near the gun, contrary to the regulations, and when the friction tube was blown back it fell in the midst of the reserve cartridges.

A frightful explosion followed in the midst of a group of gunners. One man's leg was blown clear out of the fort, and fell 100 yards below.

Two of the men recovered consciousness and received absolution before they died.

THE SCOTT EXPEDITION.

LONDON, June 24.

Two hundred cases of specimens collected by the Scott expedition have reached the Natural History Museum.

Particular interest attaches to one box of fossils found on a sledge which Captain Scott before he died marked by a pole, knowing that it would become hidden by snow.

SOLDIER IMMIGRANTS.

LONDON, June 24.

In the House of Lords last night, Lord Emmott, Parliamentary Secretary to the Colonial Office, stated in reply to a question by Lord Sydenham, in regard to the unrestricted entry of time-expired soldiers into Australia and New Zealand, that the Government was not prepared to make representations to the Colonial Governments on the subject.

Towards the latter end of last year the fact was published that a military proclamation had for some time been circulated throughout India dealing with the emigration of time-expired soldiers to New South Wales. The proclamation was in the nature of a Battalion Order, and was issued by Lt.-Colonel T. E. O'Leary, commanding the 2nd Battalion, Princess Victoria's (Royal Irish Fusiliers), at Quetta, on September 12, 1911. It set out the nature of instructions as to the "qualifications and restrictions to British soldiers of the regular forces serving in India who propose to settle in Australasia on completion of their army service." And the order continued to give the following details:—

NEW SOUTH WALES.

1. No British soldier will be allowed to proceed to New South Wales on completion of army service without the approval of the divisional or independent brigade commander. Such approval will not be granted by the divisional or independent brigade commander until they have satisfied themselves that the following conditions are fulfilled by the applicant:—

(i.) Age not above 40 years.

(ii.) Health and character "good."

(iii.) Constitution "vigorous."

(iv.) Is in possession of at least £200, and in addition is entitled to a pension.

2. Passages will be granted to approved emigrants under the conditions laid down in paragraphs 7 to 12.

N.B.—No conditions are at present in force for the remainder of the Australasian colonies, but will be published as received from the Governments concerned.

On being interviewed with regard to the matter, the then Attorney-General (Mr. Holman) stated that the conditions enumerated had been laid down some years ago as the conditions upon which official recognition and assistance would be granted to immigrants of the type in question. These conditions, he added, no longer applied. Then as late as May 27 last it was announced in the press that a letter from the External Affairs Minister had been received by the British Immigration League, dated May 27, which reads as follows:—"Advices have now been received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies that the Government of India has been informed that no special conditions or restrictions are to apply in cases where discharged soldiers desire to proceed to New South Wales without receiving Government assistance on arrival." In view of this, Lord Sydenham's question, as applying to Australia at least, is a little puzzling.

LAWN TENNIS.

LONDON, June 23.

In the first round for the All-England championship, M. E. McLoughlin (America) beat Roper Barrett (England), 4—6, 8—6, 1—6, 6—2, 8—6.

Rice, Doust, Lesurier, Gore, Dixon, and Rahe have all won their first rounds.

Owing to the fact that the English players did not take part in the hard-court championships in Paris, Germot and Decugis withdrew their entries from the English contest.

RESEARCH SCHOLARSHIPS.

LONDON, June 24.

The Exhibition Commissioners of 1851 have awarded Messrs. Junner (Melbourne), Pierce (Sydney), and Burbridge (New Zealand) research scholarships and £150 per annum, and Mr. Sanders (Adelaide) a probationary bursary.

COOK CABINET

STRONG TEAM.

REPRESENTATIVES OF SIX STATES.

FINAL SELECTION.

EARLY MEETING OF PARLIAMENT.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

To-day the Prime Minister (Mr. Cook) completed his task of forming a Cabinet to succeed the Fisher Ministry, and shortly before dinner he and his colleagues motored to Government House and were sworn-in by the Governor-General, Lord Denman. The new Government is constituted as follows:—

Mr. COOK, Prime Minister and Home Affairs.

Sir JOHN FORREST, Treasurer.

Mr. W. H. IRVINE, Attorney-General.

Senator MILLEN, Minister for Defence.

Mr. GLYNN, Minister for External Affairs.

Mr. GROOM, Minister for Customs.

Mr. WYNNE, Postmaster-General.

Senator McCOLL, Vice-President of the Executive Council.

Mr. KELLY and Senator CLEMONS, Hon. Ministers.

The new team is a representative one, every State having a Minister. New South Wales has three in Mr. Cook, Mr. Kelly, and Senator Millen; Victoria has three in Mr. Irvine, Mr. Wynne, and Senator M'Coll; Western Australia, one, Sir John Forrest; South Australia, one, Mr. Glynn; Queensland, one, Mr. Groom; and Tasmania, one, Senator Clemons.

In the allotment of the portfolios there have been several surprises. For instance, nobody ever thought that Mr. Cook would have taken Home Affairs; nor was it expected that Mr. Wynne would have been Postmaster-General. In fact, Mr. Wynne was not looked upon as a likely Minister at all, until Sir Robert Best dropped out of the running.

Mr. Wynne will be no stranger in the Postal department, as when Mr. Cook was Postmaster-General of New South Wales, Mr. Wynne filled that position in Victoria. Out of the ten Ministers and honorary Ministers, five were in the Fusion Cabinet, Messrs. Cook, Glynn, Groom, Sir John Forrest, and Senator Millen. The other five have never previously held Federal portfolios.

Although Mr. Kelly is classed as an honorary Minister, he will be found plenty of work to do, as he is to represent the Minister for Defence in the House of Representatives, and will also act as assistant to Mr. Cook in the Home Affairs Department. Senator M'Coll will be ready to act for any of the other Ministers, who may be away from their department.

In making the announcement regarding the Ministry to-night Mr. Cook said nothing had been done with regard to the appointment of whips. That would come later. He also stated that there would be no meeting of the party until within a few days of Parliament being called together. There was no need, he said, to have members cooling their heels unnecessarily in Melbourne, when there was nothing for them to do.

Mr. Cook was not inclined to indicate any changes that would be brought about in the administration of the department. He preferred to wait until Ministers got settled down, and saw how things were before saying what was to be done.

Questioned as to what would be done in connection with the tariff, Mr. Cook replied, "Our position is quite clear on that point. We will proceed exactly on the lines laid down by us when we were before the electors."

"Will there be any alteration made in regard to the electoral system?" was the next question put to the Prime Minister.

"I would prefer to look into the subject before answering that question," was the reply.

"Is that not the reason you took Home Affairs?"

"Not at all," said Mr. Cook, with a smile. "I took Home Affairs because that was all they left me."

It is understood that the new Parliament will be called together about Tuesday, July 8. It is usual for a Cabinet to have a much longer time to prepare their policy programme, but in this case it is absolutely necessary that the House should meet to pass supply, as only sufficient money has been made available to pay Government salaries up till the end of June. Therefore, if the mid-monthly cheques are to be ready on July 15 the Parliament will have to authorise the payment of them. The passing of the Supply Bill will probably be the only business transacted when the House meets, as the Government will ask for a three or four weeks' adjournment, to get ready for the session.

It is understood that there will be no difficulty placed in their way by the Opposition in this matter.

NORTHERN MINES.

THREE PITS IDLE.

A SERIES OF STRIKES.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Both Wallarah and Elermore Vale collieries were idle to-day owing to strikes, while Stanford Merthyr was thrown idle by the manager, who anticipated a stoppage. Trouble was also brewing at the Co-operative Colliery.

The dispute at Wallarah Colliery was brought about by the manager refusing to allow two men to exchange cavils. Mr. D. Watson, president of the Colliery Employees' Federation, was in communication this afternoon with the manager and the lodge officers. The manager agreed to meet the men to-night, and also to allow a change being made in the cavilling system, if the miners returned to work. The men will hold a meeting to-night and no doubt decide to work to-morrow.

The trouble at the Elermore Vale was over the wheelers. A meeting will be held to-night. Mr. Watson intends to be present and to advise the men to return to work.

For some time past the miners at Stanford Merthyr Colliery have been wanting half an hour allowed to them during the day for lunch. They now work eight hours without a break. On Sunday last they held a meeting and passed a resolution that they would take the half-hour. The manager threatened them with an injunction if they did so, and in order to prevent the trouble he stopped work at the pit at midday. Mr. W. Brennan went out there this afternoon for the purpose of arranging a settlement.

Trouble also broke out at the Co-operative Colliery, but the miners have not stopped work.

Speaking in connection with the wages board for the mining industry, Mr. Watson said that they had made an arrangement with the mechanics. He also mentioned that they were endeavouring to arrange the appeal to be held this week.

RAILWAY COLLISION.

TRAINS DELAYED.

TRUCKED ENGINE DERAILED.

URALLA, Tuesday.

Yesterday's passenger train from Sydney ran into the rear of an empty cattle train 20 miles south of Uralla, derailing four trucks and brakevan, also the engine of the passenger train.

The mails and passengers were transhipped. The Brisbane mail passed here going north nearly four hours late.

Breakdown gangs are at work, and through traffic is expected to be resumed shortly.

Driver Jones, who resides at West Tamworth, was in charge of the passenger train, and it appears that the train was travelling at a good rate of speed when the collision occurred. The railway line between Walcha-road and Kentucky bends about considerably, and there are a number of cuttings, making it difficult to see any considerable distance ahead. It seems that the passenger train swept down on the rear portion of the goods train, crashing into the brake van.

The impact was severe. Guard Maloney, who was seated in the brake van, fortunately noticed the approaching passenger train, and realising that to remain in the train would probably mean serious injury, if not certain death, leaped from the van just in time, for the engine crashed into the brake van, completely wrecking it. Although the passenger train had a number of travellers on board, no one was injured.

The following official statement regarding the above occurrence was made yesterday:—"A goods train left Walcha-road at about 9 o'clock last night. When six miles north of Walcha it became stuck-up for some reason or other. While in this stationary position the passenger train from Sydney to Armidale approached, and a rear collision resulted. Two trucks and a brakevan of the goods train were considerably damaged by the impact. The Sydney-Armidale engine was derailed. This part of the main line being paralysed by the wreckage, the transference of both the up and down Brisbane expresses will be necessary. These trains will thus arrive several hours late."

THE BORDER.

RAILWAY FACILITIES NEEDED

A RICH DISTRICT.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith) has returned from a visit to Jerilderie, Deniliquin, Moama, Moulamein, and Hay.

"I had not been to this border district before," Mr. Griffith said yesterday, "and all I have heard about its richness and fertility is amply justified. Up to the present this district has been denied railway facilities, simply because the trade resulting from such development would go to Melbourne instead of Sydney. I am quite determined that this state of things must not continue. I have not seen anywhere in the State a better piece of country than that between the Edward and the Murray Rivers, along the seventy miles of road from Moama to Moulamein. The great bulk of the country is rich red wheat land, and some of the oranges grown by the settlers are better than any I have seen anywhere in Australia. If there were a railway the whole of the country would very soon be cut up into wheat and dairy farms."

THE RAILWAYS.

INCREASE IN FARES AND FREIGHTS.

ORDINARY TICKETS NOT AFFECTED.

The proposed increases in railway fares and freights will affect season tickets, workmen's tickets, and rates on merchandise.

It is estimated that the increased freight on goods will benefit the railway department to the extent of £75,000 per annum.

The season ticket rates in operation at June 30, 1907, will be reverted to.

The workmen's weekly ticket rates will be similar to those in force at January 1, 1911.

All line tickets—known in the department as system tickets—will be increased approximately 10 per cent.

It is not proposed to make any alteration in the price of ordinary single and return tickets.

The Treasurer and Minister for Railways (Mr. Cann) stated yesterday afternoon that it was necessary to balance the railway ledger. "We do not flinch from the task," he went on. "If we were political cowards we would have refused to accept the Commissioner's recommendation, and staved off the inevitable.

An executive minute authorising the increases has not yet been passed. The Acting Premier (Mr. Holman) stated last night that the matter was not reached at yesterday's Cabinet meeting. Ministers will sit in Cabinet again on Thursday.

It is understood that primary products will not be affected in any way. The additional revenue from all sources will amount to about £147,000 per annum.

In the following table the present and proposed rates are compared:—

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

LAND LEGISLATION.

FREEHOLD BILL PROMISED.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

Parliament will be opened by commission on Thursday, and the Governor's speech will be delivered on Friday.

The programme outlined will include measures authorising the issue of notes by the Commercial Bank of Australia, enabling lessees of settlement lands to obtain freehold, making the Legislative Council elective, alterations in the tariff to carry out the reciprocal agreement between Australia and New Zealand, and the removal of tariff anomalies, reducing the qualifying age for women for old-age pensions from 65 to 60.

DAVIS CUP.

AUSTRALIANS IN AMERICA.

SERIES OF TROUBLES.

SEARCH FOR PRACTICE COURTS.

In a letter written to a friend in Sydney Horace Rice, one of the members of the Australasian Davis Cup team, tells of the difficulties with which they had to contend in getting practice before the match against America, which was played on June 6, 7, and 9. He writes (May 29):—

"We have been wandering all over America trying to find a decent court to practice on, and have not struck one yet. When we arrived in New York we went out to the West Side Club, and had one set on the grass, but the court was impossible, the balls would not bounce at all, so we had to finish our practice on the earth courts. We only stayed in New York a day and a half, and then left for Philadelphia. Dewhurst wrote and told us that the courts were perfect there, but they were just the same. We went to Baltimore, and then Boston with the same result, and now we are back in New York with only eight days before the match.

"We had to leave Jones at Boston confined to bed. It is very doubtful if he will be able to play. Doust and I may have to do it all. Jones could not play in the match at Boston. I played Doust a single, and beat him 6-3, 6-8, 7-5. Subsequently Doust and I played Niles and Dabney, one of the best pairs in America. They had previously beaten Little and Hackett. However, we beat them three sets straight, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1. I was very pleased, and struck real good form.

BAD WEATHER.

"We have had terrible weather all over America—rain all the time—but we have to make the best of it. We are evidently much too early in America for decent courts. They all tell us that the courts cannot possibly be good till the end of June or July."

Rice encloses a photograph of what he quaintly describes as the "little cottage" at which they are staying, the said cottage being the Vanderbelt Hotel, 20 stories in height. From some cuttings which came with the letter it is learned that the American press devoted a good deal of attention to the defeat of Niles and Dabney.

One writer says:—"The Australians can play doubles. There is no room for doubt after yesterday, when Doust and Rice smothered the crack Boston pair, who early in the month so decisively beat Hackett and Little, the Davis Cup doublists, at Tuxedo. They have no real strokes, their service is weak, and they play in an unorthodox formation, with one man up and one back when returning the service, but they win points and games with startling speed; nevertheless, neither player hit hard, but they mixed their strokes and systems of attack effectively and rushed around in a bewildering manner, getting almost impossible returns over and over. Rice, who bore the brunt of the attack, responded by making 21 earned points to 18 errors, a remarkable record. He once missed his swing at a smash and turned and ran back like a deer, and played the bounce. Once he dropped his racquet, picked it up, and won the point. Doust, with 15 earned points to 18 misplays, was not far behind him, and demonstrated his splendid ability at the net. It was not a case of hard, clean driving, but of amazing quickness and daring, for both repeatedly ran in to volley from the service line smashes and drives going like cannon balls."

COMPARISON OF PLAY.

Another report of the same match says:—"Under the cold grey of a wintry sky yesterday afternoon, in a temperature that made fur coats agreeable to the spectator and drew from the players at every breath vapour like smoke from a cigarette, the Australasians—Doust and Rice—beat Dabney and Niles, with a decisiveness that dismayed the usual Longwood gallery. It becomes increasingly apparent that the international matches will be decided not so much on real fundamental form, but on the form of the moment. The Australians are catching on even early in their season, and in a season that has permitted less than the usual early practice. This has the unfortunate sound of a 'squeal;' but nevertheless states the facts.

"On appearances the Australians have nothing in strokes to compare with the rapid-fire guns that both Williams and McLoughlin have in their good right arms. But it is perfectly apparent that they have mighty good heads on their shoulders, to lend cunning in place of speed to their strokes. They showed that clearly enough yesterday afternoon. . . . It was something of a revelation to see the handy fashion in which both the South Sea contenders warmed up to Niles's difficult service. Doust made pretty places off it. Rice, a left-hander, found its high bound and break to the left precisely to his taste. Between them the Australians uncovered a very snappy and heady attack. Doust and Rice made one fact unmistakably clear—their game is entitled to entire respect."

MAKING THE ZOO.

AT ASHTON PARK.

NATURAL HOME FOR THE LIONS.

In four or five years the new Zoological Gardens at Ashton Park, near Athol Gardens, should, if the present rate of progress is uninterruptedly maintained, be ready for occupation. Though much has been written about the scheme, few people have any conception of the amount of work that has already been done.

Ashton Park fronts the harbour, and extends from Sirius Cove to Athol Gardens. The land rises abruptly from the water, and carries heavy rock formations, and a considerable quantity of timber, and presents a very picturesque front. It is a practically virgin area, its extent being about 43 acres. For many months a gang of 15 men have been at work, and as a result of their labours a winding road now traverses the ground, excavations have been made for little lakes, a large amount of the rough work for the rockeries has been accomplished, and a great number of trees and shrubs planted.

As far as possible the birds and animals will be brought as nearly as practicable into harmony with their natural surroundings. Running through the area is a little watercourse, which in summer is almost quite dry. It is proposed to put in a wall at the foot of this, and bank up the water by means of minature locks, so forming a series of little lakes, round which masses of tree ferns will be planted. On the sharp rocky rises wild goats, deer, and antelope will be found when the collection at Moore Park is transferred; and on the rocks, behind walls and moats, too high and too wide to allow of their escaping, lions and tigers will be seen. Rocky walls and moats, instead of iron rails, will surround the enclosures in which the hippopotamus, rhinoceros, and other animals are enclosed, and so with the rest of the collection.

Flora conservation is to be a matter of special care. The bulk of the trees which now stud the face of the grounds will more or less give way to other species, which will be arranged in clumps so as to secure spectacular effect. Amongst the rocks large quantities of ferns and flowering creepers will be planted, and there will be an aquarium, while on the foreshores seals and penguins will be seen disporting themselves.

The new Zoological Gardens, when they are at last completed, will, it is confidently predicted, rank among the best in the world, and Sydney holiday-seekers will be provided with a resort of which they should have good reason to be proud.

REVOLVER DUEL.

TWO MEN WOUNDED.

EARLY MORNING SHOTS.

In a backyard at Redfern a dangerous duel was fought between a police constable and an aboriginal yesterday morning. The exchange of shots resulted in the wounding of the blackfellow in the elbow, and a third man, Harry White, in the neck and right arm.

"I was on duty in Regent-street at about 1.45 a.m.," Constable Myers said, "when Harry White, a local barman, told me he had been assaulted and robbed by a blackfellow.

"In company with a night-watchman, named Brewer, I went with White in search of the blackfellow. After a time we found a man in the rear of a backyard in Bullanaming-street.

"I opened the gate, and saw a man's form just inside. He had a revolver in his hand.

"'Throw up your hands' I said. But he moved a step or two sideways, and replied: 'You can't take me.' With these words, he fired a shot. I dodged forward, and then quickly rushed him. As I again called upon him to surrender, he fired two shots in close succession.

"White, who had been standing near me, fell to the ground. I then fired a shot over the blackfellow's head, and another directly at him, which was later found to have caught him in the elbow. At the same time, I threw myself on him, and the watchman came into the yard and helped me to handcuff him."

By that time the neighbourhood was disturbed. The resident in whose yard the shooting took place, attended to White while Constable Myers took the blackfellow to the police station. White was conveyed to Sydney Hospital in the Civil Ambulance motor. The blackfellow was also treated at the hospital.

FOOTBALL FINANCE.

THE LEAGUE'S RECORD.

£5517 TAKEN IN FOUR MATCHES.

That the Rugby League game has a strong hold on the sporting public of Sydney has been amply demonstrated during the past month. Despite the inclement weather the attendances at the various club matches, and especially those played at the Sydney Cricket Ground, have been remarkable. It is not surprising, therefore, that the games between the New Zealand team and this State's representatives have been marked by large attendances, this notwithstanding that the weather has proved so unfavourable. Below we give the figures for the four matches:—

N.S.W. v N.Z.	Attendance.	Amount.
June 7	36,404	£1,810 13 6
June 9	24,443	1,229 13 0
June 21	15,349	701 17 6
June 23	34,317	1,774 16 3

RUGBY UNION TAKINGS FOR THREE MATCHES.

A comparison of the above figures with those in connection with the Rugby Union matches, played between New South Wales and Australia and New Zealand on the Sydney Cricket Ground in July, 1907, makes interesting reading. On that occasion three matches were played—two on a Saturday and one on a Wednesday—when the attendances aggregated 119,588, representing £5238 13s 6d, which is £278 10s 3d less than the Rugby League took in its four matches. Following were the attendances for the three days:—

1907.	Attendance.	Amount.
July 13, N.Z. v Aust.	51,092	£2,583 1 0
July 17, N.Z. v N. S. Wales	20,419	889 5 6
July 20, N.Z. v Aust.	48,077	1,766 4 0
Totals	119,588	£5,238 13 6

It may be stated that in 1907 the second match was played on a Wednesday, and that there was no universal half-holiday. However, the New Zealanders had made a great reputation during their then famous tour of Great Britain in 1905, and their appearances in Sydney created great interest.

On Coronation Day, 1911, when the New Zealand Rugby League team played the New South Wales League team, the attendance was 46,000, and the takings £2552 10s.

DUKE KAHANAMOKU

WILL VISIT AUSTRALIA.

DECLINES £10,000 TO TURN PROFESSIONAL.

Duke P. Kahanamoku, the world's amateur champion sprint swimmer, will visit Australia during the next swimming season.

Our representative with the Australian cricketers, who are now touring America, sends us this information. In his letter he states that Mr. W. T. Rawlins, Kahanamoku's manager, is only awaiting an intimation to make the trip. That intimation was sent on May 21 by Mr. W. W. Hill, hon. secretary of the Australian Swimming Union, on behalf of the affiliated unions—some six days before our correspondent wrote—so that the visit of the Honolulu champion is almost assured.

Kahanamoku is the greatest sprint swimmer the world has known, his record for 100 yards being 55 1-5s, which was recently accomplished, but has not yet been passed. His figures for the 100 metres—1m 1 4-5s—are phenomenal.

In commenting on the proposed visit, our correspondent with the cricketers, writing under date May 27, says:—"When we were a day out from Honolulu I received a wireless message from Mr. W. T. Rawlins, the gentleman who first discovered Duke Kahanamoku, stating that the Hui Nalu Club would entertain us, and that the famous swimmer would give an exhibition of swimming and surfing. Needless to say we all looked forward to it with great interest, and there was a large assemblage down at the beautiful Waikiki beach to see the champion.

"I met Duke on my way home from America last year, and have never met a finer fellow. He is 23 years of age, a fine stamp of an athlete, and he never smokes nor drinks. He is most unassuming, and nothing would induce him to let Mr. Spencer's representative take him for the moving pictures.

"Regarding the rumour in Australia about Kahanamoku not being a genuine amateur, I mentioned this to Mr. Rawlins. He told me that it was the first he had heard of it, and that there was absolutely no truth in the rumour.

"Duke is a very smart fellow, and is a draughtsman in the Public Works Department. He has already refused an offer of 50,000 dollars (£10,000) to turn professional. The offer was made by a gentleman who wanted to take him on a world's tour.

"Mr. Rawlins is taking Duke and five other swimmers to San Francisco for the amateur championships in June, and is having a large tank fitted up on the ship, so that they can get plenty of practice on the way. The same arrangements would be made if Duke goes to Australia. Kahanamoku received an invitation to go to Sydney for the last championship meeting, but it was impossible for him to get away, as he would want to arrive some weeks beforehand, so as to have a chance to get into form. I believe Mr. Rawlins replied to that effect, and stated that he would probably make the trip next season if an invitation came along, but so far has had no reply to his letter. Duke is anxious to go, and it only remains for the Sydney swimming authorities to send an invitation, and give Australians the chance of seeing probably the most wonderful swimmer the world has ever seen.

"Mr. Rawlins will probably go to Australia on business in November, and intends to take three other Hawaiian swimmers besides Duke. Apart from his swimming, the champion is a marvel in the surf, and took some of our fellows out in a canoe to shoot the breakers. We are all hoping to meet Duke again in our own country, and it is safe to say he will be very popular out there."

FLOODS.

RIVERS OVERFLOW.

HAWKESBURY RISING.

SOME THRILLING ESCAPES.

Further floods are reported from the country, and in some instances there have been narrow escapes from death.

A man on horseback was swept off his horse in the Shoalhaven River, and was in an exhausted condition when rescued, and two other men in a buggy were carried away whilst attempting to cross Reidy Creek, in the Braidwood district, and were only rescued after much difficulty.

The Queanbeyan river has overflowed its banks, and yesterday the flood was reported to be the biggest seen for many years.

Floods have also followed the heavy rains in the Camden district, and railway traffic was temporarily disorganised on Monday, when the waters of the Nepean were 5 feet over the bridge at Camden. The tram traffic between Camden and Elderslie was suspended, and the mails had to be taken across the river by boat.

The Nepean flood is chiefly the result of heavy rains at the head of the river. Just on 9 inches of rain had fallen at Robertson up to 7 o'clock on Monday night. Yesterday, however, the weather cleared greatly, and the river began to fall fast. By 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the water was below the bridge level at Camden—a fall of some 6 feet since the previous evening—and the fears of the residents were allayed.

News from Penrith states that after rising 13 feet 5 inches the Nepean waters began to fall.

The Hawkesbury also is in high flood again, the waters being over both the Windsor and Richmond bridges. All day yesterday the river was rising rapidly, and by nightfall the water was just over the bridge level at Windsor, and more than 3 feet over the North Richmond bridge on the main road to Kurrajong.

The height of the river last night was within 2 or 3 feet of the height it reached a few weeks back, but no serious fears are entertained. The indications last night were that the waters would rise no further.

Generally speaking, though the weather continues unsettled in some parts, the conditions are becoming finer.

STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

BUGGY WASHED AWAY.

TWO MEN'S NARROW ESCAPE.

BRAIDWOOD, Tuesday.

Two residents of Reidsdale, Messrs. A. Lyons and P. Flanagan, had an exciting experience on Sunday afternoon when on their way home from Braidwood, where they had been attending a funeral. They attempted to cross Reidy Creek, which was much swollen by floods.

Their buggy was washed down stream. Mr. Lyons crawled over the horse's back and managed to reach still water. Mr. Flanagan, however, was washed down with the horse and buggy. Seeing the predicament of his companion, Mr. Lyons again plunged into the current to assist him. He, too, was carried away. Both men were washed into smooth water, about 300 yards from the crossing, and reached dry land in an exhausted condition, both being more or less bruised. The horse was drowned, while the buggy was completely wrecked.

SWEPT OFF A HORSE.

Another man, Mr. R. Crandell, while endeavouring to cross the Shoalhaven River, near Krawarree, on Sunday, was swept off his horse by the flood waters. Fortunately Mr. Crandell caught hold of a clump of tea tree growing on the river, where he remained until reached by several residents with the aid of a rope. He was in an exhausted condition. The horse, after struggling out of the current, galloped to the residence of Mr. R. Byrne, who sent out a search party.

The flood in this district was the biggest experienced for over 20 years. All low-level bridges were submerged, not even the handrails being visible. The flood waters are now subsiding.

PONIES DROWNED.

DRIVER'S THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

GLEN INNES, Tuesday.

Mr. F. Val Wikner, shire engineer, had a thrilling experience yesterday and narrowly escaped drowning.

He was driving a pair of ponies in a buggy, and endeavoured to cross the Severn River at Strathbogie Crossing. Almost directly they entered the river, however, the ponies were carried off their feet, and Mr. Wikner, the ponies, and the buggy were all swept away.

Mr. Wikner, after being washed about a mile down stream, managed to swim ashore, reaching the bank in an exhausted condition.

Both the ponies were drowned, and the buggy is still embedded in the river.

PENRITH.—The Nepean River was up 13ft 5in, but it then started to fall.

RICHMOND.—The Hawkesbury River has risen, and the water went over the bridge at North Richmond on the main road to Kurrajong yesterday morning, and at 11.30 was 3ft over and still rising. The bridge at Windsor is not yet submerged, but it is expected it will be well covered in a couple of hours.

QUEANBEYAN.—The Queanbeyan River overflowed, and on Tuesday it was the biggest flood seen for many years.

CYCLING.

A ROAD RACE ABANDONED.

DANGER TO PUBLIC.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

It is announced by the Dunlop Rubber Company that the cycle road race from Warrnambool to Melbourne, a distance of 165 miles, has been abandoned.

The great popularity of the contest has in a sense been its undoing, for, during the last few years in which it was held, public interest resulted in enormous crowds of spectators thronging the finishing point at the Haymarket, and, despite the mounted police, barriers, etc., the people rushed the course as the competitors sprinted in, to the great danger of both.

It was understood that neither the City Council nor the police authorities would again grant permission for the race to be finished at the Haymarket, and as there is no safe and suitable place near Melbourne which would answer the purpose, the promoters were faced with the necessity either of finishing the competition at a considerable distance from the city, where all facilities and conveniences would be lacking, or abandoning the event.

To compensate riders the company propose to inaugurate an Australasian 100 miles club teams' relay road competition, which will be open to amateur or cash riders belonging to any bona-fide cycling club in the Commonwealth and New Zealand. Over £300 will be given in prizes. In the event of an amateur team being successful trophies will be awarded.

The competition will extend from August 1, 1913, to the end of next April.

Miss Colmer required no guarantee, but left it to the honour of the recipients to return the money for further use on behalf of others. WOMEN'S HOSPITAL.

MR. LEWIS WALLER'S TELEGRAM.

A UNIQUE PROGRAMME.

A group of stars has now been secured for the matinee to be held at Her Majesty's on July 4 that will make the occasion historic theatrically.

Yesterday Mr. Lewis Waller responded to Mr. Hugh J. Ward's invitation to assist in the programme, by telegraphy from Fremantle, as follows:—

"Nothing would give Miss Titheradge and me greater pleasure than to make our first appearance in Australia for charity. We will be delighted to appear at the entertainment for the Women's Hospital."

As it now stands, the programme might, as far as international celebrities go, be a great London assemblage of stars for some notable cause. Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton, to-day at the front rank of their profession, and Mme. Clara Butt and Mr. Kennerley Rumford, both of world-renown, already had made the occasion unique. This latest addition makes the programme an embarrassment of riches.

The theatrical profession is certainly doing its share. There is not an artist in Sydney of any prominence who will not be participating.

Already, too, seven citizens—five of them ladies—have contributed £100 each. Those in a position to do likewise are still being appealed to do so.

A donation of £100 from Mrs. W. T. Waters, and other contributions are further acknowledged.

NEW ZEALAND LOAN.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

An additional £175,000 has been raised by the Government in London, part at par, and the balance at 99¼ per cent.

THE BRICK TRADE.

SELLING AT A LOSS.

AN ALLEGED COMBINE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Further evidence was taken by the Brick Commission, sitting at the State Parliament House, to-day, the chairman, Mr. Hannah, M.L.A., presiding.

Mr. Henry F. Young, chairman of the directors of the Northcote Brick Company, stated that there was an association of eight brick companies. The association was formed because the companies were selling bricks at less than the cost of manufacture. After the break of the "boom" bricks were sold at 4s or 5s less than cost.

The Chairman: Did you pool all your accounts, or work separately?—The eight companies were paid a certain price as progress payments to make bricks and sell them independently, and we then collected the money. The object was to avoid bad debts and so be enabled to sell at a cheaper rate. After the progress payments were made the money collected was divided pro rata between all the companies. The lowest possible price at which bricks could be sold to the public was always kept to. As long as they were able to pay the shareholders four or five per cent. they were satisfied.

The Chairman: What did it cost the association to get the new Northcote Company closed?—Though not working, they got a percentage of the earnings of the other kilns.

The Chairman: What was the effect on the public of raising the price of bricks from 25s to 40s.—It did not affect the consumption. We fixed the price at 40s to give a fair margin of profit. No yard was able to sell at much under 40s and pay a 5 per cent. dividend.

The Chairman: What dividend were you able to pay when the price of bricks was 25s and 27s?—Nothing. We were losing money.

In answer to further questions, witness said it was quite open to companies to join the association for a certain term, and after that they could leave it they liked.

In answer to further questions, witness said: "When we raised prices the public still got bricks at a lower rate than prevailed in the other States. We can sell bricks to New South Wales now and make a profit on them. They can hardly get bricks in New South Wales now at 44s. We charge only 33s. The price in Adelaide, Brisbane, and Perth is much higher than here.

The Commission adjourned till Tuesday next.

AMATEUR WIRELESS EXPERTS.

"CONSIDERABLE NUISANCE."

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

Amateur wireless telegraphists urged the Postmaster-General (Mr. Rhodes) to allow them to use their stations, which under the Act is forbidden. The Minister said amateurs were a considerable nuisance, interfering with official work and receiving messages. Ministers' messages sent to Auckland had been received in Otago. He had been informed that in Australia the amateur caused a lot of trouble.

A member of the deputation said the Deputy Postmaster-General at Melbourne said he had never had any trouble.

The Postmaster-General: Then you see our information is not the same. I am sorry, but I cannot grant your request.

SUGAR TRADE.

TRIALS OF THE GROWERS.

MACKAY (Q.), Tuesday.

The Mackay delegates attending the annual meeting of the council of the Australian Sugar Producers' Association were accorded a formal reception yesterday by the Mayor.

Responding to the welcome, the president, Mr. N. T. W. Crawford, said that hitherto the sugar producers have been like the builders of old who worked with a trowel in one hand and a sword in the other. For they have pursued their occupation in constant dread of attack from politicians and industrial organisations. The Industrial Peace Act, if faithfully administered, while ensuring fair wages and conditions to the worker, will clip the claws of the professional strike promoter, and the abolition of the excise and rebate should remove sugar from the arena of party politics."

The association, he continued, had been most persistent in its endeavours to expose the gross unfairness of the excise.

The secretary read a report on his recent organising visit to North Queensland. During the discussion which followed, one of the speakers said the continual cry was "What have you conceded?" ignoring the fact that the producer had given so much that practically there was nothing left to give. The only alternative to further concessions was to face a strike.

After further discussion it was resolved—"That in any case where the workers make any further demands in future the same be not granted, but referred to the executive of the Australian Sugar Producers' Association."

It was also resolved that the application of the Mourilyan cane-growers for the creation of a new district with a separate representation be granted. The council adjourned until to-morrow.

SYDNEY EXPRESS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In consequence of the remarkable increase of the interstate traffic, railway officials recently intimated that an extra division of the Sydney express trains would probably be scheduled from July 1. After consideration, however, the Commissioners have decided not to make any alteration.

H.M.S. NEW ZEALAND.

LEAVING FOR FIJI.

AUCKLAND, Tuesday.

The battleship New Zealand has completed coaling, and sails for Fiji on Saturday.

STATE ELECTIONS.

CAMPERDOWN P.L.L.

At a meeting of the Camperdown Political Labour League on Monday night, Mr. T. Larkin was unanimously elected president, and Mr. J. Doyle assistant-secretary. Messrs. Stuart-Robertson and G. Ware, candidates for selection, addressed the meeting. A ballot will be taken on Saturday next to select a candidate.

SUCCESSFUL MONOPLANE.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

Reginald White, a local, self-taught aviator, made several good straight flights at Carterton with a monoplane, built by P. Fisher, of Wellington. The machine was able to leave the ground in 30 yards, though the wind was gusty. The trials were successful, but the turning tests have yet to be made.

FIRE AT AUCKLAND.

AUCKLAND, Tuesday.

A fire occurred in premises occupied by Messrs. Skeates, jewellers, caused by the capsize of a kerosene lamp. The flames were promptly extinguished. The damage to stock is estimated at £1000. The insurances total £4000.

MONSOONAL RAINS.

SOME HEAVY FALLS.

CONDITIONS BECOMING FINER.

The monsoonal depression is now to the east of Norfolk Island whilst the high pressure has made a considerable northerly movement. Consequently, conditions should become finer generally.

Yesterday morning cloudy skies were again the predominating feature of the weather throughout the State, and showers of rain still persisted at places along the coast, and in parts of the south-eastern quadrant.

During the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday rain again fell at many places on the coast and highlands, also in parts of the central and southern districts. At Taree and on the Blue Mountains further fairly large amounts were registered, but in other parts of the affected areas the falls were chiefly light, but interspersed with some moderately heavy registrations. Some of the heaviest were: Blackheath 164 points, Katoomba 135, Lawson 125, and Taree 115.

Temperatures recorded both during Monday and yesterday morning were a great deal warmer than recent registrations over the whole of the State. Only in a few instances were the 9 a.m. readings below 50 degrees, whilst the minimums were, almost generally, above 40 degrees. The lowest reported were 32 degrees at Wentworth and 35 at Bombala, Kiandra, and Kosciusko.

KEMPSEY.—During Saturday night and Sunday 236 points of rain fell. The weather is still unsettled. So much wet is proving severe on stock.

TELEPHONE "OWNERS."

DEMAND COMPENSATION.

A UNANIMOUS PROTEST.

"We are telephone owners, not holders, and we are entitled to compensation."

This was the keynote of a meeting held yesterday in the Royal Exchange, in which a number of business men protested against the inadequate compensation being allowed to owners of lines in respect of resumed services.

One speaker said: "Two years ago the department offered me £25; now they offer nothing."

Another said: "Twelve years ago I was offered £15; now I am offered £2."

A third said: "I am offered £2 2s for what may be worth £100."

Mr. Shirley Chapman, who presided, outlined what had been done by the committee to protect the rights of telephone owners. He hoped that they would keep their papers and contracts, for as far as the department was concerned all papers seemed to have been destroyed. They had started the telephone service in Sydney, and should have compensation. The State Government had protected their rights when the service was handed over to the Commonwealth. Mr. Bruce Smith had stated in Parliament that the value of their telephones was the difference between £5 and the excess which they would be called upon to pay. Yet they were offered about £400 for property that cost them £25,000. There was no use bumping against an Act of Parliament, but the Act said that if they refused the amount offered they could demand arbitration. They all demanded arbitration. (Applause.)

Captain Vine Hall said the owners had a strong case. All the owners who had not been cajoled out of their rights for a mere song should hold together, subscribe funds to prepare a case for counsel.

After discussion Mr. W. Gilder was instructed to prepare a case for submission to counsel; the meeting endorsed the actions of the committee; and it was decided that owners of telephone lines should be asked to contribute a guinea towards the cost of defraying legal expenses.

POLICE FORCE.

BETTER CONDITIONS PROMISED.

GOVERNMENT'S INTENTIONS.

The Protestant Hall was crowded last night with members of the police force and the fire brigades. The occasion was the presentation of prizes won at the recent sports. The Inspector-General (Mr. E. D. Day) supported by Mr. Sparkes, Superintendent of the Metropolitan Fire Brigades, presided.

Mr. Flowers, who presented the prizes, said he was pleased to hear of the success of the sports, and that the prizes were fairly evenly distributed between the police and the fire-fighters. He might not be with them next year, but he hoped he would, despite the rumours that the Government was to be "sacked" in the near future. (Laughter.) The Government was trying to make the lot of the police better than it was. No doubt the force was suffering from some disadvantages which required remedying. Mr. Holman, the Acting Premier, had agreed to submit a bill to Parliament to provide a Court of Appeal for the police. (Hear, hear.) In advocating this board, he might say without feeling that he was going against the advice of the officers of the Police Department. It was quite possible for those officers to make a mistake. It would be remembered that they opposed the Sunday off for the police, an idea that had turned out an unqualified success. (Applause.) The department had to look after the public safety, and the Government would therefore shoulder any responsibility in the way of experiments, taking success or blame as the case might be.

An Appeal Court should prove much fairer than the present system, with which great dissatisfaction had been expressed. It would certainly provide a more equitable mode of dealing with promotions. Mr. Flowers then complimented the Fire Brigade on its efficiency, especially in the metropolis.

STRANDED INDRABARAH.

BOW FIVE YARDS FROM BEACH.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

According to a Press Association message received from Wanganui, the bows of the stranded steamer Indrabarah is now only about five yards from the beach at low water. For a distance of over a mile the beach is strew with jettisoned cargo, which is being salved.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

Accused reserved his defence, and was committed for trial, bail being allowed.

TREATMENT FOR TUBERCULOSIS.

IMPORTANT INVESTIGATION.

LONDON, June 23.

The Government has appointed a committee of leading medical men, under the presidency of Lord Moulton, to carry out a world-wide research regarding the best treatment for tuberculosis, and to provide for the sanatoriums under National Insurance Act.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

LONDON, June 24.

Lord Duncannon (Unionist) has been elected for Dover unopposed, in succession to the late Mr. George Wyndham.

[Viscount Duncannon, who is 32 years of age, is a son of the Earl of Bessborough. He represented Cheltenham from January to December, 1910, and was a member of the London County Council for some years. The vacancy was caused by the recent death of Mr. George Wyndham. Dover has always been a safe Unionist seat, as are most of the Kentish constituencies. The late member was returned unopposed at the last election.]

The death is announced of Sir Jonathan Hutchinson, the well-known consulting surgeon and medical writer, aged 85 years.

The Mexican Eagle Oil Company is issuing £1,500,000 worth of 6 per cent. stock at 96½.

A DISTINGUISHED ACTOR.

MR. LEWIS WALLER'S PLAYS.

ARRIVAL IN AUSTRALIA.

FREMANTLE, Tuesday.

Mr. Lewis Waller, a distinguished English romantic actor, who, with the members of his company, is to tour Australia in conjunction with J. C. Williamson, Ltd., is a passenger by the R.M.S. Osterley. "I have always longed to come out to Australia," said Mr. Waller. "I have heard such a lot about this country of yours," he added, "and men who have visited Australia have come back with such glowing tales of Australians' unbounded hospitality and kindness to strangers that I am really anxious to see these things for myself. We have definitely arranged for a six-months tour but, should circumstances warrant it, it is just possible we may stay longer. Our tour will commence at Sydney on July 12, when we open with Henry V. Following this we will put on a piece entitled "Butterfly on the Wheel," a modern play, which has met with tremendous success both in London and New York. It was written by W. G. Hemmerde, who besides being a King's Counsellor is a member of the House of Commons. In the third act of this particular play is a wonderful court scene, which is practically the crux of the whole play. In this scene the author has given his wide and abounding legal knowledge full play, with the very best results, and it is probably the most emotional act that has been staged for some time. No, I would not call it a problem play exactly; it includes a great woman's part, you know, and deals chiefly with the story of a feather-headed woman. Then I have an entirely new romantic play, which will be produced by us for the first time. Mr. W. Devereux, the co-author of "Robin Hood," is the author of this piece, and at my invitation he has come out with us to Australia in order to be present at the initial production. It is a play somewhat on the lines of "Monsieur Beaucaire," and deals with the rising of '45 in the reign of George II. It is a very fine play. Strangely enough we have not yet definitely decided upon a title for this piece, and probably will not do so until we are about to produce it.

It may not perhaps be generally known that Mr. Waller was the original Monsieur Beaucaire, when that romanitc play was first presented in England. In that part Mr. Waller achieved probably his greatest success, and up to date he has played the part no less than 1000 times. Of his other parts, Othello is generally regarded as one of the best interpretations seen on the English stage.

Although Mr. Waller has been seen in many modern plays, his preference lies in the direction of old plays, dealing with the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. As he himself admits, he has always lived more or less in a world of romance, and if he had his way he would turn back the clock of time a century or so. He sees in the stage a strong influence and power in the uplifting of the masses. Briefly, the stage to him exerts in many cases a more potent influence for good than the pulpit. Questioned as to what other plays he would produce, he said he would have liked very much to produce Othello but for the fact that Mr. Oscar Asche had only recently just completed a successful season with that piece. It was not likely that he would put on "Julius Caesar," as this was such an enormous play to handle. However, it was more than probable that they would stage "Romeo and Juliet," while if the circumstances demand it they would revive "Monsieur Beaucaire," the scenery for which they had with them.

Amongst those on board the Osterley with him were Messrs. E. Beerbohm, a nephew of Sir Beerbohm Tree, Alexander Thompson, one of the leading comedians of Great Britain, and Miss Madge Titheradge, his leading lady.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

ORIGINAL PROPOSAL ADHERED TO.

MUSEUM AND CONSERVATORIUM.

The Acting-Premier (Mr. Holman), on behalf of the Minister for Education (Mr. Carmichael), yesterday gave preliminary directions for the commencement of the work of converting Government House stables into a conservatorium of music.

Ministers yesterday considered the question of utilising Government House. It was decided that there would be no variation from the original proposal. The main building is to be devoted to the purposes of an art museum.

A suggestion that the premises might be utilised as a residence for the State Governor was not adopted. Ministers held the view that the area of land that would have to be taken to provide grounds worthy of Government House would be so great that they would not be justified in carrying out the proposal.

It is intended to commence work on the conservatorium buildings almost immediately.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

At a meeting of the executive of the Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association, held on Monday at the offices, Queen Victoria Markets, consideration was given to the question of railway construction, and the following resolution, moved by Mr. D. A. O'Sullivan, and seconded by Mr. W. Rosser, was carried:—

"That the executive of the Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association approve of the scheme proposed by the Minister to accelerate railway construction, but believes that ample safeguard should be inserted to protect both the Government and the members of the association. Further, we are of the opinion that the work of railway construction has not been carried on with that expedition that we should like to see, the result being that many of our members have been thrown out of employment during the past six months, and large areas of lands have been under water for want of railway communication, which tends to increase the number of unemployed."

PARRAMATTA DISTRICT.

ALLEGED BREAKING AND ENTERING.

On Tuesday morning Mrs. Jane Dunn, of Hyde Park, Rookwood, returned home from a holiday trip, to find that the premises had evidently been entered during her absence. A pane of glass in one of the back windows had been broken, and things in the house were strewn about. Senior-constable McDonald subsequently arrested a young man, whom he found camped in a loft on the premises. On the young man was found a revolver, one chamber of which was loaded. A similar revolver was in the house before the place was entered.

BURGLAR BOOM.

Speaking at the police and fire brigades smoke concert at the Protestant Hall last night, Mr. F. Flowers, Chief Secretary, referred somewhat sarcastically to the "alleged prevalence" of burglary and crime. "With reference to the arm of the service that is responsible for preserving the peace," he said, "I hope the present will not be the occasion of another burglar-boom. I feel sure the burglars will break loose to-night if they know that so many of the police are here in the galleries." (Laughter.) In support of Mr. Flowers's remarks four more robberies were reported to the police last night, and three cases were of breaking and entering. Houses in Woolwich, Camperdown, and Waverley were broken into, and clothing and valuables taken in each case. The fourth case was a theft from a room at Bellevue Hill.

BRISBANE WOOL SALES.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The wool sales were commenced to-day, when catalogues representing 20,165 bales were submitted. There was a good display of both greasy and scoured, the proportion of scoured being larger than usual. Many of the wools were in very dry condition, and for this reason alone attracted a considerable amount of attention. The attendance was large and representative, France and Yorkshire being the largest operators. Germany, however, was also strongly in evidence. Competition throughout the sale was keen for all descriptions, and prices, as compared with the May sales, may be quoted as practically on a par, with the exception of top lots of greasy fleece, which were a trifle easier. The highest price for greasy was /14¼, for Politic, Queensland, grown by Ferguson and Ballinger, Politic, Aramac; while for scoured /26 was obtained for B. and M. Tarbrax, grown by Briggs and Munro, Tarbrax, Maxwelton, which was admirably scoured. This was the highest price obtained for scoured wool in Sydney or Brisbane markets since the 1907-8 season.

THE BUTT-RUMFORD CONCERTS.

STAR CONTRALTO IN GREAT VOICE.

For some indefinable reason the principals at the second of the Clara Butt-Rumford concerts last night sang with more enthusiasm than at the opening on Saturday. Enthusiasm forms part of the star-contralto's natural style, and is the quality behind that marvellous voice which has made her famous. Wherefore her admirers welcomed its full-orbed reappearance with joy, whilst the great audience at the Town Hall responded to it in kind, and the thermometer of approval rose to boiling point! Incidentally the baritone's numbers were better chosen, for, with all due respect to Vaughan Williams, one of the new "modern" composers introduced on Saturday, some opportunity to the solo-artist in his capacity as a vocalist must be afforded. Primarily, audiences wish to hear Mr. Rumford's voice, and after that with as much "style" as he pleases, but the voice must have its chance. Some fine things were heard and enjoyed on Saturday, and the fact is not now frogotten, but last night's programme was more genial, and the audience responded to it with increase of warmth.

Mme. Clara Butt opened with a grand interpretation of "Creation's Hymn," one that rivalled that of Mme. Patey in the recollection of those who heard that great artist in Sydney more than twenty years ago. Mr. Ernest Truman brought in the swelling mystery of the organ-tones, above which the rare voice rose sublimely, the singer imparting also the feeling of awed wonder which belongs to the verses set by Beethoven. Mme. Butt sings this so finely, and it so falls in with her heroic manner in big music, that she ought to repeat it at every concert to give her new listeners a proper conception of her powers. Brahms' "Von Ewiger Liebe," one of his most beautiful songs, showed the star contralto's use of different tonal qualities to differentiate character, and this was further illustrated in "The Erl King." Schubert's ballad, in the hands of a baritone, cannot be treated so as to clearly mark out the tones of all three personages—father, child, and erl-king. Mme. Butt has her deep chest quality for the first, her mezzo timbre for the second, and a silvery pianissimo for the third. There was no over-colouring, and indeed delicacy of art was shown in properly indicating the progress of the tragedy. The encore was Brahms' "Slumber Song," in which the mezza voce was delightfully employed.

In the second part, Mme. Butt's first success fell to her rendering of A. H. Brewer's "The Fairy Pipers," a charmingly imagined composition, in which the artist was happily intimate in the sweet use of her voice, getting quite close to the hearts of all her listeners. An absolute storm of applause greeted the effort, and after the repetition, Mr. Harold Craxton's lightness of touch, and tone as of silver bells in the accompaniment, was warmly recognised, and acknowledged by the pianist. Lane Wilson's "The Voice of Home" was merely a "shop-song" with a pretty refrain; and then followed "Abide With Me," originally composed by S. Liddle for Mme. Clara Butt. The great artist—for she is that now—sings this music with a deeper and truer sentiment than when she was last here. The fortissimo at "I triumph still" rises above the organ-floods of sound with sincerity of exultation, and the touch of "theatricalism" which jarred on many listeners in former days is no longer there. In one word, the prayer remains. This beautiful interpretation was followed by Trevalsa's "My Treasure," which the artist first introduced here, and sings with the same tender simplicity that then won her so many friends.

Mr. Kennerley Rumford sang one of Hugo Wolff's best-known songs, "Verborgenheit," with its melodious theme that breathes the spirit of resignation, and a climax of anguish, in which the full power of the voice was heard. The same composer's joyous little tone-picture, "Der Gartner," was rendered with much animation and roundness of tone. The Grieg songs included "Mit Einer Wasserlilie" ("See, Marie, What I am Bringing!"), a tender setting to verses by Ibsen, whose poems naturally appealed to his Norwegian compatriot; and after a fiery Brahms ballad ("So Willst du des Armen"), the light baritone accepted an encore in the tender vein of Macdowell's "Thy Beaming Eyes." His charm in this lingered after his departure four or five years ago, and was renewed last evening. "Thoughts Have Wings" (Liza Lehmann), the playful Irish ballad, "Molleen Oge," and the patriotic song, "The Yeomen of England" (German), delivered with buoyancy, power, and enthusiasm, completed the artist's second group, with an effective rendering of "King Charles" (White) as encore. The two Shakespearian settings for the two voices by Liza Lehmann, "How Sweet the Moonlight," and "Under the Greenwood Tree" were well contrasted, and the former demanded and received a deal of fine singing. The encore was the much-demanded "Keys of Heaven."

Mr. F. Mowat Carter's principal contribution was the Schubert "Ave Maria," admirably played, and melody of tone and executive facility were shown in the encore, a fascinating "Serenade" from Drigo's ballet, "Les Millions d'Harlequin," rearranged for violin by Auer. Mr. Laurence Godfrey-Smith proved in fine form in both his groups of piano solos, and responded first with the "Sailor Song" of Schumann, and then with Schytte's graceful "With the Stream."

Messrs. J. and N. Tait announce further concerts for to-morrow and Saturday.

NEWCASTLE.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

ATTEMPT TO CENSURE THE MAYOR.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

At to-night's meeting of the municipal council, Alderman Coleman moved,—"Seeing that the Mayor has lost the confidence of this council, will be inform the council what his intentions are, and whether he intends to resign his office or not."

The Mayor (Alderman H. M. Shedden), in referring to the beach improvements fund, about which he was recently censured by the council, said that he had received a letter from Mr. H. Berkeley, who presided at a special meeting of the subscribers to that fund, stating that they approved of the Mayor's action. The Mayor ruled the motion out of order.

Alderman Coleman then moved that they should dissent from the Mayor's ruling, and the motion was seconded by Alderman Light.

Upon being put to the council the motion was lost by 6 to 5 votes.

TUBERCULOSIS DISPENSARY.

OBJECTION BY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

The Newcastle Municipal Council is strongly opposed to the erection of a tuberculosis dispensary on the site proposed in Church-street West. At to-night's meeting Alderman Davies said that he thought it was a grave injustice to the owners of property. Where it was proposed to remove the dispensary the land was only 30ft by 40ft, and it was ridiculous to erect such a building there. Doctors had told them that consumption was not contagious, but the objection was in the scare it created, and the effect it had in reducing the value of property in the vicinity. The dispensary was not wanted, and it was not desirable, although Mr. Flowers had promised aid to the dispensary committee if any objection was made by the council.

Alderman Davies said that they should object to the erection of the dispensary.

The council unanimously passed a motion to that effect.

The land referred to was discovered by Mr. Frank Wild, of Dr. Mawson's expedition, and extends for a distance of fully 130 miles to the east of Kaiser Wilhelm II. Land, in the direction of Knox Land.

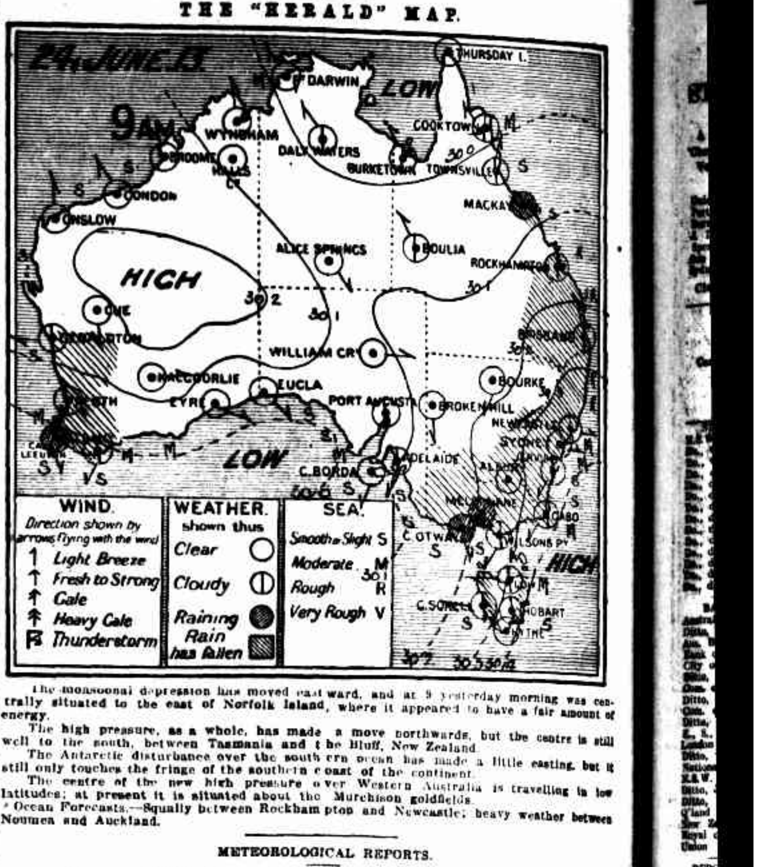
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The monsoonal depression has moved east ward, and at 9 yesterday morning was centrally situated to the east of Norfolk Island, where it appeared to have a fair amount of energy.

The high pressure, as a whole, has made a move northwards, but the centre is still well to the south, between Tasmania and the Bluff, New Zealand.

The Antarctic disturbance over the southern ocean has made a little easting, but it still only touches the fringe of the southern coast of the continent.

The centre of the new high pressure over Western Australia is travelling in low latitudes; at present it is situated about the Murchison goldfields.

WOLLONDILLY SEAT.

TO BE CONTESTED BY LABOUR.

The Wollondilly seat, rendered vacant by the death of Mr. M'Court, will be contested by the Labour party.

The matter was not formally discussed in Cabinet yesterday, but the feeling amongst Ministers was that a candidate should stand in the Labour interest. Although Wollondilly has never been regarded as a Labour seat, the Government is determined not to let anything go by default.

Some members of the Ministerial party, it is stated, consider that, in view of the approaching general elections, it would not be entirely without precedent if the issue of the writ for the Wollondilly seat is delayed.

FINANCIAL.

Sir,—I have read with much pleasure the letter from "Company Law" published in your issue of Friday last, and for which I think he deserves the thanks of all people—and accountants in particular—who want to have all company matters conducted beyond suspicion.

The whole question is, can dividends be paid excepting out of profits? The Companies Act distinctly lays down that dividends can only be paid out of profits. As the above company has not yet even commenced business, where is the profit coming from to pay the dividends already paid, and promised to be paid? Profit cannot be anticipated for the purpose of paying dividends.

The solicitor of the company, in reply to the queries of "Company Law," says, inter alia, that the vendors have agreed to advance sufficient money to pay 8 per cent. p.a. on the amount for the time being paid up on the preference shares. Now, how long are the vendors going to find the money to pay this 8 per cent. dividend?

Supposing the company does not make any profit for 10 years, are the vendors going to still pay the 8 per cent. dividend?

On the other hand, suppose in five years' time the company is a success, and easily makes enough to pay 8 per cent. to the preference shareholders, then, under the terms of the agreement, it must repay the vendors, out of its profits, the amount advanced by them. If that is so, the payment amounts to paying so much for goodwill.

I, for one, object to paying any goodwill, as I think taking shares and risking whether the company is a success or not is quite enough without paying anything for goodwill.

If the directors are wise, they will seriously consider the position they are placing themselves in, as trouble might come along.

I am satisfied that the vendors and the directors have no ulterior motives, but I believe in having everything open and free from any taint of suspicion when you are asking the public to invest its money.

But is not the real question whether an outsider (the vendors) is permitted to advance the necessary money without interest to enable the company to pay its dividends immediately, instead of at some future date? The fact must not be overlooked that the preference shares are cumulative. So, if sufficient profits are made, all deferred dividends will have to be paid someday. Take the hypothetical case our correspondent cites: Even if this agreement with the vendors were non-existent, the company would not escape paying the deferred dividends to the preference shareholders. In that respect does this differ from paying back the money advanced to the company by the vendors? It would seem that the company does not even in the first instance pay the dividend out of capital, because unless profits are made the liability to the vendors never matures.

ABERMAIN COLLIERY COMPANY, LTD.

The report of the above company covers the 12 months ended April 30. It shows a net profit for the period of £24,628, which, with £12,269 brought forward, and less £8500 dividend paid in June, 1912, made £28,317. Out of this an interim dividend at the rate of 10 per cent., and a bonus of 2½ per cent. for the half-year, was paid in November, amounting to £11,875, and £3500 was added to the reserve fund, leaving an undivided balance of £13,022, out of which the directors now propose to pay a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. for the six months ended April 30. During the year trade continued brisk, and the demand for first-grade Maitland coal was such as to justify the expectation that it would continue throughout the current 12 months. The shareholders met yesterday under the presidency of Mr. A. E. Jaques, when the report was adopted. Mr. E. Northcote was re-elected a director and Mr. A. R. Harwood an auditor.

THE MARKETS.

TAPIOCA AND GALVANISED IRON REDUCED.

The only movement of note in the market for Eastern produce yesterday was a reduction of £1 a ton in the price of tapioca. This followed on a continued weakness in the values at Singapore, and on the fact that some of the cheaper tapioca had arrived in Sydney. Seed tapioca, now commonly called sago, was quoted at 15/ per cwt. in sacks, and medium pearl at 16/. Otherwise all Eastern products were quiet, without any quotable change.

Samples of tea received yesterday by the mail were in and out. Some firms reported a better quality than the previous week, while others reported that the samples were irregular, some showing an improvement, while others were worse than similar lots received previously. A cable stated that in Ceylon the full effects of the monsoon were now being felt, and that the quality of the tea to be offered at the auctions yesterday was distinctly worse. Business on the local market was quiet.

In metal lines the expected as regards lead occurred. Manufacturers of leaden goods put up the prices by £1 a ton, which followed on an advance of 10/ a ton the previous week. The higher price is, of course, due to the rapid advance in the cost of the raw material. The price advanced £1 on the English market in the week. Sheet lead in full rolls was selling yesterday locally at £26/15/ a ton, and in cut rolls at 27/9 per cwt., and pig lead at £23/10/ per ton. Lead pipes in coils were sold at 32/6 per cwt. Prices of galvanised iron, both plain and corrugated, were reduced 10/ per ton. This decrease follows the fall of the English market. It has been aided by the fall in the value of pig iron and the sharp decline in spelter. It will be remembered that our English cables published on Monday quoted galvanised iron, first brands, 10/ a ton lower. The local quotation for galvanised corrugated iron ("Orb" first brands) is now £19/5/ per ton, and "Redcliffe" (second brands) £18/15/ per ton. Plain galvanised iron, 24 gauge, is £15/10/ per ton, and 26 gauge £19/15/ per ton. The good rains which have fallen in the wheat belt and in most of the pastoral districts have undoubtedly put good heart into the producers. Orders were coming in more freely yesterday for wires, both black and galvanised, and for wire nettings, especially rabbit-proof sizes. Black wires of No. 10 gauge were firm at £9/5/. One house which sold last week at the top market rate for parcels, wanted to buy back yesterday at an advance of 2/6. The lower price quoted from Swansea for tinplates somewhat eased the local market, but as quantities on spot were small there was no actual change in prices. Ingot tin was available at 2/4, occasionally 2/5 per lb.

The higher price of lead at the close of last week naturally made the position of white-lead in the oil market much stronger, and it was difficult to procure parcels at rates ruling last week. The convention price of white-lead in England had also advanced, and £28 f.o.b. was quoted. By our cable this morning it will be seen that the price of soft foreign lead fell in London 30/ on Monday. Linseed oil was without change at late low rates. The contract for the supply of the Victorian railways with linseed oil for the year was secured wholly by Meggitt's. The amount was 45,000 gallons, comprising 25,000 gallons of raw oil and 20,000 gallons of boiled oil. This is an indication of the progress which Australian oil is making. Turpentine was easy at late rates. There was a little demand for Soya bean oil at improved rates.

All the jute fabrics were firm. Higher prices were asked for branbags. Nothing was available under 6/2 for spot lots. There was a moderate demand from the country, much better than for some time past, and holders therefore showed no inclination to weaken. In cornsacks the country was also making better inquiry for season's lots, and quotations were given at 6/2 slings or 6/4 net on rails. Calcutta was unchanged at 6/3 c.i.f. and c.f. shipments, July to October. Woolpacks were firm at 2/8 for small lots. A sale of 100 bales was reported at 2/7½.

CHAMPAGNE STATISTICS.

In their circular Messrs. J. E. Parkington and Co. state that the quantity of champagne despatched from the champagne districts, for 12 months ended March 31 last, amounted to 30,097,644 bottles, to which must be added 5,701,150 bottles produced outside the area decreed by the Tribunal du Conseil d'Etat, making a total of 35,798,794 bottles, as compared with 35,688,014 bottles in 1911-12 and 38,584,462 bottles in 1910-11. Stocks in casks and bottles amounted to 1,180,977 hectolitres—say, 147,622,125 bottles.

EXPORT TRADE.

LAST WEEK'S SHIPMENTS.

The exports of frozen produce from the port of Sydney for the week ended June 21, according to the Customs-house returns were:—

Butter (in boxes), United Kingdom and Continent, 731, Hongkong, 39; India and Ceylon, 8; South Africa, 60; Egypt, 300; New Caledonia, 10; Philippine Islands, 233; Singapore and Java, 219; South Sea Islands, 43. Total, 1,633.

Mutton (carcases), United Kingdom and Continent, 31,455; India and Ceylon, 682; Hongkong, 450; Philippine, 384. Total, 32,971.

Beef (quarters and pieces), United Kingdom and Continent, 311; India and Ceylon, 15; Philippine Islands, 116; U.S.A., 546. Total, 988.

BREADSTUFFS.

A WEAKER MARKET.

The market for wheat was weaker yesterday. This was due to a fall in the overseas markets, amounting to /3 per quarter. Parcels for prompt despatch were 36/3 per quarter, as against 36/6 on Friday. Locally, grain was offering in moderate quantities at 3/7½ per bushel, but buyers were extremely shy, and none would give over 3/7¼. In the country prices of growers' lots were reduced, western grain being quoted at 3/2½ in the stack at country stations, and southern wheat 3/3½ in the stacks, the equivalent values ex trucks Sydney being 3/7 and 3/6. The announcement that the rates of railway freight are not to be increased on primary products has given great satisfaction to wheat buyers. There are some millions of bushels in the stacks purchased from farmers, and in fixing the price paid the freights then ruling were taken into consideration. Were the freights to be increased it would mean a dead loss to the buyers who have still wheat in the country, and these buyers already have to put up with a falling market.

Flour was quiet, and prices easy, the association quotation still being £8/15/ per ton.

LAST WEEK'S EXPORTS.

The exports of wheat and flour from the port of Sydney for the week ended June 21, according to the Customs-house returns, were:—

Wheat (in bushels), United Kingdom and Continent 292,683, New Caledonia 21, Philippine Islands 50, South Sea Islands 27, British New Guinea 6; total 292,792.

Flour (in sacks of 200lb), New Zealand 503, United Kingdom and Continent 1135, India and Ceylon 13, South Africa 98, Egypt 1672, Celebes 97, New Caledonia 974, Singapore and Java 5162, South Sea Islands 1292, British New Guinea 114, British North Borneo 20, Borneo 245; total 11,325.

ARRIVALS BY RAIL.

Wheat and Flour.—The receipts of wheat and flour by rail at Darling Harbour and the suburban railway stations for the week ended June 24, compared with previous arrivals, are as follows:—

	Wheat. Tons.	Flour. Tons.
Week ended June 24	8,113	1,429
A week ago	10,125	972

1911-12	333,644	28,953

Comparison of Prices.—The mean prices now ruling for wheat and its products compare with those of a year and two years ago as follows:—

	Yesterday.	Last year.	2 yrs. ago.
Wheat, per bushel	£0 3 7	£0 4 3	£0 3 3
Flour, per ton	8 15 0	10 0 0	8 10 0

In the case of flour, bran, and pollard, the prices given are association prices.

In the case of wheat the price is the average given by shippers.

RECORD WHEAT YIELD.

The final estimate of the wheat yield of the State made by the Government Statistician, Mr. J. B. Trivett, makes the record crop still larger than the second estimate. The first estimate, it will be remembered, was for a yield of 24,365,000 bushels, or an average of 10.94 bushels per acre. That was before the full extent of the good done by the beneficent rains of October were realised. Then, as the stacks at the railway stations mounted up in the early part of the year till 4,690,000 bags was reached on February 15, it was seen that considerable revision was necessary. That revision, made in March, gave a yield of 30,132,500 bushels, equal to 13.84 bushels per acre—a record yield for the State. Now in his final estimate the Government Statistician puts the yield down at 32,475,813 bushels, an average of 14.6 bushels per acre. The area under crop was 50,000 acres less than in the previous year. The yield is higher than the previous record, that of 1909-10, by 3,942,784 bushels. Of this great crop 10,600,000 bushels has been or will be consumed locally, 9,600,000 bushels has been exported, leaving 12,200,000 bushels still available for export. A portion of the Southern wheat, however, is hardly up to f.a.q. standard, and it will probably be found that this will be difficult to dispose of.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 2152 tons of wheat and 660 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

[Dalgety and Co., Limited, has received a cable message from its London house, dated Monday, stating the market is firm, and no important change in prices is expected at the approaching auctions.]

Lucerne hay realised 4/3 and 4/5 for good medium lots. Potatoes sold more freely at from 6/6 to 7/4. Pumpkins were somewhat easier, and a line of swede turnips sold at 4/6. Butter found general response to the recent Sydney rise, and all agents are now quoting 126/, though it is considered that the highest price in Brisbane has been reached. Eggs show a decided tendency to weaken. The supply of cheese is heavier than the market warrants.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day 25,000 fat sheep were yarded. Although the bulk of the supply consisted of crossbreds, yet all grades of merinos were fairly represented. The quality was well suited to trade requirements, including only small lots of middling inferior ewes, which were freely purchased by graziers. The market was brisk, opening at late rates, and with well-sustained competition. Prices frequently hardened to fully /6 per head higher, closing firmer. Quotations: Prime crossbred wethers, from 21/ to 24/; extra ditto ditto, from 25/ to 27/; good ditto ditto from 18/6 to 20/; second ditto ditto, from 15/9 to 17/6; with few pens of fair-conditioned young wethers from 14/6 to 16/. BUTTER DEARER.

ANOTHER FALL IN EGGS.

WEAKNESS IN CHEESE.

As anticipated, the wholesale quotation for eggs had again to be reduced yesterday. The market for new-laid opened at from 1/7 to 1/8, but as sales were slow, midday brought with it at least two agents who were willing to clear at 1/6 per dozen. River and railway consignments were cleared in the morning at from 1/6 to 1/7. About 110 cases were received per coaster. Another shipment of about 1500 dozen Adelaide chilled eggs was placed on offer. The majority of the holders of these eggs were prepared to book orders at from 1/4 to 1/5.

The demand for cheese was quiet, and sales were below the average. The high values ruling for butter have tended to restrict business, and stocks throughout the "street" are heavy. Northern Rivers factories are forwarding large consignments, which are moving off at from /6 to /7 per lb. Importations from Melbourne continue, and most of the large city grocers are securing parcels landed in store in Sydney at /6¼ per lb. Fully six weeks' supplies are held in Sussex-street at the present moment, and cold-stored stocks are also heavy. All interstate orders are passing on to Melbourne.

There was a brisk inquiry for bacon, and special brands were dearer. Sides were quoted at /9½, middles at /10½, flitches at /9, and shoulders at /7½ per lb. There was a fair proportion of heavy meat available, which was too fat for the grocers' trade, and had to be cleared at comparatively cheap prices. Flitches were plentiful.

Butter was 6/ firmer at 126/ per cwt on the store floor, or 128/ per cwt delivered, in boxes. The shortage in the supply of fresh butter was again apparent, but, at the same time, it must be remembered that the higher values will tend to reduce consumption. The following are particulars of the prices ruling here and in London at this period during the past five years:—

Year.	Sydney Price per cwt.	London Price per cwt.
1909	120/-	102/-
1910	114/-	102/-
1911	112/-	104/-
1912	134/-	108/-
1913	126/-	108/-

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

INTERSTATE SHIPMENTS.

The Tasmanian steamers discharged 9900 bags of potatoes, 5144 bags of chaff, 5139 bags of oats, 1857 bags of turnips, 431 bags of peas, and 1026 bales of straw.

There was a good inquiry for the potatoes, and sellers had no difficulty in obtaining £7/10/ for the best Redskins. This price represented a fall of £1 on the rates ruling last week.

A shipment of 4000 bags was also received from Victoria. In this case Excelsiors were offering at from £5/10/ to £6, Snowflakes from £4/10/ to £4/15/, and Carmen at £5 per ton.

Tasmanian derrick straw was moving out freely. Oaten was slightly more valuable at from £2/15/ to £3. Wheaten was not to be had under £3/5/. Victorian samples were in strong hands at £2/15/ per ton.

Sellers of chaff were weak, but there was no quotable variation in values. Tasmanian oaten was meeting with a fair inquiry, at from £4/5/ to £4/10/ per ton. A parcel is expected from Geelong to-day.

The maize market was unstable, although prices underwent no actual change. Holders generally were asking 3/10 per bushel for prime white or yellow grain. The Yulgilbar landed 2600 bags from the Macleay, the Pulganbar 1100 bags from the Clarence, and the Noorebar 350 bags from the same river. In addition, a parcel of 3000 bags was received from Queensland.

There was a large attendance of buyers at the firewood auction, and late rates were maintained. In all 30 truckloads were submitted.

RAILWAY MARKETS.

CHAFF FIRM.

The yarding at the Redfern Railway Markets yesterday morning was not as large as is usually the case at the beginning of the week. This was, of course, accounted for by the fact that the loading of chaff had been stopped for some three days of last week. Had the holiday not intervened, the yarding would have been smaller. As it was, some 90 odd trucks were placed in position. The outstanding feature of the sales was the dulness of the lucerne hay market. Prices were decidedly weaker, whilst about a third of the offering had to be passed. The market for wheaten chaff was, if anything, somewhat stronger. Nevertheless, a number of the consignments had to be passed by, through failure to reach the reserve price. Lucerne chaff sold at 5/, 5/8, and 5/9. Two truckloads of oaten chaff were disposed of at 4/2, whilst a consignment of maize fetched 3/9½. Nothing of interest occurred in the potato market. Some 90 bags of Brownell's sold at 7/; other sales varying from 4/1 upwards.

Produce placed in position for sale totalled 99 truckloads, and consisted of:—Hay 20, chaff 48, wheat 12, maize 6, potatoes 13.

FALL IN METAL VALUES.

MARKET AFFECTED THEREBY.

SHARE VALUES SAG.

A rather serious fall in metal values, together with weak quotations on the London Stock Exchange on Monday, was like a wet blanket upon the market yesterday morning, hence the general result was a sagging of share values.

Lead showed a drop of £1 to £20/10/; but, what was regarded as more significant was the fact that the quotation three months forward was £18/10/. Equally unpleasant was the announcement that the spot price of spelter had declined £1/5/ to £21, whilst the three months' figure was £20/7/. To add to the uneasiness thus created, there was the fact that the spot price for tin was shown to have fallen £6 to £193.

Some operators professed not to be surprised at this sagging of metal values. They pointed out that the prices of metals have been high for a long time past, and that, owing to the disturbed state of European politics, and the stringency of the money market, especially in London, the natural tendency must be for metal values to fall. This view appeared to be held by many members, and, as doubtless similar reasoning ruled the Stock Exchanges of Melbourne and Adelaide, it was no wonder that a restless feeling pervaded the market, and was directly opposed to the maintenance of firm values.

It may appear puzzling to some that, despite this depressed feeling abroad, a considerable amount of business was done, all sections of the market being represented. That is true, but a large amount of that business was due to the "bears" covering previous "short sales." But for the "bears," the trend of values in many cases would have been lower than they were.

A glance at the range of values in the case of the 10 Barrier stocks dealt in will show that in every instance, except one, the sales were booked on the easy side. The drop in the price of lead and spelter, and the undoubted weakness of the London Stock Exchange on Monday, were responsible for this.

Though the volume of business in copper stocks was not so large, it was a bad selling market, values being on the down grade. Gold stocks did not command much attention.

The buoyant feeling that characterised the market last week for Ardlethan stocks was not only entirely absent, but they appeared to be affected by the depression existing in the other sections of the market. Whether this was the cause, or whether it was due to the drop of £6 in the price of tin, it is hard to say, but the fact remains that the price of Ardlethan stocks likewise sagged.

Both the copper and gold divisions showed very little animation during the afternoon. Barriers were not so lifeless, nevertheless the trend of values was on the easy side.

Ardlethan stocks commanded most attention, and the slumpy feeling that was so pronounced in the morning eased off somewhat. The downward trend of prices was arrested in some cases, whilst in others they recovered a shade. But still a feeling of unrest was apparent.

According to a cablegram despatched by our London correspondent on Monday night "continuous bear selling has demoralised the tin market." He also shows a weak metal market in other directions—lead down 30/, G.M.B. copper down 7/6, electrolytic copper down 5/, and tin down £6.

MINING NOTES.

The No. 1 plant of the Turon River Gold-dredging Company, in a run of 136 hours, obtained 38oz.

The output of the Tongkah Harbour Tin-dredging Company last week was 15 tons.

The manager of the Cope's Creek Dredging Company reports for week ending June 21 as follows:—"Stripping further ground out to the left-hand side; prospects fair; weather wet."

The name of the Austral-Malay Tin Trust Ltd., has been changed to Austral-Malay Tin, Ltd., omitting the word "trust."

The Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Limited, has received a cable message, dated London June 23, giving the following quotations:—Silver, 2/2½ (official quotation); lead, £20/10/ (buyer's price); company's shares, £1/14/9 (buyers' price); spelter, £21 (buyers' price); copper, £63 (buyers' price).

At the New Burragorang silver mine (Yerranderie) the No. 4 level has holed through to the Yerranderie workings, which has greatly improved the ventilation. During last week the manager cleaned the dirt and water out of the shaft; also shifted the winch back to the new engine shed, and resumed sinking on Monday. The upraise from No. 4 west shows the foot of formation, with ore throughout. At No. 1 level west stoping is still being carried on, and 4in of good ore are showing. In the last fortnight they hauled 10 trucks. It is expected to despatch a consignment of ore this coming week.

The Chillagoe, Limited, reports for the week ending June 21.—"Einasleigh: Stoping Nos. 3 and 4 levels, ore raised 514 tons, averaging 6.570 per cent. No. 5 level, east crosscut driven 14 feet to 239 feet. Mulditva: Eclipse winze, No. 5, taking out ore still to be won off winze; 122 feet level, west drive, tapped heavy water from gully shaft, which flooded. The drive water now 17½ feet over 122 feet level. Pump working well, but unable to lower water. Getting additional boiler from Redcap. Paisley and Linedale tunnel extended 23½ feet. There is no change in face."

The mine manager of the Drumlish Hill Tin Mining Company has forwarded his weekly report to the legal manager (L. V. Puckle), dated June 21. He states:—"North shaft, 24 feet in hard quartz, carrying about 8 to 10 per cent metallic tin. South shaft carrying fine tin, with clean footwall. Buildings and other surface work being pushed on as fast as possible."

At the Mount David gold mine the Marvel shaft was last week sunk for week 8ft to 198ft. After sinking a further 7ft the manager will open out for the cross-cut back to the fissure from the 190ft level. The No. 2 main shaft was sunk 5ft to 488ft.

HERCULES MINE.

LAUNCESTON, Tuesday.

A special meeting of the shareholders in the Hercules Company was held to-night, when a proposition was submitted asking the confirmation of the action of the directors in giving Mr. E. A. Weinberg an option to purchase the mine, property, and effects of the company (if any) upon terms already made public in a circular issued recently by the board. Mr. Bowes Kelly, chairman of directors, presided, and in moving the adoption of the motion said shareholders should unhesitatingly confirm the option granted to Mr. Weinberg. He was confident that once the amalgamation with the Primrose Mining Company and Tasman Smelting Company was brought about they would, on account of the large bodies of high-grade ore to be dealt with, see before very long industrial development in Zeehan and Mt. Rosebery. The motion was carried unanimously. A motion was also carried authorising the directors to modify the terms of the option in any way they may think fit, in the interests of the company. The minutes of the meeting were confirmed.

SOUTH BLOCKS MINE.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

The main shaft of the B.H. South Blocks (zinc corporation) was last week deepened to 1221 feet. The main north drive (No. 6 level) is carrying ore at 502 feet, assaying 14.8 per cent. lead, 2.2 per cent. silver, and 5.7 per cent. zinc. The winze from No. 5 level, down 12 feet, is carrying good grade ore.

BROKEN HILL SOUTH MINE.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

An immense amount of developmental work was accomplished at the B.H. South mine last week. A quantity of ground from the 245 feet to the 725 feet levels was opened up. The west crosscut (925 feet level) was carried to 150 feet, and has proved 18 feet wide of good ore. Assays go 18.2 per cent. lead, 8.5 per cent. silver, and 10 per cent. zinc. Both winzes from 1070 feet level now show ore. The north drive (1170 feet level, section C2, has been taken to 165 feet. Crosscutting is also proceeding on this level. At No. 1 shaft, miners are still engaged cutting the plat at the 1170 feet level. No. 2 shaft was sunk seven feet, total 1300 feet, and No. 5 shaft eight feet six inches, total 601 feet. The despatches for the week to Port Pirie were 1008 tons of leady concentrates.

THE CARPATHIA TIN MINE.

The mine manager reports for week ending June 20, as follows:—

No. 1 Shaft: Since last report I have sunk a further 6½ft here, making a total depth of 104½ft. I have stopped sinking, and on Wednesday last commenced cutting the chamber to enable me to drive north and south on the lode. The lode exposed in the chamber is of the usual high milling grade values, with no western or hanging wall yet visible.

No. 3 Shaft: This shaft continues much the same as in last report. Is now 41½ft deep, and from which I am bagging milling ore of good value with some selected picked out.

No. 4 Shaft: This shaft is now 51ft, having sunk 8ft for the week. The lode here is the full length and width of the shaft, and shows milling ore of exceptionally high values, and selected ore picked out from this. At present there is more kaolin ore in the bottom than I have previously seen. The walls remain the same as previously reported, while the lode still dips to the west.

I have stacked at Ardlethan railway station 146.07 tons of milling ore.

IMPORTED FRUIT.

SHIPMENTS FROM VANCOUVER.

"It is expected that large quantities of our fruits will find their way to the Australian markets. The Australian laws prohibit fruit being imported from districts infected by codlin moth, or even from orchards within many miles of an infected district. British Columbia, being free from the codlin moth, is able to comply with these laws."

The above is a quotation from a report by the Chief Inspector of Orchards in British Columbia (Mr. W. H. Lyne), published in last month's Vancouver papers. Mr. Lyne pointed out that owing to the seasons of the two countries being antipodal, Australia was able to reciprocate with a share of her fruit at a time in the winter when British Columbia people deemed it a luxury. After several experiments to find out the proper system of packing, of temperature, and of condition, to enable Australian fruit to reach Vancouver in the best condition for the market, Australian growers had attained success, and plums, the freetrade and land reform cry popular in New South Wales 20 years ago. When, in pears, apricots, and peaches were received in Vancouver in time for the Christmas trade last year. Profiting by the experiences of Australian shippers, British Columbia growers intended to invade the winter market of Australia with fresh fruit.

LATE SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Victoria Park will be the sporting rendezvous this afternoon, and an interesting programme of pony and galloway racing the attraction. Large entries have been received, and as a number of good performers are engaged, good sport may be expected. The customary transit arrangements will be in vogue, special trams landing visitors at the racecourse gates, while the Zetland traffic will also be available. The first race is timed to start at 1 p.m., and the results of the racing may be anticipated as under:—Flying Welter Handicap: Riding Habit, Goodwin Sands, Yandon. Fourteen Hands Handicap: Sir Moorefield, First Toy, Lady Beauchamp. Hurdle Race: Director, Royal Smoke, Flip Flap. Maiden Handicap—First division: For Ever or Ina M. Second division: Werekur or Sam Beauchamp. Fourteen-two Novice Handicap—First division: Clysmic or Miss Benita. Second division: Colayr or Bill. Victoria Park Handicap: Tosha, Resolved, Madge. Trial Stakes: Cozin, Elimark, Lady Araxes.

The grass tracks were not available to trainers at Randwick yesterday morning, and most of the work was done on the cinders. Salarino strode over six furlongs in good style, and Prince Flavus left a mile behind steadily. Cynosure was not fully extended over a mile, while Blast reeled off six furlongs at a good, sound pace. Matouree put in a couple of rounds strongly, and Elfbolt and Fordell registered 1m 9½s for five furlongs. Sandbath negotiated a mile in 1m 53s, and Minoru covered five furlongs in 1m 8½s. Zinita easily defeated Single over seven furlongs in 1m 35s, and First Toy, along the back, ran half a mile in 56s. Persian King put in a strongly run mile, and Irishman went usefully over five furlongs. Harpist and Ladies' Man ran a couple of rounds strongly, and Irishwoman sprinted, as did Autho. Wyealla did a good working gallop over a mile and a furlong, and Cisco spurted. On the inside sand track the following did serviceable tasks: Perdita, Rubecula, Pittsworth Gun, Ninfa, Tipple, Rymerhild (six furlongs), and Orama.

Strathroyale was yesterday struck out of the Canterbury Handicap in connection with the Canterbury Park June meeting, on Saturday.

Mr. W. T. Kerr has been appointed honorary timekeeper to the Canterbury Park Race Club.

At a meeting of the Eugowra Pony and Trotting Club on May 21 the Open Handicap Trot was won by b g Rackarock, with Bolter second and Sunbeam third. On returning to scale the nominator of Bolter lodged a protest against Rackarock on the ground of incorrect performances, but, later on, the objection was dismissed, the stewards directing the bookmakers to pay out on Rackarock. Subsequently an appeal was lodged against the decision of the steward, but the prize was paid over to Ernest Taylor, who rode Rackarock, and who, it is alleged, did not produce any authority from the nominator, T. Zeidler, to receive the money. The appeal was in due course forwarded to the New South Wales Trotting Club, and the secretary, Mr. R. C. Hungerford, visited Parkes, Eugowra, and Forbes to investigate the case, and the parties concerned were notified to produce the horse. Taylor, who rode Rackarock, stated that the gelding had broken one of his legs while running in a paddock on the night of May 29, and was subsequently destroyed. Arthur Taylor stated that he was the owner of Rackarock, having purchased him from a man named Phillips, and loaned him to Zeidler to run at Eugowra. It was alleged that the horse Rackarock was identical with a pacing horse known as Robert Huon, who, in February last, won a race at the meeting of the Australian Trotting Club, and who, subsequently, had been sold to a resident of Tallwood. The appeal board of the New South Wales Trotting Club went through all the evidence, on the 19th inst, and decided to uphold the appeal of J. Venables, and awarded the race at Eugowra to Bolter, directed the club to pay over first and second prizes to Bolter and Sunbeam respectively, and disqualified Rackarock, his nominator (T. Zeidler) rider (E. Taylor), and owner (A. Taylor), for life. The committee of the N.S.W. Trotting Club has called upon the Eugowra P. and T. Club to answer a charge of violating rules 25 and 117.

In connection with the Rosehill races tomorrow, the Railway Department intimates that horses for conveyance from Sydney by the 11.50 a.m. horse special will be entrained at No. 15 Platform.

VICTORIAN TRAINING NOTES.

CAULFIELD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The weather was cold and showery this morning, and all the work was done on the grass, which was very fast. A number of horses worked in the bad light, and it was impossible to distinguish them. Reigle put in an even-time mile, while Andricula and Rhythmic did half that distance at the same gait. Belfant went very well for nine furlongs in 2m 1⅜s. Radiator was in front of Monody at the conclusion of a mile and a quarter, which occupied 2m 21s, Lord Dudley assisting over the last mile, in 1m 55s. Gunfire ran the latter distance in 1m 57s, while Sederick beat Cedrona in 1m 52½s. Blind Harry went well and beat Porch over a mile and a quarter in 2m 15s. Wagga galloped a mile in 1m 53s. Moriarty and Scottish Chief spurted five furlongs in 1m 6½s. Artillery Bill and Active Lad did even-time exercise. Mettle was responsible for a mile in 1m 52½s, and My Nance got over the same ground in 1m 54s. Lady Medalet spurted four furlongs in 54s, and Week End, pleased by the way he ran a mile in 1m 46½s. Elvanite left six furlongs behind in 1m 22s. Roseview covered a mile in 1m 56s, and Active Lass beat Poomah in 1m 54s. La Carte sprinted four furlongs in 53½s. Sea Prince ran a mile in 1m 46½s, Zealand joining in the last six furlongs, which occupied 1m 22s. Ethel Buckley did four furlongs in 52½s, and Lady Jane did a furlong more in 1m 9½s. Tattenham gave J. Edwards a harmless fall while jumping fences. Priamer (P. Cosgrove) and Wee Scott (H. Leahy) shaped well over three fences, and then ran a mile in 1m 57½s. Rosevale jumped three hurdles well, and Lord Grey (H. Leahy) and Forest Prince (Sinclair) also shaped well over a like number. Almissa made his way over a mile in 1m 53½s, and Alleconner and Sheriff Muir did a similar gallop in 1m 56s.

BULLWARRA SHAPES DISAPPOINTINGLY.

OBI JUMPS WELL.

FLEMINGTON.

It was very damp, with intermittent showers this morning, and all the tracks were in use, but the big sand was rather on the dead side and against fast-time making. A school over a round of the steeplechase course proper was the main item of attraction, the participants being Bullwarra (F. M'Cabe) and Booligal (H. J. Morgan), but their display did not come up to expectations. Booligal, who finished a long way in front, was nearly down twice, and he bumped his stifles heavily, and went home rather sore. Bullwarra displayed no freedom whatever, either in galloping or in jumping, and stopped at the last fence, though he jumped it when Booligal came back and gave him a lead. Pearl King went along for a mile on the tan in 1m 58s; Breach and Lord Illinois spurted, Bringenbrong and Boulogne ran half a mile on the cinders in 54s, while Coronatus cut their time down by one and a half second. Uxbridge concluded some pacing with six furlongs in 1m 22½s, with assistance from Hypo. Dukery beat Sylvan Maid over a mile in 1m 52s, while Statecraft spurted three furlongs on the cinders. Common King and Sandrift kept company for a mile in 1m 54s, while Hardrada went at about half speed. Kyper got over a mile on the cinders inside of even time, Zarhez and Bowmore ran five furlongs in 1m 9½s; Orvieto spurted two furlongs in 26s—a performance that was equalled by Burrinjuck; while Precious went a furlong further in 39s. Camorista and Calorie spurted half a mile in 54s. Columbiad went at little better than an even-time pace for a mile. Big Kingsland ran seven furlongs in 1m 36s. Big Bob (F. Burn) finished some distance in front of Avoca and Scrutineer, and ran a mile in 1m 53s. Obi (F. M'Cabe) and Mirinya (F. Botterill) jumped six hurdles in capital style, it being decidedly the best display ever given by Obi, who is usually an indifferent jumper when schooling. Money Order (Cartledge) and Milkabah (J. Nicholls) jumped hurdles; the former also went over a brush fence, and both did well. Maragal got over a cinder mile in 1m 49s. Socotra went along for a mile and a furlong on the tan in 2m 8s, Little Slam helping for the last six furlongs. Luxton (E. M'Taggart) and Miss Colin (E. J. Malone) were schooled over hurdles, the former showing to advantage. Walter Tyrril, Green Cap, and Golden Gate were all at striding work. Admiral Grand (J. Woods) and Bill Brandon (G. A. Burns) gave a good account of themselves in a school over hurdles, which were also jumped by Murrabulgan (H. Boag) and Weering (A. M'Bride). Bill Taft concluded some pacing by running a mile in 1m 52s on the inside sand. Vanguard was let off with a trot, but other jumpers at good sound work were Myall Jack, Easy Jack, Emiroo, Spanish Main, Topmast, Chenille, The Cothbrack, Tiger, Kura, Capistrata, The Prune, Coradjill, Lord Walla, Whis, Acute Angle, Pladda, Goldfish, Arion, Altar Flame, Leeburn, Bushman, and Trantbolt.

COUNTRY MATCHES.

A PLAYER INJURED.

DUNGOG, Tuesday.

Wyong footballers defeated Dungog Rovers yesterday by 8 points to 6. The ground was sodden, and during the game a player named Atkins, of the visiting team, fell, breaking a small bone of an ankle. After the fracture had been attended to the young man was conveyed on a stretcher to the train, and he returned home. The visitors were entertained at a banquet by the local team.

LACK OF INTEREST BY RUGBY UNION.

CASINO, Tuesday.

Bangalow footballers played the Casino team yesterday, but, owing to the wet ground, there was little brilliant play, and the game resulted in a draw with scores 3 all.

At dinner at night, Messrs. O. Simpson, president of the Casino Union, J. Perry, Bangalow Club, and R. Percival, spoke in strong terms of the little help or consideration shown the Northern Rivers by the parent Rugby Union. Lack of interest in the country teams by the Sydney Union, one speaker declared, was what brought the league into prominence, and unless further consideration is given to country teams, Rugby players are likely to go over to the league. Speakers thought that at least one team a year should visit the North Coast, and arrangements should be made for local teams to visit Sydney oftener.

BARRABA, Tuesday.

Yesterday Barraba beat Manilla in a Rugby Union match, after a fast even game by 6 points to 3.

ROWING.

WHERE IS BARRY?

Harry Pearce, writing from London by yesterday's mail, says: "I have not seen Barry for some days." Pearce made the same statement last week, and the whereabouts of his opponent, Ernest Barry, seems to be a secret.

Pearce says he is covering the full course every day, but does not meet Barry. He thinks the Londoner must be training in private on the Thames' upper reaches. Pearce is keeping in splendid health, and finds the weather to his liking. His weight is 13st 1lb, and he does not anticipate any trouble on this account. "Charlies Smith"—a well-known sculling judge on the Thames—"is accompanying me each day," he adds, "and is well pleased with the form I have struck. I am very confident."

BILLIARDS.

GRAY v WILLIAMS.

The Gray v Williams match of 16,000 was continued yesterday at Alcock's Tournament Hall. When play ceased on Monday night the scores were:—

Williams (rec. 2000)	8,531

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Gray left off with an unfinished 122, to which he added only a dozen. His opponent could not get into touch until his fourth trip to the table. He then put on a nicely-made 161. Included in this break was a splendid screw loser and several beautiful cannons. The young Australian then skilfully compiled 381, nearly all off the red ball. In attempting a masse stroke he missed the object balls.

Towards the close of the session Williams made two neat runs of 38 and 165, the latter including 20 nursery cannons. Gray then went to his points with 122 unfinished.

The scores were:—

Gray (in play)	10,001
Williams	9,120

Gray averaged 51, and Williams 46.

EVENING SESSION.

There was a good house at night, several ladies being present. Gray converted his 122 to 225 full. He then had a quiet time, his highest score with eight sticks being 29. At his ninth visit he made amends by stringing off a succession of 122 red losers, and this 366 break was applauded. Williams's best runs were 49, 58, 56, 84, and 79. These he followed with a beautifully-played 211, which was ended by a missed cannon. Gray closed play for the night with 23 unfinished. The scores stood:—

Gray averaged 51, and Williams 44.

To-morrow will be ladies' day, play being resumed at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m.

BOXING.

HILL v SIMPSON.

A featherweight contest of unusual interest will be decided at the Stadium to-night, when the New South Wales champion, Jimmy Hill, will meet Charlie Simpson, of Victoria. The visitor is also champion of his State, and established his popularity in Sydney recently by putting up a great contest against the much heavier Boyo Driscoll. Hill not long ago gained a sterling victory over Harry Thomas, of America, and, like Simpson is in the best of condition. The lads are matched at 9st, and the winner will meet Joe Russell for the Australasian championship.

IN AMERICA.

KENOSHA, June 23.

Johnny Coulon fought a fast ten-round draw with Frankie Burns last night. Experts considered that Burns showed better form than his opponent.

BUFFALO, June 23.

Jimmy Duffy fought a ten-round draw with Jack Britton here last night. The spectators considered that Duffy led towards the close.

SPRING HANDICAPS.

THE WEIGHTS.

The adjustments for the big handicaps of the spring on both sides of the Murray were yesterday declared by the A.J.C., V.A.T.C., and V.R.C. handicappers, who have set some problems for solution in October and November next. The Metropolitan and Caulfield Cup are run over the same distance at Randwick and Caulfield respectively, and a comparison of the work in these events is always interesting. The A.J.C. official has Duke Foote, Jolly Beggar, and Bobrikoff dividing the honour of top weight for the Metropolitan with 9st 7lb each, while the V.A.T.C. handicapper starts on a 2lb lower basis, with Duke Foote (9st 5lb) at the top of the tree, and conceding 4lb to Jolly Beggar; Duke Foote concedes Cadonia a pound in the Metropolitan and 6lb in the Caulfield Cup, while in the Melbourne Cup Cadonia is topweight, giving 2lb to Duke Foote. At the difference in the handicaps the A.J.C. handicapper has 5lb a higher estimate of Cadonia than has the V.A.T.C. official, and, at their respective imposts, Midnight Sun is asked to carry 5lb, Gigandra 4lb, Almissa 5lb, Prizefighter 9lb, Hartfell 6lb, Broadsword 5lb, Willowgreen 15lb, Golden Hop 9lb, Aurifer 7lb, Wool 8lb, Danaus 3lb, Burri 4lb, Polynesia 5lb, Symetris 8lb, Buneewa 9lb, Posio 10lb, Orvieto 8lb, Macaeus 6lb, Blairmount 5lb, and Flamboyant 7lb more at Randwick than at Caulfield; while, on the other hand, Hallowmas must put up 2lb, Ladies' Man 7lb, Cagou 6lb, Barios 4lb, Macaeus 6lb, Bairmount 5lb, and Sheriff Muir 5lb more than their Metropolitan weights at Caulfield. The Parisian will have to put up a pound more than his Caulfield Cup impost in the Melbourne Cup, Midnight Sun 5lb, Almissa 4lb, Prizefighter 6lb, Hartfell 2lb, Golden Hop 5lb, but Aurifer 5lb. Otherwise the distribution of the burdens does not show any serious discrepancies.

Jolly Beggar heads the long list of 207 in the Epsom Handicap, and with 9st 11lb, or 12lb more than he carried successfully over the same distance in the Doncaster Handicap last March, and the son of Ayr Laddie, in this instance, has his full complement. Bobrikoff and Duke Foote follow with a concession of 2lb each, and who in turn give 2lb to Sylvander and 4lb to Gigandra, and the latter pair should be content. Hallowmas reads nicely with 8st 11lb, while on the same mark, Cider and Cisco have been fairly treated. Others in the 8st division left with fair prospects are Golden Hop, Widgiewa, Barambah, Relievo, Golden Gauntlet, Symetris, Cagou, and Valido; Buneewa, Dion, Radnor, Rovigno, Norgilla, Eubaleas, Tofua, and Sir Vive appear to be the pick of the 7st division; but among the light-weighted host there is little to choose.

None of the three topweights is attractive in the Metropolitan, and, if the A.J.C. handicapper's estimate be correct, Cadonia will be much better suited at Caulfield. In the 8st section, Uncle Sam, Cider, Harpist, Ladies' Man, Golden Hop, Aurifer, and Danaus seem to have none the worse of the fixtures; while Britain, Alured, Warradonga, Barios, Audacity, Radnor, Tullybrackey, Macacus, and Orvieto read nicely at their weights in the 7st brigade; and in the lower section Sir Vive, Radiator, and Orama have not been overrated.

With a concession of 6lb, Cadonia, if in the humour on the day, should hold Duke Foote safely in the Caulfield Cup. The Parisian has his full share, but Uncle Sam, Gigandra, Midnight Sun, Almissa, Danaus, Abdicator, Symetris, Buneewa, Beragoon, Orvieto, and Golden Hop seem to be left with fair chances.

Cadonia has his full complement in the Melbourne Cup, but Hallowmass, Uncle Sam, Harpist, Ladies' Man, Cider, Danaus, Golden Hop, Diabolo, The Lintie, Beragoon, Eubulus, and Andelosia appear to have none the worst of the weights. However, many things will happen before the four big handicaps are numbered with the past, and those in search of the winners have no easy task.

The weights are as under:—

MR. M'GOWEN'S TOUR.

BYRON BAY, Tuesday.

By the evening train yesterday Mr. M'Gowen and party returned from the Tweed. A deputation met the Premier on arrival, and pointed out the necessity of a new jetty for Byron Bay. It was stated that a little further north of the present jetty there was 40ft of water at all seasons. The deputation pointed out the inadequacy of the present jetty. Over a million pounds' worth of produce and traffic went over the present jetty annually. The jetty was becoming congested, and was too small for the trade. The Premier promised to place their claims before the Minister for Works, but pointed out that the matter would have to go before the Works Committee. Their claim seemed justifiable and reasonable in such an important and growing district.

CHAMPIONSHIP CADET SPORTS.

The second annual championship cadet sports will take place at the Sydney Cricket Ground on Saturday next. Entries have been received from nearly all the metropolitan areas and from several country districts.

The cadets participating are the pick of the battalions or areas which they represent, selected after competitions held amongst themselves, and the standard attained should therefore be high. These sports are essentially military in character, and the events comprise—drill and marching competitions for squads, physical drill, march past for companies, relay bicycle race for supply of ammunition, bugle competition, etc.

A feature of the sport will be company drill carried out by the four leading squads in the drill and marching competition. Judging by the enormous crowd who witnessed the march of the 20,000 cadets the other day public interest and sympathy with the movement is on the increase, accordingly a large attendance is expected next Saturday. It is announced in military district orders that there will be no parades held in metropolitan areas other than for the purpose of attending these sports. Lady King Hall will, at 4.35 p.m., present the prizes. The State military band, under Captain Bentley, will play during the afternoon.

SELECTOR'S DEATH.

WILBERFORCE, Tuesday.

Charles Finn, a selector, accidentally overturned a lamp, which ignited his house. After extinguishing the flames, he was so exhausted that he fell, cutting his body badly on a tin. He was taken to the Windsor Hospital, where he died.

LIBERAL LEAGUE AT BRONTE.

Last night Mr. Charles E. Newman presided over a meeting held at Bronte, with the object of forming a Liberal League there. Mr. Owen Gilbert attended, and gave an exposition of the objects of the league. A motion was carried that a branch be established, to be known as the Bronte Branch of the Liberal Association. On the motion of Mr. J. Harley M'Laughlin, it was resolved that no candidate for Parliamentary representation shall be eligible to accept any position as an officer or as a member of the executive.

SCIENCE CONGRESS.

Professor David and Mr. Maiden yesterday interviewed the Acting-Premier (Mr. Holman) regarding the visit of British scientists to Australia, which has been arranged for 1914.

The scientists, between 150 and 200, are coming at the invitation of the Federal Government, but Mr. Holman is anxious that they shall see something of the country districts of New South Wales. He is endeavouring to arrange matters so that these opportunities will present themselves. Two of the scientists will address public meetings in the Town Hall.

RUGBY LEAGUE.

NEW ZEALAND v ORANGE.

This afternoon the New Zealand team will play a match at Orange. The visitors will return to New Zealand by the Maunganui on Saturday, and a match will be played at Christchurch on July 5. It is probable that games will also be arranged to take place at Auckland and Wellington.

On Monday evening the New Zealanders were the guests of Mr. Oscar Asche at the performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," at the Theatre Royal, when the party numbered 40.

VEHICLE FERRY RATES.

COUNCILS' PROTESTS.

North Sydney Council recently passed a resolution protesting against the increase of vehicle ferry rates. At last night's meeting of the council letters were read from Kuring-gai and Warringah Shire Councils, and Manly and Lane Cove Councils, supporting the protest.

The acting-manager of Sydney Ferries wrote, stating that the wishes of the councils would be considered by the directors.

The under-secretary to the Premier wrote to the effect that the increased charges were receiving the close attention of the Minister for Works.

PARTY SELECTIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—All lovers of clean politics, be they of either Labour or Liberal party, will echo Sir William M'Millan's cry for the speedy abolition of the present system of selecting party candidates. Except in regard to certain men of outstanding personality, the system acts like a small-meshed sieve, admitting into public life only the self-seeking individual, who is ready to stoop to the methods Sir William M'Millan so rightly condemns. But what is the remedy? A second ballot imposes unnecessary expense upon candidates and Government alike, and unnecessary trouble on electors. Preferential voting sometimes selects the worst man instead of the best. The Hare-Spence system involves large electorates, with a consequent diminution of local interest, and might result in putting into Parliament a number of small factions, who would make Parliament House a place of petty intrigue.

Putting aside the open question of whether something better than our present party system cannot be found, I wish to make a suggestion for the immediate need. If all the Liberal and Labour electors in an electorate joined their respective leagues and took part in the selection all objections to the present system would disappear. Why not, then, let the party candidate be selected at the same time, and by the same process, as the member for the electorate is elected. This could be achieved by a legislative provision enabling any number of candidates to have their names grouped upon the ballot paper, on the understanding that the total number of votes cast for the entire group are to be credited to the member of that group who had received the most votes.

Apply this, for example, to the present difficulty at Drummoyne. Both Sir William M'Millan and Mr. Wood might go to the poll with the endorsement of the Liberal party. On the other hand, there might be, perhaps, Smith, Jones, and Robertson representing, and endorsed by, the Labour party. The electors would then be perfectly free to choose, not only the party they would support, but which of the party candidates they would prefer. The total votes cast for Sir William M'Millan and Mr. Wood would be placed to the credit of whichever of the two was proved by the voting to have the most public support. The same would be done with the votes cast for the Labour group. The most popular representative of the most popular party would thus win the election. This system would work satisfactorily, no matter how many parties were represented, and there could be both party groups and individual independent candidates included on a ballot paper without interfering with its satisfactory working. It would present no difficulty to the voter, who would, as now, put his cross opposite the name of the candidate for whom he wished to vote. It would sweep away all the underhand business associated with selection, and all the bitterness engendered thereby. It would mean, also, that during the progress of the election each party would have the services of perhaps two or three candidates energetically interpreting its views to the public. It would expose the man who votes on personal rather than party grounds to the risk of having his vote, given for a man he approves, credited to a man he disapproves; but this is a trifle compared with the evils of the present system.

FRANK E. PULSFORD.

QUEENSLAND ASSEMBLY.

SUGAR INDUSTRY.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

In the Assembly this afternoon the Treasurer moved that the House at its next sitting consider the introduction of a bill to provide for the prompt payment to sugar-cane suppliers of part of the value of the cane. He explained that the Act had come into force at the commencement of the Commonwealth Sugar Bounty Abolition Act of 1912. The main principle of the bill was to ensure that growers would receive the amount they would have received had the bounty and excise been equal. The bill was intended to make absolutely sure that, in addition to the present price, canegrowers would receive an additional 2s 2d per ton.

Mr. Ryan, leader of the Opposition, said the bill would not effect the object desired. He moved an amendment to the effect that the bill should provide for the establishment of tribunals to secure fair prices for the canegrower.

Mr. Denham pointed out that there were enormous difficulties in the way of establishing a cane prices board. All mills were not equal, and every mill would need an independent mill board. The proposition was individual rather than collective, and could best be solved by individual mills.

The amendment was negatived by 32 votes to 13, and the motion carried.

Mr. Blair took steps for the introduction of a bill to prohibit the employment of certain forms of labour in the production of sugar. After the passing of the Act no coloured persons will be allowed to engage in the sugar industry unless they hold a certificate for having passed the dictation test.

The debate on the Address in Reply was resumed.

USE OF A BRAND.

APPEAL TO HIGH COURT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The right to use the word "Borsaline" as a distinguishing brand for hats is involved in litigation, which has occupied the attention of the High Court (Mr. Justice Barton, Mr. Justice Isaacs, Mr. Justice Powers, and Mr. Justice Rich), for several days. The matter originally came before Mr. Justice Hodges in the State Supreme Court by way of an application on behalf of the Borsalino Guiseppe Fratello, Sosieta Anonima to restrain Thos. M. Collitt and Herbert B. Collitt, retail hatters, of Melbourne, from selling hats which, it was alleged, were branded in such a way as to be an infringement of their trade mark, and calculated to deceive purchasers as to the makers of the hats they were buying. Defendants set up that the hats sold by them were made by G. B. Borsalino, F. Lazzaro, and Co., who it was said had by legal proceedings in Italy, in 1907, obtained the right to carry on business under the name stated. Mr. Justice Hodges in August last entered judgment for plaintiffs, and granted the injunction sought. Defendants obtained from the High Court special leave to appeal against his Honor's decision, on the ground that on the facts, as found by him, they were entitled to judgment; that the evidence disclosed no ground for injunction; that the Judge was wrong in holding that defendants had passed off goods not of plaintiff's manufacture as if they had been made by plaintiffs. The decision of the Court, which was reserved, will probably be given on Wednesday or Friday.

METHODIST CONFERENCE.

A FEDERAL CAPITAL CHURCH.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

At the sittings of the Methodist Conference to-day resolutions were passed noting with gratitude the great awakening of the social conscience throughout the world against the alcoholic liquor traffic and the trend of legislation towards granting the power of veto by the vote of citizens.

It was also resolved to ask the proper authorities to add to the State school curriculum the subject of scientific temperance instruction, and that it should be compulsory.

The conference resolved that the New South Wales Conference should be responsible for establishing the Methodist Church in the Federal capital. A number of votes of thanks brought the proceedings of the conference to a close.

ALLEGED DUPLICATE VOTING.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Treasurer (Sir John Forrest) to-night received the following telegram from Mr. Hedges, the defeated Liberal candidate for the Fremantle seat in the House of Representatives:—"Investigation of the voting in the Fremantle electorate up to the present time shows 2050 duplications, over 1000 of which are on the Claremont subdivisional roll. We are now investigating the Maylands subdivision of the Fremantle roll."

SUGAR CROP.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The report of the Government Statistician on the Queensland sugar crop of 1912, issued on Saturday, shows poor results as compared with previous seasons. The figures for 1911 and 1912 respectively were:—1911, acres cultivated 130,376, acres crushed 95,766, tons cane 1,534,451, tons sugar 173,296; 1912, acres cultivated 141,652, acres crushed 78,142, tons cane 994,212, tons sugar 113,060.

TASMANIAN BY-ELECTION.

LAUNCESTON, Tuesday.

An election to fill one of the Wilmot seats in the State House of Assembly, rendered vacant by the death of Mr. Jonathan Best, was held to-day. The voting was under the Hare system. There were four candidates in the Liberal interest, viz., E. F. Blyth, C. G Hall, E. T. Hingston, and Henry Murray; while Norman Cameron stood as an Independent. Up to 10.30 o'clock to-night the count stood thus:—Blyth, 2266; Cameron, 2140; Hall, 460; Hingston, 1615; Murray, 1824.

THE HAMPDEN MINES.

WORK RESUMED.

TOWNSVILLE (Q.), Tuesday.

A Friezland telegram states that 25 men have started work at the Hampden mines. More are going on daily until it is fully manned. There are large numbers of applications for work under the new union.

CADET DETAINED.

PERTH, Tuesday.

At the City Court to-day, Arthur John Bonner, 18, was sentenced to 50 days' detention at Fremantle for evading compulsory training. Defendant had only attended two drills during the past year, and had not attended any parades or done any camp service.

UNDERTAKER FINED.

PERTH, Tuesday.

The question of whether coffins are goods for sale within the meaning of the Act was dealt with at the City Court to-day, when D. J. Chipper, undertaker, was charged with having failed to register his premises as a manufactory. The magistrate (Mr. Roe) decided that coffins were goods, and imposed a fine of 20s, and ordered defendant to register the premises as a factory.

FOR NON-SMOKERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. Sydney H. Wickerson's letter in your issue of to-day will meet with, I am sure, every non-smoker's approval, and with him I am at one that our best thanks are due to Alderman Barlow's movement to have some seats reserved for non-smokers. Whilst a strong advocate of not depriving any persons, smokers or ladies, I feel sure that if, say 20 were branded for "non-smokers only," that would not lessen the seating accommodation, as those who did smoke, provided they did not smoke whilst using those seats, no objections could arise. Often have I had to rise and look for another seat because those that came after me used such vile smelling tobacco or cigars; and it was with difficulty I found a seat at which no smoking was then being done. I think there should be no demur at all against placing non-smokers' seats. Having lived a fairly long life, I have never seen any reason or heard of any why our mouths should be made chimneys of. I hope that Alderman Barlow will not rest content until his work is fulfilled, and non-smokers can sit under the canopy of heaven in Hyde Park and enjoy their reading or rest without the discomfort of having volumes of smoke wafted all over them sufficient to attract the attention of the household on return.

NATIONAL HYMN.

WANTED FOR AUSTRALIA.

MUSICIANS' DINNER.

At the first annual dinner of the Musicians' Association last evening it was announced that Farmer's, Limited, were giving £200 for the composition of a national Australian hymn. The offer was accepted amidst applause.

The Governor (Sir Gerald Strickland), attended by Captain Talbot, A.D.C., was among those present. The chair was occupied by the president (Mr. W. H. Wale).

His Excellency the Governor, who was cheered on rising to respond to the toast of his health, said that he was proud to be present on the occasion of the anniversary celebration of the founding of the society. Music was a characteristic that differentiated refined nations from others of less development. It was a concomitant of peace, an evidence of prosperity, a proof of culture. The civilising influences of music were just as necessary in the open air in Australia as in packed London. He hoped that great voices would develop in this great climate, and that the climate would produce many a Melba and that the association would have a great future.

Messrs. R. Clive Teece and Lawrence Campbell gave "Our Guests." The former regretted that illness had caused the absence of Mr. Carmichael, Minister for Public Instruction, who had shown himself a true friend of music, as was evidenced by his efforts to establish a musical conservatorium. He hoped that the conservatorium would be a centre of music in Sydney, from which would radiate influences highly beneficial to the State.

Mr. Justice Heydon remarked that it was high time that such an association was formed in Sydney, which was destined to be one of the great cities of the world. It was their responsibility to see that the city grew not only in commerce, but in the cultivation of art, music especially. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. James Chalmers, managing director of Farmer's, Limited, referred to the want of an Australian national hymn, and announced that his directors had decided to give £200 for the production of such a composition, and also to celebrate the birthday of the association. (Cheers.) Their suggestion was that £100 should be awarded to the author of the verse, and a similar sum to the composer of the music, the decisions to rest with the professors of English literature in the various States, and the leading musicians of each State respectively. A sum of £50 would also be given for the expenses of carrying out the competition. If the society would accept the charge, he would suggest that the chairman of the literary portion should be Professor MacCallum, Mr. Orchard to be chairman of the musical part. (Hear, hear.)

The chairman returned thanks on behalf of the council, and expressed their appreciation of the gift. The offer was most patriotic, and he hoped that something lasting would result.

BURKE AND WILLS.

Mr. Frank Walker, president of the Australian Historical Society, read a paper before the society last night on the finding by Mr. Edwin J. Welch, of John King, survivor of the Burke and Wills expedition.

In his paper Mr. Walker gave a short history of the expedition. He pointed out that while the expedition added little or nothing to the geographical knowledge of Australia, the disaster which befell it was responsible for adding immensely to the knowledge of the interior of the continent.

MR. BERTRAM FLOHM'S STUDENTS.

A successful recital was given at St. James's Hall yesterday evening by the students of Mr. Bertram Flohm's School of Elocution. The audience was appreciative, and the performance was particularly good. The programme was a veritable feast of monologues—musical and otherwise. An interesting item was the first rendering by Miss A. Francis Forcutt of one of Mr. Flohm's own monologues, "Madame Malibran and the Young Musician." It was a touching little tale of the great singer's kindness to a little boy, who eventually became a composer of world fame. The story was ably and pathetically told by Miss Forscutt. An excellent number was Miss Benita Pascoe-Pearce's rendering of Story's dramatic scene, "Cleopatra." She possesses a voice of musical quality, and her elocution was excellent. Mr. Archie Gilder proved a success as a musical monologist, his first item, "The Girl on the Stairs," being infused with quaint humour. Mr. Maurice Rosenthal was warmly applauded for "The Portrait," whilst Mr. Chas. Walsh's rendering of excerpts from Dickens showed a ready sympathy with the great master. A word of praise must be said of Miss Linda Freshfield's "Keeping a Seat at the Benefit," and of Miss Muriel Dempster's natural acting in "Her First Pudding." Others contributing to the success of the evening were:—Misses Barbara Hume, Dorothy Phillips, Freida Bennett, Claire Hughes, Jesse Stigings, Gypsy Middlehurst, Nellie O'Keeffe, Eveline Douglas, and Mr. Charles Philip.

Yesterday two fires were extinguished in two separate dwellings situate at 120 and 319 Crown-street, Surry Hills. In the first case a kitchen was slightly damaged, in the second a front first-floor bedroom with its contents suffered damage.

AUBURN IS GOING SOME.

The activity in the Auburn district is greater than ever, and we are selling lots every day in this progressive manufacturing suburb. As a matter of fact, it would be difficult to find a suburb which lends itself more to profitable investment than this coming "Birmingham of Australia." The number of people employed there and earning good wages in the big manufacturing concerns cannot but push the district ahead more quickly than ever.

HEART OF AUBURN ESTATE.

This property is in four sections, surrounding our well-known Dudley Estate, and adjoining Granville Estate, both of which properties were sold clean out during the early part of the year. We can safely say that it occupies the very best residential part of the suburb, and is an investment that will show the very best returns possible. Under ten minutes from the station, in a select locality, and consisting for the greater part of fine level building blocks, this is an Estate that must arrest the attention of the judicious buyer. City water and gas are available. Splendid views can be obtained right out over the flat plains of the Granville and Clyde district.

The lots average 40 x 120 to 180 ft., and every one fronts well-made roads, and are offered at [illegible] prices, from 15/ a foot.

ROSEBERY,
MODEL AND INDUSTRIAL SUBURB,
INCREASES IN VALUE DAILY.

CERTAIN ENHANCEMENT.

In the very near future it will be quite common for people to stand and wonder at the amazing development of this remarkable suburb. The marvellous increase that will take place, as evidenced daily in the fine cottage residences; the expansion of the factory buildings and shops in the areas to which they are restricted, will be a matter of lively wonderment. And the splendid enhancement of land and house values in the suburb, arising both from the developmental work of the management and the activities of private owners, will be a concrete and pleasing fact. But the people who will get the fullest measure of pleasure and satisfaction from these increases will be the folk who were wise enough to buy Rosebery Blocks and build for themselves—or have built for them, under the easy and liberal Rosebery System—Rosebery Homes. Don't you think you should become one of these owners—owners who will not alone reap happiness and comfort from their homes, but, as an investment, certain financial profit also?

CONVENIENT TO THE CITY.

Nowhere in the environs of Sydney could a finer position be chosen for the planning and development of a desirable Residential Suburb. Situated between Rosebery and Victoria Park Racecourses, it adjoins the Kensington Golf Links. The first portion of the Estate is within a few minutes of the Zetland Tram Terminus, and is practically at the end of Elizabeth-street, city. The tram fare to the Railway from this portion is 1d. The Gardener's-road end of the Estate is served by the Waterloo and Botany trams (2d fare to Railway Station). The new line which is being constructed to Daceyville will traverse the entire Gardener's-road boundary of the Estate.

THE EASIEST OF LIBERAL TERMS.

From any responsible person we will accept a deposit as low as £50, and the balance of the purchase money at the rate of 25s per week. These weekly payments include discharge of principal and interest. In other words, no other payment except the weekly amount is asked for. As each instalment is paid the interest decreases. Although the present rate of interest is high, our financial arrangements permit us to offer terms on a 6 per cent. basis. This low rate of interest is unavailable anywhere else.

LIVE YOUR LIFE AT CHARMING HABERFIELD,
"Sydney's Garden Suburb."

Do you wish to live under the healthiest, pleasantest, most congenial conditions? Do you wish to save yourself much money? Do you wish to live in your own home—absolutely master of it—rent free—happy? Do you wish to avoid the unpleasant feeling that, after 20 years of rent-paying, you own nothing more than a batch of rent receipts?

It is almost unnecessary to put these questions to one's self. Still, put them to yourself, and you must sensibly answer them to your advantage. And the advantage is, shortly, OWN YOUR OWN HOME AT HABERFIELD.

Here is an extract from the latest authoritative writing on the ideal modern city:—

"Almost with one consent, whoever talks about the management of great cities begins with health. The preservation of public health is the subject of the first paragraph in the address of nineteen would-be administrators out of twenty. And very properly so, for health, important in itself, is inextricably interwoven with almost all other subjects of high civic importance, as, for example, transit from the crowded court to the country, and wise and adequate feeding, as well as with formal sanitation. Indeed, half, or more, of the necessities that go to the making of the ideal city might be discussed under the heading of health. Yet, from the point of view of health, the ideal city must have space, both as regards its general plan and its individual houses."

The above phrases apply so forcibly and intimately to Haberfield, that it might be supposed that an inspection or investigation of that delightful home district had prompted the writing of them.

Haberfield is a triumph of modern suburb-planning. It has assimilated the best features and ideas of the leading garden suburbs of the world. The result is to offer you a home whose area, attractiveness, and wholesomeness will remain permanently undiminished.

Each cottage stands in its own grounds. Wide verandahs add to the privacy and comfort of the after-dinner smoke. The method of construction is on the latest and most modern lines. The rooms are light and airy, artistically yet strongly finished. Every modern convenience exists that can contribute to the comfort of the inmates. Special attention is given to the construction of kitchen and washhouse to counteract the heat of cooking and laundering.

The streets are wide, and planted with shade trees. Many areas and institutions for recreation and amusement are provided.

A deposit of £50 will place you in immediate possession. The balance of purchase money is payable as rental. You never feel the strain. The rate of repayment is really less than the property is worth on a rental basis.

Take Haberfield or Abbotsford tram, in George-street, and alight at O'Connor-street.

Information will be given at any of our three offices.

ELECTION ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PARKES.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I much regret that I was unavoidably prevented from being present at the formal declaration of the Poll, and so denied the pleasure of thanking you personally for the splendid majority with which you returned me to the Federal Parliament for the fifth time. I beg to convey to you my most sincere acknowledgments, and to congratulate you on having assisted to give a majority to the Liberal Party, and, by that means, to have aided in rescuing Australia from the hands of a huge political conspiracy, which had, avowedly, administered the affairs of the Commonwealth in the interests of its own class, and ignored the interests of the people as a whole. The national affairs have now been transferred to a party which will know no such distinctions, and exercise the legislative and administrative powers in the interests of all, irrespective of class, creed, or party bias.

I have no hard words to say of my opponent, whom I have never met or seen, although I know of many unfair things having been said, to my detriment, during the campaign. The winner of so great a victory can well afford to be magnanimous.

I wish to thank with all my heart those numerous active supporters who championed my cause and the Liberal policy at the various electoral divisions; and I wish also to thank the Returning Officer (Mr. Brown) and the Presiding Officers and Scrutineers for the able, complete, and satisfactory way in which the work of the election was accomplished.

Yours faithfully,
BRUCE SMITH.

TWO SMALL ITEMS—
A PENNY AND A MINUTE—

—yet they represent the cost of a luxurious hot bath and its cost when you have the

FLETCHER-RUSSELL
GAS BATH-HEATER

installed in your bathroom. Think of the comfort, satisfaction, and health of the enjoyable bath, and the numbers who are debarred from indulging in it, except occasionally, this weather. One delighted user of the Fletcher-Russell told us that it made him a big hot bath while he pulled his boots off. So it does! One minute and from one to five gallons of water are heated to from 60 to 105 degrees.

THE ABSOLUTELY SAFE AND SURE HEATER.

Another great feature—to many the greatest—is that it is rendered extraordinarily safe by the patent tap which turns the gas off simultaneously with the water in one action.

CALL AND SEE FOR YOURSELF, OR WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATIONS COMPLETE LIST OF SIZES AND PRICES. THEY COMMENCE AT £5 15s.

THE USE OF POWDER.

Great stress should be laid on the use of powder, and even greater stress on the kind of powder. Mme. Rubinstein is the first Complexion Specialist to differentiate between the dry, moist, oily, shiny, and normal skin when advising the use of powder. To dust a "fatty" powder over a greasy skin would be simply adding fuel to the fire, while using an absorbent powder on a dry skin would aggravate the trouble. Mme. Rubinstein therefore supplies two varieties—Novena Poudre, a fatty powder, for dry and normal skins, and Valaze Complexion Powder, for greasy, overmoist, oily, and shiny skins. Each can be obtained in three tints, price 2/, 3/, and 5/ a box, postage 3d. Of Liquid Powders there is Valaze Snow Lotion, a superb Viennese preparation, which cools, refreshes, whitens, and preserves the skin, imparting that dull ivory finish that is so much sought after; price 3/6 a bottle, postage 6d.

Valaze Skin Food removes pimples, blotches, freckles, sunburn, tan, sallowness, moderate lines, and wrinkles, and makes and keeps the skin clear, fresh, and healthy; price 3/6 and 6/6 a jar, postage 6d.

Novena Cerate is an emollient skin cleanser without the use of soap and water. It cleanses, soothes, softens, whitens, and preserves the most sensitive skin, and allays all irritation; price 3/10, posted.

Valaze Lip Lustre protects the delicate outer membrane of the lips from the wind and cold, prevents cracks, chaps, and sores, and imparts to lips that are dull and blanched the full and rich lip colour; price 2/ and 3/, postage 3d.

Valaze Blackhead and Open Pore Cure removes these blemishes, closes enlarged pores, cures a greasy, coarse skin, and assists in preserving the health of the complexion; price 2/10, posted.

Valaze Liquidine overcomes many undesirable conditions, amongst which are enlarged pores, pimples, blackheads, and acne, by acting directly on the pores, and freeing them from waste matter which clogs them. It also obviates undue redness and flushing of the nose and face; price 5/ and 8/6, postage 6d.

Write for Mme. Rubinstein's book, "Beauty in the Making," which will be sent to any address on receipt of 3d for postage. Valaze Preparations obtainable from all Chemists; or direct from HELENA RUBINSTEIN PROP., LTD., Dept. D, 158 Pitt-street, Sydney; or 274 Collins-street, Melbourne.

COSTUME SHOWROOM.

To-day we are making a Special Display of Ladies' Tweed, Cloth, and Navy Serge Coats. These we have selected from our ordinary stocks, and we have greatly reduced them. In some cases they were marked as high as 35/, and the lowest price was 14/11. These we have decided to reduce to 9/11 each, to make room for new goods. Now, Ladies, if you want a GOOD COAT, don't miss inspecting this collection, over 200 to choose from. SEE OUR WINDOWS—DON'T FORGET THE PRICE.
9/11.

We have just opened a further shipment of the very best quality Reversible Tweed Coats, in the new two-tone effects, in Browns, Tans, Greys, and Greens. Ladies' Reversible Coats, in Real Smart Styles, are hard to get, but we have a grand collection. Prices from 29/11 to 50/6.

Special showing of Ladies' Caracul and Sealette Coats. These are also new in today, and are made in the very latest styles. They make a grand travelling Coat, being awfully smart and well cut. Ladies, if you want to be up-to-date and smartly "Coated," come and inspect our present collection. Prices range from 49/11 in Caracul to 99/6 in Sealette.

Ladies, we have provided for your comfort once more in the shape of a real good quality "WATERPROOF." Mind you, we do not mean "shower-proof," but waterproof.
These we are showing in various colours and shapes. They are honestly worth, in the ordinary way of business, 25/, but our Special Price is 14/11.

Table of Ladies' Cotton Golf Coats, in all colours, strapped at waist, button up high to the neck, specially suited for young ladies going to school or business. Bound to be a rush for this item, so come early and secure yours, for Foy's price is only 4/11.

Table of Maids' Knitted Fleecy Woollen Coats, only just to hand. These are the very latest styles in these particularly smart, neat, and very warm and cosy little Coats. They are in three colours, Navy, Mole, and Red, in the following sizes:—
36in, 39in, 42in, 45in, 48in.
We have made a special advertising medium of this line, and we assure you they are wonderfully cheap at 8/11 for any size.

Foy's have just received a cabled shipment of Ladies' Silk Knitted Golfers, in "BLACKS," as well as a full range of very smart shades. There has been an enormous inquiry for Black Silk Knitted Golfers, so if you require that shade you must come immediately, for they will last no time. Prices range from

Table of Ladies' Knitted Woollen Coats, in all sorts of shapes, Colours, etc. This table comprises garments that have been a little damaged or otherwise knocked about during the late rush for these Coats. These we have reduced to prices which will ensure a speedy clearance. Prices range from 3/11 to 29/11.
A FEW SILK ONES.

Ladies, we want you to come and inspect our present range of Coats and Skirts. We are sure you will be delighted with the charming styles displayed on our stands, in Serge, Cloth, and Tweeds, and, what is more important, you will be more than pleased with the prices. Every Costume in our showroom is this season's; we do not CARRY COSTUMES from one season to another, hence fine prices and exceedingly smart styles. Prices range from 16/11 to £8/8/.
ANY SIZE.

Further assortment to hand in Ladies' Warm Woollen Blouses, which we are placing on our "SPECIAL TABLE AT 4/11." This table has become quite "FAMOUS" (it is situated just under the big staircase). It is no exaggeration for us to say we have sold thousands of blouses off this table, some of them worth as much as 9/11 each; but we specialise in them at the one price—4/11.

At present we have a fine range of Ladies' Superior Quality Felt Underskirts, in Greens, Reds, Browns, etc. These are smartly cut, not too wide, and they are trimmed with rows of Silk Braids. The prices range from 4/6 to 6/11.

Special Table of Ladies' "SAMPLE" Moirette Underskirts. There are some entirely new and novel styles and colours in this collection, and it will pay you to have a look through them, if your wardrobe is short of Underskirts—one look; but one won't satisfy you at the prices they are marked, real useful skirt,
